THE LUNDY FAMILY.

The Lundy lineage, so far as known, begins with three names, which represent three successive generations—father, son, and grandson.

First. The father was Sylvester Lundy of Axminster, County of Devon, England; our only known ancestor in the Lundy line who lived and died in the Old World.

Second. The son was Richard Lundy the First, born in England, a resident of Axminster, an emigrator to the New World in 1676, a settler in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and the Founder of the Lundy Family in America. He was an Elder in the Religious Society of Friends.

Third. The grandson was Richard Lundy the Second, the first American-born Lundy. He was born in the County of Bucks, Pennsylvania, in 1692; and died in the County of Warren, New Jersey, in 1772. He was an Elder in the Religious Society of Friends, and was active at the organization of three new Meetings, or Churches, in the wilderness—the Buckingham, the Plumstead, and the Hardwick. From this Richard the Second have sprung numerous Lundy households, which are now widely scattered throughout the United States and Canada.

We will now speak more fully concerning each of these three men.

SYLVESTER LUNDY.

Very brief, indeed, is the account that has come down to us concerning this man who leads the list of our Lundy forefathers. We know his name and the town he lived in and that he begot a son Richard. These items, so meager and barely sufficient for the inscription on a tombstone, comprise the whole record; there is nothing else known about him. No definite answer can be given to the many queries which naturally arise concerning his rank, occupation and religious belief, his wife, and his other children, if others there were, and his parentage and remote ancestry.

But our authority for what little we do know is excellent ; and a great satisfaction it is to have the history of the Lundy Family open, not with some vague tantalizing tradition, but with matter of early historical record. Our authority is an official entry which was made about 1685 in a book kept by a public officer in pursuance of a colonial law. The entry begins thus : "Richard Lundy, of Axminster, in the County of Devon, son of Sylvester Lundy, of the said town in old England . . ." These words, as it will appear when we describe more fully the document from which they are quoted, were undoubtedly taken down by the Register of Bucks County, Pennsylvania, from the lips of Richard himself.

We have now told all that is known about Sylvester Lundy and have given our authority ; and yet although we have a long genealogical story to tell, we cannot pass on at once, but feel that we must pause and muse in reverent spirit as by the side of an ancient grave newly-found wherein rests one of whom we would fain learn more.

Here, too, seems to be the appropriate place in our narrative to introduce a short account of Axminster, "the said town in old England," the trans-atlantic home of our ancestor Sylvester Lundy.

What and where is Axminster, and why was it so named? Devon is one of the southern counties of England, and Axminster is one of the southern towns of Devon. It is a small market-town with less than three thousand inhabitants, on the river Axe, three miles from the English Channel. It is much too small to be on the map in a common geography ; on a map of larger scale, it will be found on the southern coast-line of England a little west of the Isle of Wight. How came the place to have that name? The word minster has the same origin as the word monastery, and means a church, a place of worship, and hence Axminster means the church on the river Axe. More than a thousand years ago King Aethelstan of England defeated the heathen Danes, who had invaded his realm, in a great battle on the banks of the river Axe ; and in his gratitude he erected a church on the field of his victory and called it Axminster. Gradually a village grew up around the church, and the name Axminster was then used to designate the town as well as the sacred edifice. Some persons who were carpet-weavers by trade settled there and made the place famous by the excellency and peculiar style of their handiwork; and although this particular form of industry long ago lost its characteristic importance at that village, yet the word Axminster as designating a certain make of carpet is still used everywhere in the commercial world.

RICHARD LUNDY THE FIRST.

Richard Lundy I., the only known child of Sylvester, was the Founder of the Lundy Family in America. Richard left his native land for the New World during Sixth month, 1676, a date easily remembered, being exactly one hundred years before the Declaration of Independence. Sixth month was August, for in those times March was counted the first month of the year. He sailed from Bristol, an important sea port on the western coast of England, and landed at Boston in the province of Massachusetts. He remained in New England among the Puritans nearly six years; but not a single item of information concerning his place of residence or his experience during that interval has come down to us. From history, we know that it was an uneventful period for the people of New England, a period of rest after their terrific conflict against the confederated Indians under King Philip. Richard's sojourn among the Puritans ended in 1682; on the 19th of 3rd month (May) in that year, he embarked and sailed for the Delaware river. What motives he had for leaving New England, we do not know; but we do know that Pennsylvania was just at that time being energetically boomed as an ideal home for settlers.

William Penn, the grandest figure in American colonial history, was so good that we sometimes forget how wise and shrewd he was. Penn got his charter from Charles II. in March, 1781, and immediately published a circular describing his new country in glowing terms; he then began to issue a series of public letters, which kept his colony before the eyes of the world; and finally the great Proprietor himself set sail and reached Pennsylvania during the last week in October, 1682, and founded the city of Philadelphia. The total population of Pennsylvania at that time was estimated at six thousand; and immigrants continued to arrive at the rate of one thousand a year.

Richard Lundy came to Pennsylvania in 1682; two years later he secured some real estate and took to himself a wife.

In the Minutes of the Board of Property of the Province of Pennsylvania, under date of 15 of 12 month, 1702, the following entry is found: "The Prop'ry, by a Patent, dated 6, 5 month, 1684, Granted to Rich'd Lundy 200 Acres of Land Situate in the County of Bucks at a penny pr. Acre, laid out 10, 6 month, 1682-3. R'd Lundy by Ind'r dated 8, 7 month, 1683, Granted the Said Land to Jacob Telnor." See Pennsylvania Archives, Second Series, vol. xix., page 359.

He came to the Delaware river in 1682; and, so far as the records show, he seems to have made his first purchase of land in 1684; hence it is surprising to find the name of Richard Lundy on a map of that river dated 1681. It is suggested that the map may have been at first an outline sketch, and that the names of new-comers who took up land may have been inserted afterward. Mr. W. J. Buck in his history of Bucks county names Richard Lundy among the original owners of land in Bristol township.

There was at that time living in Falls township a widow, Rebecca Bennet, with her four unmarried daughters, Elizabeth, Rebecca, Sarah, and Ann. William Bennet, the father, then recently deceased, had left by will to each of his girls £30 in money and 200 acres of land. Richard Lundy I. and Elizabeth Bennet were married by Friends' ceremony on 20 of 8 month, 1684. On 22 of 2 month, 1685, Elizabeth attended the wedding of Joseph English and Joan Comly and signed their marriage certificate as one of the witnesses.

Richard I. owns a farm now and has a wife; of course, he ought to keep a cow or two. And he did; even that is a matter of record, for he is described as an "owner of cattle." Very little land was fenced in; it all lay out to the common. The early settlers allowed their live stock to roam at large through the woods and browse on the natural grass. Sometimes the cattle would stray far away and be gone a long time; and in some cases it would be difficult for the owner to recognize his cattle and prove his right of property thereto to the satisfaction of neighbors or strangers; and therefore each settler, before he turned his cows and calves loose for the summer, marked each of them plainly. He cut their ears in a certain way, or else he took a red-hot iron and blistered them on the shoulder leaving a permanent scar in the shape of a letter, criss-cross or other character. Marks thus made were easily seen and recognized, and could be described with accuracy. Only one thing was yet necessary for the successful working of this system of identification; and that was that no two owners should use the same mark. To this end, a registrar was appointed for the whole county, whose duty it was to keep in a book a list of all cattle owners with the marks used by each.. Indeed, the law of the province expressly declared that all cattle whatsoever of a year old and upwards should be accopted strays which were not marked on the ear or otherwise with a brand mark.

The book of registered cattle-marks for Bucks county was kept by Phineas Pemberton at Penn's Manor, and bears the date 1684; this realistic relic of pioneer life is still in existence, and may be seen at the library of the Pennsylvania Historical Society in Philadelphia. It is twelve inches long by four wide, contains about forty pages and is margined with a thumb index. The title on the outside of the parchment cover is "A Record of the Eare and Brand Marks for Bucks in Pennsylvania." The book contains one hundred five sets of ear-marks arranged six on a page; and among them is the cattle-mark of Richard the First, which is here reproduced.

EAR-MARK FOR CATTLE, REGISTERED IN 1684
BY RICHARD LUNDY I. OF BUCKS CO., PA.

The outline sketch or drawing represents the forehead and ears of a cow as she would stand facing her owner. The left ear half way down on the lower edge has a slit cut in; the right ear has a slit downward at the point, and is also cropped with a half-penny undercut. Neither ear-tip is cropped. The original drawings are not without a touch of the picturesque; all the natural outline is in black, but all slits and the margins of all crops are penciled in red as though fresh-cut.

A law requiring the enrollment of all emigrants was enacted at New Castle, on the 10th day of the 3rd month, 1684, by the Governor and the Provincial Council and Assembly; and the said law is herewith quoted in full as printed on page 170 in a volume entitled "The Charter of William Penn and Laws of the Province of Pennsylvania passed between the years 1682-1700."

"Chap. CLXIII. That there be a Registry kept of all free-man, as well as servants, that already are, or from time to time shall come, into this Province and territories not already registered; to which end all persons inhabiting therein are hereby required at or before the first day of the fifth month next ensuing, and afterwards all that shall henceforward come to inhabit in any County within this Government within three months after arrival to deliver in the names of his or her family, male and female, old and young, unto the Register of the respective Counties where hee, shee or they inhabit, To be by him registered in a book or bookes for that purpose with their ages as neer as may be and where they were born; or from what part of Europe or other parts they came; From whom the said Register respectively shall have and demand no more than Three pence a peece. And if any person refuse or neglect to bring in the names of his or her or their families to be registered as aforesaid, within the time aforesaid, he shall for the said offence forfeit five shillings a head."

Let us now turn to the register-book that was opened and kept in Bucks county as directed by the foregoing law. Four of the entries found in it have a bearing on the history of the Lundy family and are given herewith.

"James Harrison of Bolton in the County of Lancaster, aged about 57 years, Shoemaker, and Ann his wife, aged about 61 years, Sailed from Liverpool, for this province in the ship the "Submission" of Liverpool, the M'r., James Settle, the 5th of the 7th Mo., 1682, and arrived at Choptank in Maryland the 21st 9th Mo. following, being brought thither through the dishonesty of the master, and arrived at Apoquinemene in this province the 15th of the 11th Mo. following"; and then the record enumerates five persons who accompanied James and Ann Harrison, namely: Agnes Harrison, aged 81 years, mother of James; Phebe, daughter of James Harrison and wife of Phineas Pemberton; Robert Bond, Alice Dickerson, and Jane Lyon. James Harrison was a minister in the Religious Society of Friends; he was the steward of William Penn and had charge of Penn's mansion and manor in Bucks county.

“William Bennet of Hammondsworth [Hammondsworth, near Longford] in the County of Middlesex, yeoman, and Rebecca his wife, arrived in this river 9th Mo., 1683, in the ship the “Jeffrey” of London. The Mr. Thomas Arnold.”

“Richard Lundy, of Axminster in the County of Devon, son of Sylvester Lundy of the said town in old England, came in a Catch from Bristol (the Mr. William Browne) for Boston in New England, in the 6th Mo., 1676, and from thence came for this river [Delaware] the 19th of the 3d Mo., 1682.”

“Elizabeth Bennet, daughter of William Bennet late of the County of Bucks, and now wife to the aforesaid Richard Lundy, came from Longford in the County of Middlesex, in the ship the “Concord” of London. The Mr. William Jeffrey, Arrived in this river the 8th Mo., 1683.”

And then a few lines further down in the original record, a private memorandum by the Register of Bucks county is found, which reads: “I have given C. Taylor an acct. thus far, 1st 3d Mo., 1686.” Hence we conclude that the original entries just quoted concerning Richard Lundy and Elizabeth Bennet his wife, must have been made subsequently to the date of their marriage, 20 of 8 month, 1684, and prior to 1 of 3 month, 1686, the day on which the Register of Bucks county certified that he had furnished an official transcript to Christopher Taylor, the Register-General of the Province. Whether or not the original register-book for Bucks county is yet in existence, is not known; but the Historical Society of Pennsylvania has in its possession a certified copy of the original. In 1885, the whole record was published in the Pennsylvania Magazine of History and Biography, under the heading “A Partial List of the Families who Resided in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, Prior to 1687, with the Date of their Arrival”; see Vol. IX., pp. 223-234.

If there be no confusion concerning the names of ships and masters, William Bennet and his daughter Elizabeth came from England about the same time but in different vessels; but it is possible that the names of ship and master were incorrectly reported from memory. The ship “Submission” had been two months and sixteen days in crossing the ocean; two months’ time was in those days deemed a prosperous voyage; and the two weeks extra in this case were caused by unfavorable weather, which was the captain’s excuse for landing his passengers in Maryland. It may be remarked that the age of Richard Lundy is unfortunately omitted from the Register-book, and that Richard had not enrolled himself within the time-limit set by the statute, and hence had rendered himself technically liable to the forfeiture of five shillings for neglect.

Elizabeth (Bennet) Lundy, wife of Richard Lundy I., was buried on 14 of 6 month, 1687, less than three years after her marriage. A record of births and deaths among Friends was kept from 1682 to 1711; only one Lundy burial is entered therein, that of Elizabeth herself; and no Lundy birth is recorded prior to 1692. The absence of a record of the birth of any Lundy child would seem to indicate that Elizabeth left no issue; but, on the other hand, John Lundy of Bucks county, concerning whom we will speak fully a few pages further on, may have been her son.

In 1688, William Penn confirmed to Richard Lundy a tract of land containing one thousand acres situate in Buckingham township, Bucks county, Pa. It was a fine piece of property fronting a mile on the old York Road, well-watered, embracing primeval forest and a lovely valley of unsurpassed fertility. An early survey of certain portions of Buckingham township is still extant and bears date 1703; a map of it, published by Gen. W. H. H. Davis in his History of Bucks County, shows a rectangular block of land inscribed as follows:

"Rich'd Lundy	1025 A
Laid out for	1000 A"

Adjoining tracts were owned by Edmund Kinsey and Thomas Bye on the east, by Jno. Reynolds on the south, and by John Smith on the west. The middle point of a straight north-and-south line joining Easton and Philadelphia marks approximately the position of the Lundy plantation in Bucks county. The village of Buckingham is seven miles from the Delaware river, and is about twenty-five miles south of Easton and the same distance north of Philadelphia.

When and how was this tract disposed of? Only a partial answer can be given.

Thomas Canby is said to have bought a part of a Lundy tract near Centreville in 1693; and James Lenox is said to have purchased, some years after this, 400 acres of land from Richard Lundy. The Lundy tract was near the recently-established post-office named Holicong, and is now owned by the Paxsons, Elys and others. Richard Lundy owned land in Bristol-borough, Bucks county, in 1706; and Watson's map showing owners of land in 1726 places the name of Richard Lundy on a tract along the Delaware river near the Penn Manor.

In the fourth year after the death of his first wife, Richard Lundy I. married again. His second wife was Jane Lyon, the Quaker maiden previously mentioned as having come to America with the family of James Harrison. They were married at the Falls Monthly Meeting in Bucks county, Pa., on 24 of 4 mo. (June), 1691; and to them there was born in Bucks county on 20th day of 3rd month, 1692, a son Richard, designated in this genealogy as Richard Lundy II., who married Elizabeth Large, settled finally in Warren county, N. J., and there died on 28th of 2nd month, 1772. We now quote from the minutes of the Buckingham Monthly Meeting two sentences relating to the marriage of Richard Lundy I. and Jane Lyon. The minutes of a Meeting held in Falls township on the 1st day of the 2nd month, 1691, state that "Richard Lundy and Jane Lyon proposed their intentions of taking each other in marriage; it being the first time, the meeting appoints John Cook and Joseph Kirkbride to inquire concerning his clearness and give an account to the next meeting"; and the minutes of a meeting held at the house of Henry Baker on the 6th day of 3rd month, 1691, state that "Joseph Kirkbride relates that he hath made inquiry concerning Richard Lundy and finds nothing but that he may proceed with Jane Lyon; Richard Lundy and Jane Lyon proposed their intentions of taking each other in marriage; it being the second time and nothing appearing but that both parties are clear, the meeting leaves them to their liberty to accomplish the same."

We insert here a literal copy of the marriage certificate of Richard Lundy I. and Jane Lyon:

Richard Lundy of ye County of Bucks & province of Pennsylvania, husbandman, and Jane Lyon of ye Aforesaid County & province, spinster, having intentions of taking each other in marriage, did publish their said intentions according to law as also did declare them before severall publique meetings of ye people of god called Quakers whose proceedings therein, after deliberat consideration and consent of partys concerned, were Aproved by ye meetings; Therefore these may certifie all whom it may concerne that on ye 24th day of ye ffourth mo., 1691, they ye said Richard Lundy and Jane Lyon Apeared in a pub-

The certificate given above was transcribed by me from an old book now in the possession of the Middletown (Hicksite) Society of Friends, entitled "The Quarterly Meeting Record for Marriage Certificates in Bucks County, Beginning in the year 1683." In looking over the list of witnesses present at the wedding, it may be noted that not one among them, so far as is known, was of kin by blood to either the bride or the groom. Rebecca Williams, formerly Mrs. William Bennet, was the mother, and Ann and Sarah Bennet were the sisters, of Richard's first wife.

Jane Lyon was born in England in April, 1666; she was sixteen years old when she came to America, and twenty-five years old when she married Richard. The ship "Submission" which she came in set sail on 5 of 7 month, 1682, and arrived in Chesapeake bay, Maryland, on 21 of 9 month, 1682.

A comparison of dates shows that the ship "Welcome" bearing William Penn on his first visit to America, was crossing the Atlantic ocean during this very time. Some of the passengers on disembarking from the "Submission" remained in the Choptank, Maryland; but others, including those with whom Jane had come, soon removed to Bucks county, Pa.

So it appears that Richard and Jane, not knowing of each other's existence, reached the land of William Penn within a year of each other, he by way of Delaware bay from New England, and she by way of Chesapeake bay from Old England.

"The Harrison and Pemberton families," says Watson in his Annals of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania in the Olden Time, Vol. I., page 47. "came over together among 50 passengers in the ship "Submission," Capt. James Settle, from Liverpool. The terms of passage were £4 5s. for all persons over twelve years of age, for all children £2 2s. 6d., and for all goods, £30 per ton. Their contract was 'to proceed to Delaware river or elsewhere in Pennsylvania to the best conveniency of freighters.' It may serve to know the execution of such voyages to learn that by distress of weather they were landed in the 'Potuxen River in Maryland' whence they came to Philadelphia and proceeded thence to Pennsbury neighborhood [Falls township, Bucks county], where they settled and occupied places of distinguished trust. When James Harrison and his son-in-law, Phineas Pemberton, first entered Philadelphia on horseback, from Choptank in Maryland, the latter records that at that time

(Nov., 1682), they could not procure entertainment there for their horses; 'they therefore spancelled them [by leathern hopples, I presume] and turned them out in the woods! They sought them next morning in vain, and after two days' search [think what a wide range they must have enjoyed] they were obliged to take a boat to proceed up the river to Bucks county. One of those horses was not found till the succeeding January!'

Although the records indicate that Richard Lundy I. was at an early day the owner of real estate situate in the township of Buckingham, the numerous references to Richard, found on the minutes of the Falls Monthly Meeting between 1693 and 1701, prove that he and his wife resided during that period in Falls township.

The last occurrence that I observed of the name of Richard Lundy I. on the minutes of the Falls Monthly Meeting was in 1701. The record for the 4th month of that year says: "Agreed that Joseph Kirkbride and Edmund Lovet and Richard Lundy endeavor to find a spring near the meeting house and, if they find one, get it opened and cleaned"; and two months later, it is stated that "the friends who were appointed to seek for a spring do say that they have searched, and cannot find one above the ground that is convenient to the meeting house."

Jane Lyon had come to the New World unaccompanied by her parents, and she was therefore entitled, according to the homestead law of the colony, to fifty acres of land. At last, Richard I. applied to the Board of Property of the Province of Pennsylvania for the head-land of his wife, Jane Lyon.

In the Pennsylvania Archives, second series, vol. xix., page 643, under date of 18 of 1 month, 1717-18, we find that Richard Lundy, of the County of Bucks, had made it appear by the evidence of Joseph Mather that Richard's present wife (then Jane Lyon) came into this province with the families of Phineas Pemberton and James Harrison, and that Jane was entitled to head-land which had never yet been laid out; and therefore Richard now desired it might be granted, which was complied with; and a warrant was signed, dated 10, 9ber, 1718.

Richard Lundy I. was living in 1734; on the 8 day of 8th month in that year, his granddaughter, Mary Lundy, was married to Robert Willson at Plumstead, and among the witnesses were Richard Lundy (the bride's father), Richard Lundy (the bride's brother, aged nineteen), and Richard Lundy, senior (the bride's grandfather, who had been in America fifty-eight years).

"Richard Lundy, Senior," presented to the Exeter Monthly Meeting in Berks County, Pa., on 24 of 9 month, 1737, a certificate of membership from the Buckingham Monthly Meeting; this is probably Richard Lundy I.; and it is the last time that he is mentioned on the minutes. The said certificate contains no reference to his wife Jane; hence it may be inferred that she had died previous to that date. Richard Lundy I. probably died at Maiden creek, Berks county, Pa., about 1738; his name is not found among the witnesses to the marriage certificate of his grandson in 1739.

Many years thereafter, a testimonial concerning their son, which was publicly approved by the Kingwood Monthly Meeting and signed by order of said Meeting at Hardwick the 13th of 8th month, 1772, mentions Richard and Jane Lundy as "Professors of the Truth with us," a statement which shows that Richard and Jane continued to walk in the plain and peaceful ways of the Society of Friends and died in that religious faith.

The life of Richard Lundy, the Founder, has now been presented as fully as it is possible to do from the scattered and detached references to him which have been discovered; but we must return to the question of how many children he had. There was a certain John Lundy of Bucks county, Pa., and there was also a Margaret Lundy of the same place, possibly John's wife. Was this John Lundy a son of Richard Lundy, the Founder? This question cannot be answered conclusively from the scant evidence which has thus far been discovered. I will now state all the facts that are known concerning this John Lundy.

John Lundy and Margaret Lundy were witnesses to the certificate of Richard Lundy and Elizabeth Large, who were married in the township of Buckingham on 3rd day of 4th month, 1714, Margret's name standing immediately below John's, that being the usual order of signature for husband and wife; and the names of John and Margret appear in the list just after those of the near kinsmen of the bride.

A petition was presented in March, 1725, to the Court of Quarter Sessions of Bucks county, Pa., for the erection of a new township; and among those who signed this petition were John Lundy and Richard Lundy, Jr.

The name of John Lundy appears among the witnesses to the marriage certificate of Mary Lundy and Robert Willson, which is dated at Plumstead, Bucks county, Pa., 8 of 8 month, 1734; and the name of Margret Lundy is among the witnesses to the marriage of Richard Lundy III. and Ann Willson at Buckingham, Bucks county, Pa., on 10 of 8 month, 1739.

"John Lundy and Richard Lundy, Jr.," says Gen. W. H. H. Davis in his History of Bucks County, "were among the original settlers of Solebury Township."

In the library of the Pennsylvania Historical Society at Philadelphia, there is a manuscript history of the townships of Buckingham and Solebury by John Watson; and it is stated therein that a number of Friends came from Long Island in 1705 and in the list are given the names of John and Richard Lundy. Without questioning the fact of a Quaker migration from Long Island, we know that Watson's statement concerning Richard Lundy is erroneous, and it is possible that his statement concerning John Lundy is also erroneous.

On 14 day of 1 month, 1751, a certain John Lundy presented to the Kingwood M. M. in Hunterdon county, N. J., a certificate of membership from the Gwynedd M. M. in Montgomery county, Pa. Query—Was John of Gwynedd identical with John of Bucks? Such are the facts. In the absence of further data, it is natural to suppose that John Lundy was a son of Richard Lundy I. by his first wife, Elizabeth Bennet. But this is a mere assumption; there is no proof. John's birth is not found of record; but the matter of registration might easily have been neglected amid the grief and changes attendant on Elizabeth's death in 6 month, 1687, in the third year after her marriage.

RICHARD LUNDY THE SECOND.

He was the son of Richard and Jane (Lyon) Lundy, and grandson of Sylvester Lundy of Axminster. He was born in Bucks county, Pa., on the 20th day of the 3rd month (May), 1692; and died on the 28 day of the 2nd month (February), 1772, in the 80th year of his age, in the township of Allamuchy, County of Warren, N. J. He was buried in the yard of the Hardwick Society of Friends on the bank of the Pequest river.

Richard Lundy II. lived during his childhood and youth, with his parents, near the Friends' meeting-house in Falls township; his home was not far from the mansion of William Penn, so that this first American-born Lundy, when a lad of eight or nine years, must frequently have seen and sometimes heard the great Quaker statesman; for Penn lived at the mansion during his second visit to America in 1700-01 and was a regular attendant at the little meeting-house for worship, and there, too, sometimes lifted up his voice in prayer and exhortation.

Richard Lundy II. and Elizabeth Large, daughter of Joseph Large of Bucks county, Pa., were married on 3 of 4 month, 1714.

Two extracts are given herewith from the records of the Falls Monthly Meeting, Bucks county, Pa. :
7th of 2 mo., 1714.

“Richard Lundy, Junior, and Elizabeth Large proposed their intentions of marriage; it being the first time, this meeting doth appoint Joseph Fell and William Lacy to inquire into his clearness and conversation and make report to next meeting.”

5th of 3 mo., 1714.

“Richard Lundy and Elizabeth Large proposed their intentions of marriage; it being the second time, and nothing appearing to obstruct they are left to their liberty to proceed according to truth, therefore this meeting doth appoint Thomas Bye and Joseph Fell to see it orderly accomplished.”

The Marriage Certificate of Richard Lundy II. and Elizabeth Large is given in the Record of Marriages for Hardwick and Randolph Monthly Meeting, Warren and Morris counties, New Jersey; it is the first certificate that was filed and copied, and begins on page one:—

Here our genealogical tree divides into many branches; but, before considering that question, it will be well to string together such scattered items concerning the parents themselves as have been culled from various sources.

Richard and Elizabeth lived for twenty-three years (1714-1737) in Bucks county, Pa.; and then for ten years (1737-1747) at Maiden Creek in Berks county, Pa.; and then (1747, until their deaths) in the township of Allamuchy, Warren county, N. J. The dates of removal are accurately determined from the certificate of membership given to them on each occasion by the Friends' meeting.

They dwelt at first in Buckingham township, which is in the centre of Bucks county. Being at an inconvenient distance from any meeting-house, Richard and those Friends who had settled near him applied to the Falls Monthly Meeting for permission to organize a new Society; their request was granted on 24 of 9 month, 1720, and they built the meeting-house at Buckingham that same year.

The first entry in their book of minutes is dated 6 of 10 month, 1720; and the first pages are taken up almost exclusively by a long account of the efforts made by the Society at its monthly meetings to adjust a dispute between Christopher Topham and Richard Lundy II. concerning a bond and a book-debt.

Richard and his family soon moved to Plumstead, which was seven miles to the northwest. This was in 1724; for in the Buckingham minutes of that year, 2 of 10 month Richard Lundy, Junior, is alluded to as "now being Removed Ffar of." The location of their new home is indicated on an old map of that vicinity, drawn March 11, 1724, which places Richard's land in the southwestern part of the present township of Plumstead. Among the petitioners to the Court of Quarter Sessions in March, 1725, for the erection of a new township were John Lundy and Richard Lundy, Jr.

Here Richard was again active in organizing a new Society of Friends; and as a result the Plumstead Preparative meeting was established as a branch of the Buckingham monthly meeting. By this we understand that the Friends living in the vicinity of Plumstead were still enrolled at Buckingham and constituted a part of that monthly meeting; but that, in consideration of their distance away they were permitted to hold meetings for worship at Plumstead in private dwellings at first until they grew strong enough to build a meeting-house. In 1730 they bought a lot and put up a log meeting-house; the deed for the land is dated January the 19th, and the trustees named therein are Richard Lundy II., William Michener, Josiah Dyer and Joseph Dyer. At a monthly meeting held on 7th of 11 month, 1728-9, Josiah Dyer and Ehester Browne declared their intentions of marriage; and the meeting appointed William Michenor and Richard Lundy [II.], Junior, to make inquiry into the s'd Josiah's clearness, which they did, and in due time reported "nothing to obstruct." On 4 of 4 month, 1729, Richard Lundy [II.], Jr., made a complaint before the Falls Monthly Meeting against a member for detaining a just debt; and two months later, Richard was left to his liberty to recover his money as the law directs.

The statements copied below are taken from the records of the Monthly Meeting:

5th of 3 mo., 1735, at Buckingham.

"Richard Lundy [II.], Junior, requested a certificate for himself, wife, and family to Gwynodd Monthly Meeting in order to join themselves thereto."

6th of 8 mo., 1735.

"This meeting appoints Cephaz Child to serve as an Elder in the place of Richard Lundy, for Plumstead Meeting. At this meeting those friends that were appointed to inquire into Richard Lundy's clearance report that they find nothing to hinder his having a certificate; they also brought one according to the order of the meeting which was read and ordered to be signed by the clerk in behalf of the meeting."

3rd of 9 mo., 1735.

"This meeting appoints Lawrence Pearson and Joseph Brown as overseers in room of Richard Lundy and William Michenor for Plumstead Meeting."

Richard Lundy II. and his family seem to have lived in Berks county for ten years.

Their home is said to have been at Maiden Creek, which is about ten miles north of the city of Reading and about midway between the rivers Delaware and Susquehanna. Maiden Creek is the name of a village, of a township and of a stream of water.

Those members of Friends' Society who lived at Maiden Creek were at first under the jurisdiction of the Gwynedd Monthly Meeting in Montgomery county, Pa.; but in 1737 the Exeter Monthly Meeting was established in Berks county, and Friends living at Maiden Creek were assigned to the new meeting.

For more than sixty years, 1682-1744, the Quakers held control of the Pennsylvania legislative assembly, and, of course, no military measures were taken to protect the people against the Indians. This caused great dissatisfaction to the non-Quaker element of the population, who succeeded in electing a majority of the legislature, and in 1747 passed a law permitting volunteer military organizations to be formed. This first serious blow at Quaker predominance marks the year in which the Lundy households removed to New Jersey.

During Fifth month, 1747, Richard Lundy II. removed from Berks county, Pa., and settled in the valley of the Pequest river, at the upper end of the Great Meadows, in what is now Allamuchy township, Warren county, N. J. In his new home he was far away from any organized Society of Friends; and so his certificate of membership was addressed to a Friends' Society in Hunterdon county, N. J., a meeting which has borne during its long history three different official titles—Bethlehem, Kingwood and Quakertown.

On 25 of 4 month, 1747, he had requested from the Exeter Monthly Meeting a certificate for himself and family to the Bethlehem Monthly Meeting, N. J.; and the women's records of the same place and date show that Elizabeth Lundy had applied for a certificate to Bethlehem "jointly with her husband and children"; and an entry on the Exeter minutes dated 30 of 5 month, 1747, states that Elizabeth Lundy had removed with her husband to Bethlehem. Richard and Elizabeth and their minor children became members of the Bethlehem Meeting on presentation of their certificate on 8 of 8 month, 1747. Four of Richard and Elizabeth's children of mature age had previously settled at the Great Meadows.

At a Council of New Jersey held at Burlington 28 March, 1749, Richard Lundy was nominated as a justice of the peace for the County of Morris, which was assented to by the Council.—N. J. Archives, Vol. XVI., page 91.

On 8th of 4 month, 1749, Richard Lundy, Sr., was appointed an Elder of the meeting at Great Meadows by the Kingwood Monthly Meeting, N. J.. On 11 of 4 month, 1754, Josiah Dyer, Richard Lundy, Senior, and Samuel Schooley were appointed by the Kingwood Monthly Meeting to pay religious visits to the families of Friends belonging to Hardwick branch.

There is a series of books, twelve in number, entitled Friends' Miscellany, the eighth volume of which, page 349, gives a short history of the Kingwood and Hardwick Monthly Meeting, wherein it is stated that Daniel Stanton and Joshua Emlen, two traveling Quaker preachers, visited Friends in those parts in 1764, and that they had a large meeting at Kingwood to edification and comfort, and that they went "thence to Richard Lundy's at the Great Meadows and had a meeting at his house, where was a number of tender hearted youth and others."

The patriarchal Richard was now nearing the close of a long and well-spent life, and his heart rejoiced when he saw the goodly number and promising character of his descendants, so many of whom had gathered there on this occasion for public worship. In the course of conversation, Richard spoke to Daniel Stanton and said, "I have seventy children and grandchildren; and some of them are valuable Friends." Zeal and devotion to his religion led Richard Lundy II. to accept all appointments to attend the meetings of his Society. The monthly meetings were held alternately at Kingwood (now Quakertown), and Hardwick, the quarterly meetings at Burlington, N. J.; and the yearly meetings at Philadelphia. These were no light undertakings, considering the distances, the condition of the roads, and the modes of traveling in use at that time.

“Kingwood Monthly Meeting’s Testimony concerning our ancient Friend and Elder Richard Lundy :

“He was son of Richard and Jane Lundy of Bucks Co., Pa., Professors of the truth with us, born the 20th of the 3rd mo., 1692. He was a man much esteemed amongst Friends and others, being of a meek and quiet spirit, exemplary in life and conversation and a pattern of plainness and simplicity, diligent in attending meetings for worship and discipline, duly observing the hour appointed, and in contribution for the service thereof gave freely according to his ability. He often gave up to attend monthly, quarterly and yearly meetings with great willingness even in his declining years until the indisposition of his wife rendered that service impracticable. He was an affectionate husband, a tender father and a kind friend, punctual and just in his dealings among men, evidencing to the world that he was concerned to do to others as he would have them do to him. His house was freely opened for those who travelled in the work of the ministry whose company he greatly valued, and often cheerfully travelled with such as a guide to other meetings.

He lived in the fear of the Lord and was much concerned that love and unity might be maintained among Friends, and deeply affected when anything of a contrary nature arose to obstruct it. In his last illness, which was but short, he entirely refused the help of any physician, signifying his resignation to the Divine will, whether in life or death, and continued in a patient frame of mind when sensible, till his departure, which was on the 28th of the 2nd mo., 1772, aged near eighty years; and though our loss is great, we are comforted in the hope that he is gone to inherit the crown immortal which is laid up for all those who love and fear the Lord.

He was decently buried in Friends’ burying ground at Hardwick the 29th of the same, attended by a large number of Friends and others,

Signed by order of said meeting at Hardwick the 13th day of the 8th mo., 1772. By

JACOB SMITH, Clerk.”

CHAS. PETTIT, Reg.

In the preceding pages, I have arranged in chronological order and presented to the reader many passages gathered from Friends' records and from other trustworthy sources, relating to Richard Lundy I. and Richard Lundy II. Especially to be prized are those extracts which bear witness to moral worth and religious character; but even those which may seem at first to be unimportant serve at least one purpose exceedingly well—they enable us to locate our Lundy forefathers during their first century in America with a definiteness and exactness in regard to time and place that is very satisfactory. Anecdotes might impart interest to the narrative; but names and places and dates are the things that produce conviction and prove that the introductory sketches of the Lundy family have been determined with historical certainty.

THE CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN OF
RICHARD LUNDY II. AND ELIZABETH LARGE.

There were five sons and four daughters. All were born in Bucks county, Pennsylvania, between the years 1715 and 1732. All had birthright membership in the Religious Society of Friends; all finished their course and kept the faith. They all married; and, with the possible exception of Margaret the youngest child, all left offspring and have numerous descendants living at the present time. They all settled in Warren county, New Jersey, between the years 1745 and 1748; this was before the French and Indian War, and Warren county was a part of Sussex. All continued to dwell there in the vicinity of Johnsonburg and Allamuchy, and all died there, except Martha (Lundy) Schooley, who, in 1759, removed to Newton only ten miles away.. Richard III. died in 1756 at 41 years of age, Joseph in 1759 at 40 years, Margaret in 1766 at 34, Thomas in 1773 or thereafter at 48 or more, Jacob in 1800 at 79, Samuel in 1801 at 74, Martha in 1803 at 80, Mary in 1807 at 91, and Elizabeth in 1811 at 81. Their average age was sixty-two years.

How many grandchildren were there?

A full and correct list of the names of all children born to each family has been obtained, except in the case of Joseph and of Margaret. Richard III. had eleven children, Mary eight, Jacob ten, Martha five, Thomas six, Samuel twelve, and Elizabeth twelve, making a total of sixty-four grandchildren in these seven households. It is known with certainty that Joseph had at least one child, giving a total of sixty-five known grandchildren.

I. Richard Lundy III. was born 23 of 4th month, 1715; his death date is given at the bottom of the first page of the Hardwick Record of Births in these words: "The above-named Richard Lundy Departed this Life the 7th of the 11th Month, 1757, and was Decently Buryed in Friends burying ground at Hardwick."

He married Ann Willson at Maiden Creek, Pa., in 1739, and settled near Allamuchy, Warren county, N. J., in 1746. Ten of his eleven children grew to maturity; namely, Samuel, William, Amos, Sarah (Kester), Richard IV., Ann (Webster), Ebenezer, John, Eliezer, and Azariah. Samuel and William removed to Canada; Samuel locating near Newmarket and William at Lundy's Lane; Ebenezer and Eliezer settled in Bucks county, Pa.; and Amos, Sarah, Richard IV., John, and the family of Azariah emigrated to Virginia.

The names of all the descendants of Richard III., so far as it has been possible to trace and identify the same, have been classified in the accompanying genealogy under Group One.

II. Mary Lundy was born 6 of 11 month, 1716. The first entry in the list of Burials kept by the Hardwick Society of Friends states that "Mary Willson, widow of Robert Willson, deceased, and lately residing in the Township of Independence, County of Sussex, N. J., died 3 month 4 day, 1807, at the age of ninety years, and was buried at Hardwick Meeting-house." Mary was an Elder in the Religious Society of Friends. She married Robert Willson at Buckingham, Pa., in 1734. They removed to Maiden Creek, Pa., in 1737, and thence to the great Meadows in Warren county, N. J., in 1747. Their homestead is still in the Willson name (1901). They had eight children, five of whom attained maturity and married; namely, Ebenezer, Jonathan, Mary (Willets), Moses, and Martha (Widdifield). Their descendants are enumerated under Group Two.

III. Joseph Lundy was born 24 of 4 month, 1719. There is reason to believe that he died in 1759. He married Susanna Hutton at Maiden Creek, Berks county, Pa., in 1743, and removed to Warren county, N. J., in 1745. Joseph and Susanna certainly had a son Enos of Newmarket, Ontario, Canada, and probably other children among whom may have been William of Newton, N. J., and Sarah (Carpenter) of Pennsylvania. In 1758 a Joseph Lundy married Sarah Willson. It is possible that among Joseph's children were also Nancy Lundy, Catherine Lundy, and Hannah Lundy, who married Samuel Shotwell of Sussex county, N. J. For further information, see Group Three.

IV. Jacob Lundy was born 15 of 6 month, 1721. An old entry made on the inside of the first cover-leaf of the Hardwick Record of Births, opposite the entry of his birth date, states that "Jacob Lundy departed this Life the 17th day of the 1st Month, 1800, and was Decently buried in Friends Burying ground at Hardwick the 18th of the same." He removed from Maiden Creek, Pa., to Warren county, N. J., in 1745. He married Mary Willson in 1748. Four of their ten children are known to have married and left descendants; namely, Jacob II., Mary (Schmuck), Jonathan, and Deborah (Dennis); consult Group Four.

V. Martha Lundy was born 1 of 6 month, 1723. An entry in an old Bible now in the possession of Mr. Benjamin D. Schooley of Newton, N. J., states that "Martha Schooley, wife of Benjamin Schooley, was taken sick on the 15th day of the seventh month eighteen hundred and three, and died on the eleventh day of the ninth month following. Age eighty years and about one month." Entry number 17 in the Hardwick Record of Burials says that "Martha Schooley, daughter of Richard Lundy, and a late resident of Sussex county, N. J., died 9th Month, the eleventh, 1803, and was buried at Newton." Martha married Benjamin Schooley in 1755 and settled at Newton, Sussex county, N. J., about 1760. Four of their five children married; namely, Elizabeth (White), Ann (Dennis), Joseph, and Martha (Phillips). Their descendants so far as known are given in Group Five.

VI. Thomas Lundy was born 14 of 6 month, 1725. The date of his death has not been ascertained; he was living in 1772. In 1745 he removed from Maiden Creek, Pa., to Warren county, N. J., and in 1750 married Joanna Doan. They had six children, who married and left descendants; namely, Susanna (Parker), Reuben of Columbia county, Pa., Ephraim of Lycoming county, Pa., Thomas II. of North Carolina, Joseph of Sussex county and of Rancocas, Burlington county, N. J., and Elizabeth (Bunting) of Warren county, N. J. The descendants of Thomas and Joanna are named under Group Six.

VII. Samuel Lundy was born 13 of 12 month, 1727. Entry No. 19 in the Hardwick Record of Burials states that "Samuel Lundy, son of Richard Lundy, and lately a resident of Sussex county, N. J., died on the 14th day of 2nd Month, 1801, at the age of seventy-four years, and was buried at Hardwick." He came to Warren county, N. J., with his parents in 1747. Samuel was a Judge of the Sussex County Court. He married (1) Ann Schooley in 1751, and (2) Sarah Willets in 1765. He had twelve children, three by his first wife and nine by his second; namely, Isaac, Daniel, George of Johnsonburg, N. J.; Ann (Patterson); Levi of Wyandotte county, Ohio; Edith (Laing); Samuel II. of Waterloo, Seneca county, N. Y.; Achsah (Laing); Jesse of Welland county, Ontario, Canada; Sarah (Lundy) of Allamuchy, N. J.; and Amy (Adams); and Tamer, who died in infancy. The various lines of descent from Judge Samuel Lundy are recorded in Group Seven.

VIII. Elizabeth Lundy was born 10 of 3 month, 1730. Entry No. 8 in the Hardwick Record of Burials states that "Elizabeth Willson widow of Gabriel Willson, and lately a resident of Sussex County, N. J., died 25th of 5th Month, 1811, at the age of eighty-one years, and was buried at Hardwick." Elizabeth married Gabriel Willson I. in 1748; they settled on the great meadows near Allamuchy, Warren county, N. J., and had twelve children, eight of whom grew to maturity and married; namely, Charity (Willets) of North Carolina, Elizabeth (Schooley) of North Carolina, Robert of Kentucky, Daniel of Welland county, Ontario, Canada, Gabriel II.; Ann (Vliet); Jesse of Welland county, Ontario, Canada; and Jeremiah of Indiana. Elizabeth (Lundy) Willson's descendants constitute Group Eight.

IX. Margaret Lundy was born 14 of 12 month, 1732, "and Departed this Life the — day of the 4th month, 1776, and was Decently buryed in Friends Burying ground at Hardwick"; the words in quotation marks are from the first page of the Hardwick Record of Births. She married John Willson, who was born 13 of 12 month, 1723, and who had removed from Maiden Creek, Pa., to New Jersey in 1745. Their marriage is recorded in the Kingwood minutes under date of 11th day of 8th month, 1750. No record of any children has been found. I copied the following from Wills, Liber. 14, page 409, in the office of the Secretary of State at Trenton, N. J.:

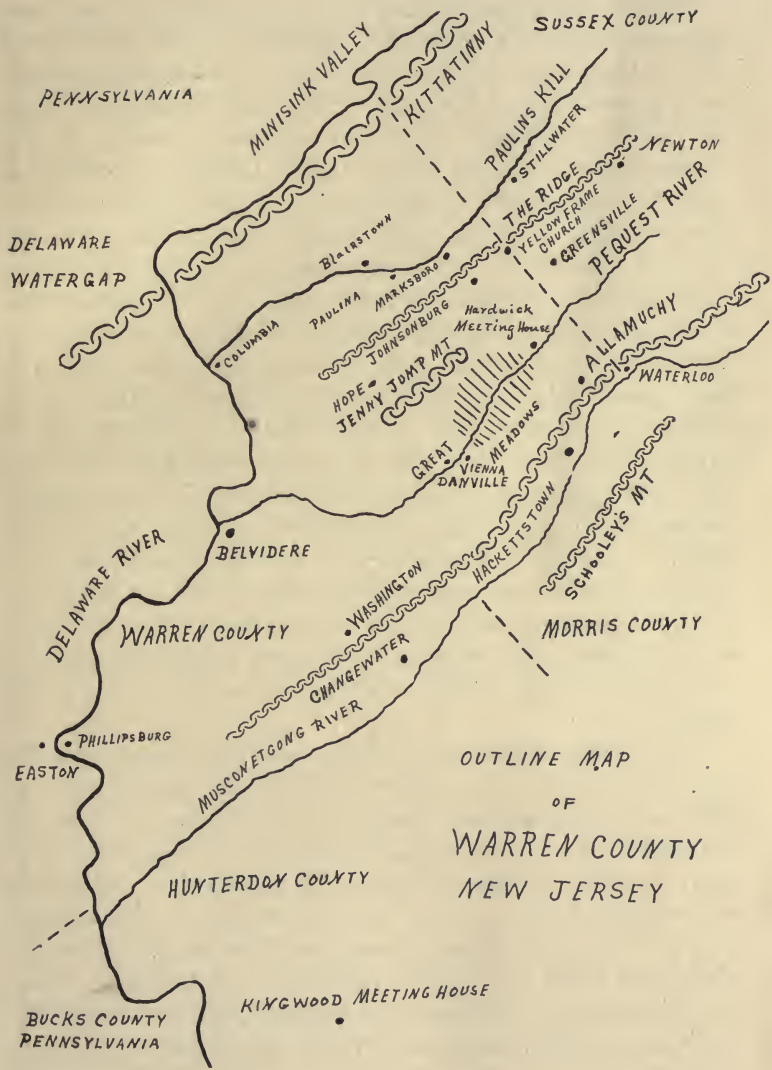

"Samuel Lundy's Account."

"Be it remembered that the account of Samuel Lundy, executor of John Willson, deceased, was settled and approved of before Robert Burchan, surrogate, and a quietus issued under the prerogative seal by which it appears there is remaining in his hands a balance of two hundred twenty-six pounds, fourteen, and seven pence. Dated the 27 of November, 1771. Chas. Pettit, Reg."

It may be remarked that four of the children of Richard and Elizabeth (Large) Lundy married four of the children of Samuel and Esther (Overton) Willson; to wit, Richard Lundy III. married Ann Willson, Mary Lundy married Robert Willson, Elizabeth Lundy married Gabriel Willson, and Margaret Lundy married John Willson; and it may be observed further that a sister and brother of this same Lundy household married a brother and sister of the Schooley family; to wit, Martha Lundy married Benjamin Schooley and Samuel Lundy married Ann Schooley, children of Samuel and Avis (Holloway) Schooley.

King Philip's War marks the coming of the Lundy's; the Revolutionary War marks the dispersal of the Lundy's. For one century the Lundy kith and kin clung together. During the last quarter of that century, 1746-1776, they all resided in New Jersey, in the valley of the Pequest river, within a radius of a few miles of the Friends' Meeting-house; they knew each other personally, and every father and mother of them could have told the exact relationship existing between all the households. But since that time, it has been "scatter, scatter, scatter." From Warren county, their last united home, they have gone north and south and west. Yet notwithstanding these continual losses by removal, the Lundy name has never ceased to be a familiar one in the old Quaker settlement on the Pequest.

In reading the documents of colonial times, it is important to bear in mind the changes that have been made in the boundaries of political divisions by the formation of new counties and townships. Hunterdon county was erected in 1713, and originally included Sussex and Warren; Morris was erected in 1738-9, and included Sussex and Warren; Sussex was organized in 1753, and included Warren, which was not separated from Sussex until 1824. The old township of Hardwick was erected by royal patent about 1713. Portion after portion has been cut off until the present township of Hardwick is only a remote corner of the wide area originally included under that ancient name. Independence was organized in 1782; and from Independence the borough of Hackettstown was cut off in 1853 and Allamuchy in 1873. Three other townships have been taken from Hardwick; namely, Green and Stillwater in 1824, and Frelinghuysen in 1848. Hardwick Patent has been the mother of townships.

WARREN COUNTY
NEW JERSEY

SKETCH-MAP OF WARREN COUNTY, NEW JERSEY.

THE PEQUEST VALLEY.

There is in the eastern part of North America a long, continuous, trough-like depression called the Great Appalachian Valley, beginning at Quebec in Canada and extending southward to the State of Alabama. It is one and the same valley throughout, although known in different sections of the country by various local names; thus in Canada it is called the valley of the Sorel River, in Vermont the valley of Lake Champlain, in New York the valley of the Hudson River (as far south as Newbergh), in Pennsylvania the Cumberland Valley, in Virginia the Shenandoah valley, and further southward the valley of the East Tennessee River. That part of this great depression which crosses New Jersey is forty miles long and twelve miles wide, and is called the Kittatinny Valley. It is bounded on the northwest by the Kittatinny Mountain, which extends from New York State to the Delaware Water Gap and rises from 1,500 to 1,800 feet above the level of the sea; and on the southeast by the Allamuchy Mountain, which rises to the height of 1,250 feet. The basin lying between these two parallel ranges is 600 feet below their crests; but it does not answer at all to the conventional idea of a river valley, for the surface is broken by numerous outcrops of limestone forming knolls from 40 to 80 feet high, which impart to it a rough, mountainous aspect.

The western end of the Kittatinny valley is drained into the Delaware river by two parallel streams—the Paulins Kill, 36 miles long, flowing from Augusta to Columbia, and having a drainage area of 177 square miles; and the Pequest river, 32 miles long, flowing from Pinkneyville to Belvidere and having an area of 158 square miles. Each stream has its own railroad line; the New York, Susquehanna and Western runs along the Kill; the Lehigh and Hudson runs along the Pequest. These two subvalleys are separated by a long rolling slate plateau, 300 feet high, running lengthwise through the middle of the valley and fitly named from its structure the Ridge. The views from the Ridge are magnificent; in one direction you look across the valley of the Pequest and see the Allamuchy Mountain; in the opposite direction, you look across the valley of the Paulins Kill and see the Kittatinny Mountain with its level crest notched by that wonderful work of nature, the Delaware Water Gap.

I have mentioned the rugged character of the Kittatinny valley; there is, however, one large level tract along the Pequest where the Jenny Jump, an isolated mass of Archaean rock 1,140 feet high, encroaches on the valley and makes it narrow, and right here across the narrow part lies a heavy dam of drift, a stiff clay intermixed with bowlders, dumped there, if we can credit the fairy tales of science, as a moraine by retreating glaciers during the Age of Ice. This obstacle caused the river to backwater, forming a shallow lake four miles long and two miles wide, which, in the course of geological time, was filled with sediment and other washed-in material. This is the Great Meadows, called so in colonial days, but now more distinctively named the Pequest Meadows. It is really a low swamp of peat-bogs and timber, too wet for cultivation and subject to overflow by freshets, the sluggish stream not being able to carry off the water poured into it so rapidly at times from the neighboring hillsides. But the land at the upper end of the swamp, being somewhat more elevated, makes choice farms with upland for grain and excellent meadows for hay and pasture. A straight line joining Johnsonburg and Allamuchy marks the upper edge of the Pequest Meadows, and there along the river is where the Quakers made their settlement and built their meeting-house.

Start from Johnsonburg and climb the long high hill till you reach the ridge road on the county line separating Sussex and Warren. Cross the green so that the Yellow Frame Church does not obstruct the view and gaze to the southeast. You are looking over a valley 400 feet deep and 6 miles wide. The horizon is bounded by a waving line formed by the rounded crests of the Allamuchy Mountain; you will notice that the snow-covered fields indicating cultivation spread over the flanks of the mountain and in some places creep far up toward the summit. A road branching off at the church turns down the hill and passes a large oak-tree, the tips of the branches of which reach above the sky-line.

Observe the row of nine apple-trees, beyond the fence, in the next field; over them see two fields partly mowed. The snow has settled down into the standing stubble which causes the unmowed portion to appear dark in strong contrast with its belt of pure white. The public road already mentioned, which re-appears and separates those two partly-mown fields, leads over the hill to Greenville, a village two and a half miles from the Yellow Frame, and a half mile beyond the crest of the hill. Near the village, Benjamin Lundy, the philanthropist, was born and bred. The farm buildings on the old estate of Job J. Shaw, now William Vough's, are plainly visible in the field to the right; and the minute lines on the further edge of the same field indicate a peach orchard. Along the mountain and above the partly-mown field to the left of the Greenville road, and marked in the picture by a dark patch a half inch long, may be seen the farm now owned and occupied by Henry Nelson and Rhoda (Decker) Lundy. This tract of timber which shows heavy and dark in the right of the picture and comparatively near the Yellow Frame is the Big Wood that extends from Johnsonburg to Dark Moon. The Tranquility Church is exactly in the middle of the picture from right to left; the gleam of the spire, which is easily seen by the eye from this hill, has left its impress on only a few of the pictures. The course of the Pequest river is clearly indicated by a narrow dark line nearly continuous extending from left to right across the entire picture, the dark line being caused by the trees and bushes along the banks of the stream. The little village of Allamuchy nestles at the foot of the distant mountain. It is six miles from where we are standing, and its position is shown on the plate by a dark patch one and a quarter inches from the top of the picture and three and three-eighths inches from the right edge. The tall cedar-trees that fringe the road that leads from Allamuchy upward and to the right across the mountain to Hackettstown are plainly indicated by a dark streak. The meeting-house of the Hardwick Society of Friends cannot be seen, but it stands close to the Pequest river and almost exactly in line between the Yellow Frame Church and Allamuchy. The level character of the land in the Quaker settlement presents no salient features for description. There is one thing more I wish to point out, and that is the sky-field. It looks like a piece of the sky, for it shows white and rests so high on the very top of the mountain. It is to the right of the oak limb, and one-fourth inch from the right-hand edge of the picture. That is not a patch of sky notching down into the mountain; it is a distinctive and ever-present feature of the landscape as viewed from the valley; it faces the dwelling of Judge Samuel Lundy and of George and Esther Lundy. Many a Willson and many a Lundy would recognize that high field as the land-mark of their childhood home, seen hundreds of times, clothed in green during spring-time and summer, but in winter snow-clad. And there it lies in the picture sparkling on the distant mountain top as natural as life.

THE HARDWICK SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

Public meetings for the worship of God were held at the Great Meadows in Warren county, N. J., as early as July, 1745. These meetings were held at private houses. The members of Friends' Society who dwelt at the Meadows had on 13th of 3 month, 1745, made a request to the Kingwood Monthly Meeting for permission to hold such meetings every first day of each week; and their request was granted on the eighth of fifth month (July), and Samuel Willson, Junior, was appointed by the Kingwood Meeting to serve as an overseer at the Hardwick particular Meeting. Liberty to hold a meeting for worship on the Fourth day of every week was obtained on 16th of 9th month, 1747. A public Meeting-house was needed, and steps were taken for the erection of one, but Friends became divided on the question as to where it should be located. This led to an appeal to the Kingwood meeting, which appointed a committee consisting of Jeremiah Williams, Joseph King, Sr., Joseph Webster, Joseph King, Jr., and William King to assist Friends at the Meadows in fixing upon a place for a building; to which committee there were afterward added John Emley, Peter Schmuck, Jacob Simcock, and William Emley. This committee made a report to the Kingwood Meeting on 12 of 2nd month, 1750, and gave it as their opinion and judgment that the Meeting-house should be built at the same place where the graveyard had been made there. Those Friends who were dissatisfied with this decision carried the case by appeal to the Quarterly Meeting, but without result; for on 17th of 7th month, 1750, it was reported to Kingwood by an extract from the minutes of the Quarterly Meeting that the judgment of the committee had been confirmed. It would seem that a log meeting-house was soon erected; and there can be little doubt that it was located near Friends' graveyard in Allamuchy township. A deed for land was given in 1752 by Richard Penn "for a Friends' meeting-house forever." This Richard was a grandson of William Penn. It is of record in the office of the West Jersey Proprietors at Burlington that on March 10, 1714-15, a land-warrant was issued to William Penn for Lot ye 50th, that said lot was laid out by John Reading, an authorized surveyor, and that the legal transfer of the land from the Proprietors to William Penn was completed by the return of the warrant and survey to the office on May 27, 1715. The said lot is described as lying "on both sides of the Paquaessing river upon an Indian path which leads from Allamuchakohin to Pahukqualong," which, when modernized, becomes "on both sides of the Pequest river upon an Indian path which leads from Allamuchy to Pahaquarry." The public road from Allamuchy to Johnsonburg follows the ancient Indian path mentioned in William Penn's land-warrant; and this was only a short section in the great trail, or Indian path, along which the Mincy Indians traveled to and fro in their annual excursions to Long Branch on the New Jersey coast, which, even before the coming of the white man, was a popular summer resort. The trail crossed the Kittatinny mountain at Wind Gap, passed through Marksboro, Johnsonburg, Allamuchy, and Hackettstown, and continued due southeast to the ocean, the whole distance from the Delaware to the sea, being seventy-five miles as the bird flies. The Quaker meeting-house and burying-ground are at the exact spot where the Indian trail crossed the Pequest river.

The privilege of holding a Preparative Meeting at Hardwick was granted on 13 of 5 month, 1756, which meeting was to be held every Fourth Day of the week next but one before every Monthly Meeting, and a report of the proceedings therein was to be made to the Kingwood Meeting if required. During 1757 Hardwick made several requests to Kingwood for the liberty to hold a youths' meeting. On 10 of 5 month, 1757, Hardwick Friends requested that the Monthly Meeting be held at their place sometimes; and their request having been granted, it was arranged that the Monthly Meeting should be held at Hardwick every other month and continue so till Friends may see cause to order it otherwise. Accordingly the first Quarterly Meeting ever held in Warren county was held at Hardwick Meeting-house in 6th month, 1759, N. S.

The Hardwick Society was now in its youthful vigor. The petty persecutions it had endured during the French and Indian War because of refusal to train for military service had only strengthened it. The regular coming of visitors from Hunterdon county to attend the Quarterly Meeting naturally excited a desire for a larger and better meeting-house. The matter was talked over and finally brought before the Quarterly Meeting in the form of a proposition to rebuild the Hardwick Meeting-house. A committee was appointed, and the sum of 80 pounds was raised by subscription at Hardwick and Kingwood. On 10 of 2 month, 1763, Peter Schmuck and Jacob Lundy were named as additional members of that committee; and it was agreed that said house should be 40 feet long and 25 feet wide in the clear and one story high. The new building was finished in 1764.

Hardwick was separated from Kingwood and authorized as a distinct Monthly Meeting on 21 of 1 month, 1797; the first minutes are dated the first day of sixth month the same year. The following Elders were continued in office: William Shotwell, Ebenezer Willson, George Lundy, Jacob Lundy, Jr., Mercy Brotherton, Mary Willson, Jehoaden Willson, and Esther Lundy. George Lundy had been an Overseer in the Kingwood Meeting since 1785. After the unhappy controversy of 1827 which rent in twain the Society of Friends, the Hardwick Monthly Meeting entered into fellowship with the branch commonly called Hicksite. The number of members was steadily diminished by a stream of removals to Pennsylvania, Virginia, New York, Ohio, and Canada. The last meeting at the Hardwick Meeting-house was held on 2nd day of 2nd month, 1854; and the Society was laid down at a meeting held on 9th day of 6th month, 1855, in the Mendham Meeting-house, in Randolph township, Morris county, N. J. The records were given to the Plainfield Society in Union county, N. J.. The meeting-house and the adjoining land was sold in 1865 to Jesse Adams; the burying-ground is still owned by the Society and is visited yearly by a committee of Friends from Plainfield. The meeting-house itself was torn down in 1866 and a school-house erected on the foundations. The foregoing account of the Hardwick Society of Friends until its separation from Kingwood is based almost entirely on the minutes of the Kingwood Monthly Meeting; I am indebted for many of the items to the kindness of Mary (Willson) Vail of Quakertown, N. J., since deceased, but the notes furnished by her have been supplemented by data taken from The Kingwood Records as edited by Prof. J. W. Moore, Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., and published in The Jerseyman by Mr. H. E. Deats of Flemington, N. J.

REMINISCENCES.

The following account of the homesteads in the Quaker Settlement with reminiscences of the Hardwick Society of Friends has been furnished to me by Mrs. Richard T. Armstrong:

"I will describe," writes she, "the meeting-house of the Hardwick Society of Friends. It was built of dark-colored limestone; it was a low solid-looking structure forty feet by twenty-five on the inside, with a chimney at the west end and two front doors facing the south. It stood on elevated ground in the midst of a natural grove three acres in extent. A short distance east of the meeting-house and almost in line with it, there were substantial sheds for the horses to be tied in. The road coming from Johnsonburg forks at the corner of the woods; one branch passes straight ahead along the western side of the lot, and the other, which leads to Allamuchy, turns sharp to the left and bounds the grove on the north. Barring the drive-ways, the grounds were well in with natural grass, free from straggling under-brush, and well shaded by the primitive forest trees. The beautiful greensward, the dense shade, the songs of the birds and the chirrup of the squirrels made it a cool and pleasant retreat.

"On the north side of the building there was a small door, which opened into the east-room; this door was never used for going in or out, but always stood open in hot weather during meeting-time for the purpose of ventilation, there being no window on that side of the building. The entrance doors, as I have said, were on the south side, one near the middle of each room; these doors were made of narrow boards fitted diagonally, a peculiarity which rendered them noticeable and always attracted the attention of passers-by as long as the meeting-house remained standing.

“The interior was divided into two apartments by a partition so arranged that it could be removed and the two rooms thrown into one. This partition was paneled, and the upper part could be unfastened at the top and slid down on one side of the stationary part below which stood two and a half or three feet above the floor. This arrangement for dividing the house was a matter of economy as well as comfort, because in cold weather only one room was needed and only that part had to be warmed. In the west room there was a fireplace and chimney; in the east room there was a large ten-plate stove. The movable partition was in three parts; one of these was on the elevation, and the rest of it had to be in two pieces, because there was a door connecting the two rooms. On special occasions when the partitions had been taken down, the door itself was removed for the time, but the posts were stationary. The seats were plain benches about eight feet long; some of them had home-made cushions. The supports resting on the floor reached eight or ten inches above the seats at the ends, having a circular hole cut in each, rounding up on the front, and narrowing above to the back-rest, which was fastened across rather high. A few inches above the floor another narrow strip of board ran parallel to the seat, both front and back, which was convenient for the little folks to rest their feet on. The woodwork throughout was unpainted, but scrupulously clean.

“On the north side and extending the entire length of the building, there was an elevated platform two steps up and about five feet wide. This was the pulpit. A seat along the wall, a railing in front about the right height for a person to put his hand on when speaking, a board-front reaching from the floor to the railing, a low bench along the front side convenient for the speaker to kneel on in prayer—these constituted the outfit for the speaker’s accommodation. There was an aisle from each door, and each aisle ended in the front of each room at a stair of two low steps up to the speaker’s platform; and the seats were so arranged with their ends along the aisle and their backs toward the door that the listeners sat facing the platform.

“The stove in the east room was close to the platform. One seat was placed next to the sliding partition and facing the stove; the front seats being movable, were sometimes turned at right angles to the regular row; and thus the people could sit facing the stove on both sides of it and in front of it, a good arrangement in cold weather. It was a large stove, between three and four feet high at least; and it must have taken a stick three feet long, if not longer. While writing these lines, I seem to hear the ticking of that stove, which, as it cooled down or grew hotter by turns, gave out loud, clear, clock-like ticks constantly. Wood for use during service lay under the stove and by it; but there was seldom any need to fix the fire during the time of worship, for the sexton understood his business well and had such a bed of hot coals that it kept the room warm throughout with little trouble. Many times have I sat on the bench by the stove with my back toward the partition, and warmed my feet and burned my face, and then, when thoroughly warmed, have moved to the seat facing the front of the stove. In cold weather we did not venture to go very far from the stove. In the west room I always sat on the front seats back of the inner door.

“Meetings for worship were usually held in the east room; the men always entered the house by the door of the east room; and the women always entered by the west door and passed through that apartment into the east room. When both rooms were used, the women always sat in the room where the fire-place was. The older Friends generally sat on the front side-seats facing the stove, and the young people would sit farther back, so that if I looked up the aged members were the only ones I could see. When the old men on the front seats began to shake hands together, then we knew that the meeting was dismissed. On special occasions when the church would be filled and the partition removed, the older members always sat on the platform with the speakers, leaving the benches below for visitors. At these large gatherings, the women always spoke from the platform in the west room and the men from the platform in the east room. All the speakers were apt to lay their hands on the railing while they spoke; and those who prayed aloud generally knelt on the foot-benches; and better prayers have I never heard than I have in that old Quaker meeting-house, and some of the best speakers I ever heard I heard there also.

“Once in a great while in the summer time, when the worshippers were sitting there so quiet and still with the doors wide open, a little squirrel would come tripping in, and, surprised at finding occupants, would quickly in its own dialect offer apology for its intrusion and make off again in a hurry. I was sure to look up as soon as I felt I dare at some of the dear old Quaker men, and I was just as sure to find one of them looking at me.

“Meetings for worship were held twice a week, on Sunday and again on Wednesday or Thursday, or to express it in Friends’ language, on First day and on Fourth or Fifth day. One of the mid-week meetings was termed the Monthly Meeting; during the other weeks of the month, regular worship was held on the other day from what the Monthly Meeting was. Quarterly Meeting was held at Shrewsbury in May, at Rahway in summer, at Plainfield in the fall, and at Hardwick in the winter. My father’s house was filled to overflowing at such times. The Friends from the other societies came to attend the meetings, which were continued during the greater part of the week, and were entertained among the members of the Hardwick society. My father’s house seems to have been built with the purpose in view of entertaining large companies for days, it having five spare sleeping rooms ever ready for friends that might favor us with a visit, and when needed two more could be made to do duty with little change; in fact, all the rooms could be converted into sleeping rooms with little trouble except the two largest, which were parlor and dining room; for a second house with four large rooms stood but a few feet from the dwelling, and could be made to serve for kitchen and cook-house and for all the other work that was necessary at times like those. How we all enjoyed those days with the dear old Friends, who were accompanied by the younger members of their families. Among those I more particularly remember were Joseph La Fetra and his wife and daughters, especially his daughter Elizabeth only recently deceased; John Borden and his wife Miriam and their adopted son, John W. Borden, who died years ago; and Thomas Borden and his wife Susan.

“My father and mother attended Quarterly Meeting at Shrewsbury in the spring of 1849 and took me along. It was on this trip and at New Brunswick that I saw ships for the first time in my life; as father drove through the town, I could look down each cross street and see the ships on the Raritan river.

I was then thirteen years of age. It was a two days' journey. By starting early they reached Plainfield the first day, where they were entertained by Friends. Re-enforced by a number of Friends from that place, they set out early the next morning and drove to the homes of other Friends near Shrewsbury; by noon the next day there would be several wagons in company, and they all stopped at the sand tavern, as we called it, from the fact that the hotel parlor was sprinkled artistically with white sand, it being in the pine lands where there was nothing but pine trees and sand for miles and miles. The night we reached our destination we stopped at Thomas Borden's, whose house was at Deal Beach, his being one of a few large houses that were filled with boarders during the summer season. They woke me early in the morning in time to go out on the porch on the east side of the third story of their house to see the sun rise out of the ocean, the first time I had ever gazed upon that watery waste. We attended all the sessions of the Quarterly Meeting. One night we stayed at John Borden's; he had just completed a new frame house, the yard yet to be levelled. We also stopped at Joseph La Fetra's a part of the time; the visiting delegates being entertained at the homes of the different Friends.

"On our return the traveling Friends were in company through the pines. A stranger was in danger of getting lost; it was difficult to trace one's way over the loose soil because the scant verdure on being driven over a few times became stirred into the sand, which filled in the ruts behind the passing wheels so that no track was left. A woodroad could not be distinguished from the main highway, except by those who were familiar with the country. While at the sand tavern on our return, a number of the younger members of the company wished to walk on in advance and let the wagons overtake them. After being carefully directed, we started, but before we were out of sight, one of the Friends who were hitching up the teams had to run to overtake us and shout to us that we had taken the wrong road. The soft, deep sand here in the pines quickly wearied our horses and made them break out into a dripping sweat, for they were accustomed to solid roads; on the other hand when Friends from Shrewsbury came to Hardwick to attend Quarterly Meeting, our steep hills caused their horses to fret and worry.

"The Hardwick meeting-house was torn down to the foundation in 1866 by a gathering of neighbors, and rebuilt for a school-house and made two stories high so as to have a Sunday-school room above. The nails in the woodwork had been made by hand and had large flat heads more than an inch broad; and the mortar was found to be so firm and strong that the stones broke before the mortar holding them together would give way. The date-stone incut with the year 1764 and showing that the building was more than a century old, was removed from the chimney and carefully reset in the south-side foundation."

"Among the old members of the Hardwick Society were George and Levi Lundy and their wives, Samuel Laing and his wife Edith, John Schmuck, Ebenezer Willson, Mordecai Willson, Gabriel Willson and his wife Grace, Joseph Adams and his wife Amy, Abner Willson and his wife Elizabeth, and the sons and daughters of many of these, among whom I may mention James Willson and his wife Amy, Henry Willson and his wife Elizabeth, Christopher Schmuck and his wife Elizabeth, and Abner Willson's daughters, Mercy and Belinda, who married the brothers Alfred and Joel Buckley, and also Samuel Hoey and his wife Sarah and their daughter Mary."

"When Richard Lundy II. and his wife Elizabeth Large came to New Jersey, they took up land lying on both sides of the Pequest river and extending from that river across Pine Run to Bear creek. He divided this property into two farms; the one along the Pequest he deeded to his son Jacob Lundy; the other he left by will to his son Judge Samuel Lundy. Jacob's share of the old estate is still in the Lundy name and is occupied by Eli Vought Lundy. The old stone dwelling is inscribed J L 1783, showing that it was built in the year 1783 by Jonathan Lundy. The property has been owned successively by Richard II., by Jacob, by Jonathan, by Eli, and now by Eli's grandson, Eli Vought Lundy."

"In 1780, Judge Samuel Lundy built a stone dwelling-house along Pine Run on his share of the old plantation. When the Judge died in 1801, he left the farm by will to his son Samuel Lundy, Jr., who, in 1802, married Elizabeth Shotwell and dwelt on the homestead until 1816. Joseph Adams of Delaware, Knowlton township, had married Amy Lundy, the youngest sister of Samuel, Jr. Joseph had decided to remove to New York State, and with this purpose in view he had purchased some land near Waterloo in Wayne county, N. Y. In the spring of 1816, he started in a wagon with his family for his new home. Leaving Knowlton, he stopped the first night in the Quaker settlement at the house of his brother-in-law, Samuel Lundy, Jr. In the morning they could not proceed because of illness. The result of the entire matter was that Samuel Lundy, Jr., traded his homestead for Joseph's uncleared tract of land in Wayne county, packed up and started at once for his newly acquired possessions, leaving Joseph Adams permanently in the stone house where the intention had been to tarry but for a night. By this exchange of property, a large Lundy family was transplanted to the western part of New York State, and a large Adams family was located in the Quaker settlement. Since the death of Joseph Adams the farm has been owned by James Warbasse, Jesse Wilson, Sedgwick R. Reeder, and now by Sedgwick's son Ira."

"Jesse Lundy, son of Judge Samuel Lundy, was a carpenter, and lived on a lot near the Southtown school-house. Jesse sold the lot and afterward removed to Canada. James Lundy, whose wife was Elizabeth Pettit, lived on the same lot before he went to Ohio. The lot was owned for a while by John Hillman, but is now a part of the estate of George W. Lundy."

"Levi Lundy, a brother of Jesse, lived farther south, on the edge of Tamarack swamp near the confluence of Bear creek and Pine Run. Levi sold the farm in his old age and removed to Wyandotte county, Ohio, with his married sons. Levi's place was afterward owned by Aaron Howell, son of Levi Howell. I have heard my father say that there once was a corduroy road extending from the end of Levi Lundy's lane to an island farm out in the swamp; but this road was abandoned long ago. John Lundy, Levi's son, before he removed to Ohio, lived between Abner Willson's and Judge Samuel Lundy's, but on the opposite side of the road."

"George Lundy, another son of Judge Samuel, married Esther Willson. Their old homestead lies on both sides of the road leading toward Johnsonburg, and borders on Glover's pond. It was owned by their son David, who married Sarah Wildrick, and afterward by George Wildrick Lundy, a son of David and Sarah. The Southtown school-house stands on land donated from this estate."

"Jonathan Willson lived at first on the farm of his father Ebenezer, near the Allamuchy station; but he sold this and bought land at the foot of the Jenny Jump mountain, along Bear creek opposite Judge Samuel Lundy's. Jonathan left it to his son Lewis; and it still remains in the family name. Abner and Elizabeth Bunting once lived at the same corner, on the opposite side of the road."

"The homestead of Samuel and Edith (Lundy) Laing was about a mile and a half from Johnsonburg on the left hand side of the road leading to Alamuche. Their son, Joseph Chapman Laing, inherited the farm; he married Phebe Ann Bunting, and had three daughters and a son Watson, who married Sarah Kennedy and left a son, George Irving Laing. The farm was eventually sold to Isaac Stickles and is now (1902) owned by Isaac's son John."

"Ira K. Willson during the earlier part of his married life, lived between Johnsonburg and Samuel Laing's, over the hill from Dark Moon brook and the old stone dwelling-house of Dr. Samuel Kennedy."

"Josiah Dyer, Jr., and his wife Rachel Schooley, settled at a very early day on the farm adjoining that of Samuel Laing. The Dyer farm was owned for many years by Cummins O. Harris, and has recently been purchased by Ford Staples."

"Going from Samuel Laing's toward the meeting-house, we pass the houses of Joseph E. Dyer and Tobias Stillwell, and come to the property of Christian and Mary (Lundy) Schmuck, which passed to their son John, who married Martha Willets. The house stands elevated and on the right, with the other buildings across the road and below. John set off those fields which lie back from the road as a separate farm and willed it to the three children of his daughter, Sarah Hoey Schmuck, who had married Cummins O. Harris. This inner farm is now owned, but not occupied, by Levi Kittle. John's son Christian married Elizabeth Laing and settled some distance below Long Bridge, near Meadville school-house, where he farmed and ran a sawmill."

"George Lundy, Junior, was the son of George and Esther (Willson) Lundy. He married Ruth Adams and settled near the Friends' meeting-house, on the road leading to Greenville. George died about 1824. When the children became of age, the farm was sold to William Hart, and afterward was owned by William's daughter Ellen (Hart) Craig, now deceased."

"Adjoining the farm of George and Ruth stood the house built and occupied by Samuel Lundy of Muncy, whose wife Sarah was a daughter of Judge Samuel Lundy. Muncy Samuel died in that house and was buried in Friends yard. Sarah was a great lover of flowers; and she had all the varieties, old and new, known at that time. Her flower-garden was the admiration of the neighborhood. She rented one of her front rooms to a Mr. Loder, but reserved a large bed of pinks in front of the door; and Mrs. Loder used to say to her, 'I get all the praise of those lovely flowers without having any of the care of them.'

"Samuel Patterson and his wife Lucy lived between the meeting-house and the grave-yard."

"Ebenezer Willson, son of Robert and Mary, married Jehoaden Schooley and lived during the latter part of his life on the first farm west of the Allamuchy station in a dwelling-house which stood a short distance from the point where the road winding up from the meadows joins the main road between Allamuchy and Johnsonburg. After Ebenezer's death, his son Jonathan sold the estate to the late George H. Ayers."

"Robert and Mary (Lundy) Willson lived along the same road westward and nearer the Pequest river. I call this the Robert Willson homestead, for it was first owned by Robert and has always been owned and occupied by some of his descendants in the male line; he himself deeded it to his son Ebenezer on 22 day of 2 month, 1762; Ebenezer deeded it to his son David in January, 1822; and David to his son Amos on April 1, 1842; and Amos's son John now has it."

"At the junction of the three roads coming from Long Bridge, the meeting-house and Judge Lundy's was the Hoey lot, and here lived Samuel and Sarah Hoey and their widowed daughter Mary Shaw."

"The home of James and Elsie (Smalley) Shotwell was on the road leading from Allamuchy to Long Bridge. Their stone dwelling-house bears the date 1770; it stands near the creamery and is in good repair. It was afterward owned by their son Jonathan and subsequently by Jonathan's daughter Emelissa, and now by Mr. J. C. Runyon."

"Robert and Rhoda (Dell) Willson lived at Long Bridge near Allamuchy."

"The Buckley homestead was in to the left of the road leading from Long Bridge to the Hoey lot; it was a part of the early Lundy tract and was next owned by a Stevenson, who sold it to George Buckley; it has since been owned by Silas Hibler, and is now owned by Sanford Hibler."

"The homestead of Gabriel and Grace (Brotherton) Willson was on the road from the meeting-house to Long Bridge, lying on both sides of said road after turning to the right, say, half a mile south of the meeting-house, at a point where three roads meet. Moses Applegate lives there now. This land probably belonged to Gabriel's parents, Gabriel and Elizabeth (Lundy) Willson. After the death of Gabriel and Grace, the homestead was partitioned among their three sons—Enoch receiving 98 acres on the south side of the road; James receiving the same amount on the north side, and Henry, who was a weaver by trade, receiving only 40 acres at the parting of the roads."

"Joseph Willson lived near Gabriel, a little eastward, at the bridge across the river. I think this Joseph was a brother of my grandmother, Esther (Willson) Lundy. Joseph's farm passed to his son James, who sold it and removed to New York State."

"Abner Willson, son of Gabriel and Heziah (Decker) Willson, married Elizabeth Lundy and lived on what is now the Samuel Drake farm. After Abner's death the place passed to his son Abijah; and after Abijah's death, it was sold to Samuel Drake, whose wife is a great-grandchild of Abner Willson. The farm is a short distance northwest of the Hoey lot."

"Jacob Lundy, son of Eli and Abigail (Dickerson) Lundy, now dwells on the east bank of Bear creek along the road leading from Johnsonburg to Judge Samuel Lundy's."

"Eli Willson married Elizabeth, daughter of Isaac and Ann (Large) Lundy. Eli's home was in the settlement on the road leading from Johnsonburg to Judge Samuel Lundy's. Eli's farm passed to his daughter Deborah, who had married Theodore F. Johnson; after Deborah's death the farm was bought by John Roe, thus passing out of the family."

"Mahlon Willson, son of Samuel Willson III. and his wife, Deborah Collins, left the Quaker settlement in the year 1798 and bought land in Green township on its extreme edge toward Newton. His homestead was near the Big Spring and was west of Springdale on the road to Fredon; and there, after Mahlon's day, dwelt his son Obed, and there now dwells Obed's son Obed."

“I must not omit to mention that there was a school near the Friends’ grove; it was in the field west of the meeting-house, up in the corner, and nearly opposite the end of the road coming from Greenville past George and Ruth Lundy’s. Every trace of the building has disappeared, even its foundations. Among the teachers were Betty Willson, Clarissa Chedister, Mary Atkinson; I am told that these persons taught there previously to 1832 and that the building even then was old. Times were so hard during the Civil War and so much money had to be raised that no repairs were made if it could possibly be avoided; and thus the building got out of repair; and at the close of the war, it was deemed wise to abandon the old school-house and erect a new one on the site of the meeting-house, which had not been used for worship by Friends for ten or twelve years.”

ORIGIN OF SURNAMES.

Every family name had a beginning; there was a time and a place and a reason for its first use; and it may be of interest to specify here briefly a few of the ways in which surnames originated.

Many family names denote the trade or occupation of an ancestor; thus if there were three men in the community, each bearing the baptismal name of John, they would, for the sake of distinction, be spoken of as John the miller, John the weaver, and John the mason; and these descriptive terms would soon be shortened into John Miller, John Weaver, and John Mason. This is why we have so many Cooks and Bakers, so many Brewers and Shoemakers and Fishers and Hunters, so many Coopers, Carpenters, Painters, Sawyers, Turners, Potters, Skinners, Tanners, Thatchers, Taylors, Tylers, Smiths and Wrights.

There is a large group of names that indicate parentage. George, the son of William, was called George William’s-son, which, by a natural change of stress, became George Williamson. Enoch, the son of Richard, was in like manner called Enoch Richardson; and in this way there were formed such names as Albertson, Anderson, Dixon, Edison, Morrison, Nelson, Paterson, Thomson, Willson, Jefferson, Madison, Jackson and Harrison.

Nicknames were common in all ranks of society, and so it happened that many epithets which were originally bestowed on individuals to describe some personal peculiarity have hardened into surnames; to this class are to be assigned Little, Small, Large, Long, Short, Stout, Young, Rich, Poor, Quick, Gay, Sage, Wise, Hardy, Moody, Stark, Broadhead, Armstrong, Cruikshank, and Longfellow. Variations in complexion and in the color of hair or clothing have furnished the names of Brown, Black, Reed, White and Gray.

Common nouns denoting locality have formed a very prolific source of surnames, having been added to the baptismal names of individuals. If there were three men by the Christian name of John, one living near the ford and one in the lane, and the third along the marsh, they would naturally be spoken of among their neighbors as John Ford, John Lane, and John Marsh. An examination of the ancient tax-lists of an English village furnishes numerous illustrations; for the names of the tax-payers are recorded after this fashion: Willilmus de Grene, Adam atte Hall, Ricardus atte Brigg, Ricardus atte Well, Johannes del Hill, Jacobus under Wood, and Eduardus atte Water. Among the names of this origin are Park, Glen, Mount, Brook, Bank, Street, Down, Dell, Dale, Ridge, Peak, Mead, Lee, and Moore.

Carlisle, Kent, and Lincoln may be cited as examples of family names that have been derived directly from the proper names of towns and parishes; and here, too, belongs the endless list of family names ending in -ham and -ton, meaning home and town, such as Cunningham, Buriham, Dunham, Durham, Markham, Pelham, and Windham, and Benton, Exton, Newton, Milton, Walton, Stockton, Hamilton, and Washington.

Among the surnames that indicate official position are Butler, Page, Chamberlain, Porter, Bowman, Archer, Knight, Squire, Judge, Earl, Duke, Lord, Prince, King, Queen, Priest, Abbot, Bishop, and Pope; some of these terms denote the actual rank of an ancestor; others sometimes merely indicated employment in the service of a person of the rank named; sometimes they were nicknames, pure and simple, based on some fancied resemblance in appearance or character; and sometimes they were reminiscences of the theatrical part played by an ancestor in the outdoor pageantries once so popular in England.

Some households bear the names of animals, such as Swan, Drake, Crane, Heron, Rook, Partridge, Pigeon, Finch, Hawk, Jay, and other birds; and also Fox, Wolf, Lyon, Hare, Beaver, Hart, Roe, Hind, and Bull. It is probable that some of these were bestowed in the first place as nicknames, and that others were derived from the emblems painted on tavern signs or on business signs suspended out of shop windows; for in those days very few persons were able to read, and hence it was necessary for business men to render their shops conspicuous by the display of pictured sign boards.

The meaning of many names is concealed by the fact that they are derived from words once in common use but now obsolete; thus Tod meant a fox, Brock a badger, Pollard a cropped tree, Hatch a gate, Beck a brook, Foss a ditch, Shaw a thicket, Penn a hilltop, Worth a farm, Cobb, a harbor, Holmes a flat island, and Chase a hunting ground.

Hunt is a shortened form of hunter; Starr, of starling; Gunn, of gunner; Ball, of Baldwin; Spark, of sparrow hawk; and Norton and Sutton, of north-town and south-town. Payne is a mutilated form of pagan; Snooks, of seven-oaks; Summer, of summoner; Foster, of forester; Senkler, of St. Clair; Collins, of St. Nicholas; Dennis, of St. Dionysius.

Hughes is from Hugh; Mills from Miles; Randall from Ralph; and Davis from Davids. Borden means the den of boars, and Harden the den of hares. Ray, Rae and Wray are old forms of roe, a deer. Boone and Bunn are from the Latin word "bonus," meaning good.

The Shoemakers made shoes; the Websters wove; the Waggoners and the Wainwrights made wagons; the Arkwrights made meal-chests; the Playters made coats of mail; and the Reeders gathered reeds and thatched houses.

Diminutive suffixes are an element in some surnames. Elliot means little Ellis; Hewitt, little Hugh; Emmet, little Emma; Willet and Wilcox and Wilkins, little Will; Robins, little Robert; and Dickens, little Dick.

The illustrations thus far presented have been selected from the English language; it will be readily understood that the same principles apply to the origin of surnames among nations using other languages. The directory of any large city will furnish numerous examples of the family names of the Welsh, the Irish, the Swedes, the Dutch, the Germans, the French, the Spaniards, the Italians, the Poles, and the Russians. Many of these foreign names have a meaning, but not to our English ears. Pettit and Grant and Fort are of French origin, and mean little and grand and strong; Zimmerman is the German for carpenter; and the descendants of an early Polish settler in New Jersey named Saberoweski now write their name Zabriskie. Price and Bevan are contractions of the Welsh forms ap-Rice and ap-Evan, meaning son of Rice and son of Evan.

In discussing the origin of surnames, it must be borne in mind that the same name as now pronounced and spelled may have sprung from several words radically distinct, and that each of these words may have been assigned for a different reason. This principle is well illustrated by the family name of Bell. Turning to the old records, we meet with "Walter le Bel" (that is, Walter the Fair), so called because of his beautiful complexion; and "Richard fil. Bell" (that is, Richard the son of Isabel), so named from his widowed mother; and lastly, "John atte Bell," so designated because he dwelt at the Sign of the Bell.

I will now speak concerning the Lundy surname. Households bearing this name existed at an early day in England, Scotland, Ireland, Norway, Sweden, Germany, and France. This wide range of distribution makes it almost certain that they have descended from several different ancestors; and consequently it is possible for the word Lundy to have several different meanings.

In the old Norse language there was a word "lundi" which meant a puffin, a sea-bird that congregates in immense flocks on rocky coasts; and it is said that the name was given to certain persons as a nickname.

In England the word "lundy" was an adjective and meant "heavy, clumsy"; it became a descriptive surname. The adjective "lundy" is unknown in America, but it is still in use among the common people in several parts of England. Halliwell in his Dictionary of Archaic and Provincial Words defines it as "heavy, clumsy"; and Addy in his Glossary of Words used in the Neighborhood of Sheffield explains it as "awkward, clumsy, heavy; also strong, muscular." I find the following illustrations of the meaning of the word in Notes and Queries (8th series, vol. X., page 272): A stout elderly person unable to walk with ease, lacking nimbleness, is lundy; a bulky article difficult to carry (not because of its weight) is lundy; and a reckless rough foot-baller plays a lundy game.

There is a third way in which the word Lundy in some instances may have become a surname. We call a grass-plot a lawn; our ancestors called it a laund; see Bardsley's English Surnames, page 122. Those who had their habitations on the greensward in the heart of the forest received the family names of Laund, Land, Lander, Lound, Lond, and Lund. Lundy may be a diminutive of Lund, and mean "little lawn."

The village of Largo is in Scotland on an inlet of the Firth of Fourth; and in the middle of a park near this village stand three straight sharp stones, several yards high, which are known as "The Standing Stanes of Lundie." Nothing is known concerning their origin or how they got the name of Lundie; but they were probably erected in connection with the religious rites of a heathen race that disappeared ages ago.

There is an island named Lundy in the entrance of Bristol channel, eleven or twelve miles off the coast of Devonshire. It is a lofty rampart of rocks; it covers an area of 920 acres and contains fewer than 200 inhabitants. It has always been occupied as a nesting place by enormous numbers of puffins; hence its name, for the Isle of Lundy means the Isle of Puffins. There is no evidence that any family by the name of Lundy ever had anything to do with the island.

In a book written by Joseph Besse and published by him at London in 1753, entitled "Sufferings of the People Called Quakers," the family name of Laundry occurs several times. I do not venture to affirm that this is identical with Lundy; but in view of the fact that great carelessness and irregularity in the spelling of proper names prevailed in England at that time, the similarity is suggestive. Besse says: Richard Laundry was fined £5 and had a horse worth £8 10 s. taken from him for refusing to take an oath at the Quarter Sessions. In 1668, Richard Laundry of Boldenhurst (and others) was imprisoned on an Exchequer Process. In 1668 Richard Laundry of Boldenhurst was fined for being at a meeting at the house of Thomas Sutton in Little Saunton; see Vol. I., pp. 6-8, in the Bedfordshire lists. On January 13, 1660, Richard Laundry, Jeremy Laundry, and many others were arrested and imprisoned for being at Friends' meeting and refusing to take the prescribed oath. Lewis Laundry and John Laundry are also mentioned; see Vol. I., p. 242, in the Hertfordshire lists.

PREFACE TO THE GENEALOGY.

This genealogy is not limited to individuals bearing the Lundy name, but includes, so far as my researches have been successful, every person who has in his veins any of the blood of Richard Lundy the Emigrator, no matter what that person's surname now is and no matter through how many different surnames that person's Lundy relationship is derived.

Memory is fickle and our children forget in a week facts of relationship and ancestry and migration which we would remember forever, and the entries which we write on the blank pages in the family Bible are liable to loss and destruction in a dozen different ways; and therefore it is evident that the only safety for a family record is in printer's ink. The distribution of printed copies bids defiance to fire and other accidents, some copies being preserved among kinsmen who are widely dispersed, and other copies being safely lodged in the fireproof alcoves of historical societies and public libraries. The page can still speak on after the voice has become silent.

Items have been culled from every possible source,—from old letters, family Bibles, tombstones, mortgages, deeds for land, last wills and testaments, minutes of Friends' meetings, local histories, and colonial documents; and I am glad to say that in almost every line of descent I have found some individuals who were willing and able to furnish information; I deeply appreciate their kindness.

But all the problems of the Lundy kinship have not been solved; there are lost lines and missing households still, a fact not to be wondered at when we consider the long interval of time since the birth of the first American-born Lundy, the loss of written records, and the frequent migrations to distant regions in search of new homes. I hope that many households, unknown now to me and therefore unrecorded here, may be traced out hereafter and listed properly within the circle of the Lundy kinship. The publication of this book will render future investigation much more effective by revealing to all inquirers the exact points at which further information is most needed.

The compilation of this family history has been to me a work of pride and reverence and love and duty.

Maiden Creek, Berks county, Pa. On 10 day of 8 mo., 1739, Richard Lundy III. married Ann Willson, born 5 day of 6 mo., 1720, died after 1778, daughter of Samuel and Hester (Overton) Willson and granddaughter of Robert and Ann Willson. Their marriage certificate is recorded on the fourth page of the Record of Marriages for the Hardwick and Randolph Monthly Meeting. I insert a copy of it, retaining the old style spelling and capitalization.

MARRIAGE CERTIFICATE.

Whereas Richard Lundy, jur., of Maiden Creek in the County of Philadelphia and Province of Pennsylvania, and Anne Willson, daughter of Sam'l Willson of the same place afsd, having declared their intentions of marriage with each other before several Monthly Meetings of the People called Quakers in the County afsd, according to the good order among them, whose Proceedings therein after a deliberate Consideration thereof and having consent of Parents and Relations concerned, Nothing appearing to obstruct, were approved of by the sd Meeting.

And we whose names are hereunto subscribed, being amongst others present at the solemnization of their said marriage and subscription in manner afforesaid, as witnesses thereunto have also to these presents set our hands the day and year above writen.

RICHARD LUNDY, JUR.

ANNE LUNDY.

(Witnesses.)

Richard Lundy, Samuel Lundy, Elizabeth Lundy, Elizabeth Lundy, junr., Joseph Lundy, Mary Willson, Jacob Lundy, Martha Lundy, Robert Willson, Sarah Hutton, Elanor Rutledge, Mary Penrose, Phebe Penrose, Samuel Lundy, Richard Penrose, Tho's Lundy, Marg't Lundy, Deborah Starr, Allic Gibson, Esther Pearson, Margaret Starr, Eleanor Parvin, Sarah Willy, Sam'l Shaw, Mary Willy, Mary Shaw, Ann Penrose, Moses Starr, Francis Parven, Lawrance Pearson, Nehemiah Hutton, Isaac Starr, John Willy.

On the 27th day of 12th mo., 1745-6 (that is, February, 1746), Richard requested a certificate of membership for himself and family from the Exeter Meeting; and on 12th day of 4th mo., 1746, he presented said certificate before the Bethlehem Monthly Meeting in Hunterdon Co., N. J. He settled at the Great Meadows near Allamuchy, Warren Co., N. J. He was elected to represent the old township of Hardwick on the Board of Justices and Freeholders of Sussex county during 1754 and 55, and is designated on the early records as Richard Lundy, Jr. When the log-goal was built at the village now known as Johnsonburg, a dispute arose between the contractors and the county authorities as to the manner in which the work had been done; so the Board of Freeholders appointed Richard to meet the workmen and adjust the matter. The Court of the General Sessions of the Peace appointed him to serve as one of the commissioners to divide the county into additional precincts. On the account book of the Collector of Sussex county, I find these two entries made during the year 1755:

"To Richard Lundy, Jr., for Wolf's head.....£3."

"To Richard Lundy, Jr., for killing three groan

"Wolves & 6 whelps.....£13 10s."

Items like these show that liberal bounties were paid for the destruction of these troublesome beasts of prey, and give us a glimpse of those early days, reminding us of the fact that Hardwick township was at that time only a frontier settlement.

Richard Lundy III. died November 17, 1756, and left ten children, the eldest of whom was only sixteen years of age. It is certain that Anne his widow was living in 1778, for in that year her son Eliezer produced before the Falls Meeting, in writing, Anne's consent to his marriage; and tradition says that Anne removed in 1784 to Virginia with her son John and made her home with him and died there at the age of one hundred and two years.

The last Will and Testament of Richard Lundy the Third, dated November 1, 1756, is recorded among WILLS, Liber 8, pages 475-476, in the Office of the Secretary of State, Trenton, N. J.

II. William, born the 31st day of the 11th month, 1741, at the Place afsd. He married Nancy Silverthorn and settled in Canada near Niagara Falls where he died in 1829. It was on his land that the battle of Lundy's Lane was subsequently fought.

IV. Sarah, born the 19th day of the 12th month, 1744, at the Place afsd. She married John Kester and in 1784 removed to Grayson county, Va.

V. Richard, born the 3rd day of the 2nd month, 1746, at the Place afsd. He married Mary Stockton and in 1785 removed to Grayson county, Va. He died before 1823.

VI. Ann, the 10th day of the 11th month, 1747, at the Great Meadows in the county of Sussex and Western Division of the Province of New Jersey. She married William Webster.

VII. James, born the Fifth day of the Fifth month, 1749, at the Place afsd. He died before the making of his father's will, which was written in 1756.

VIII. and IX. Ebenezer and John was born at one birth the 19th of 9th month, 1751, at the place afsd. Ebenezer removed to Bucks county, Pa. John married Rebecca Silverthorn and in 1785 removed to Virginia and settled near Oldtown in Grayson county, where he died May 5, 1831.

X. Eliezer, born the 15th of the 2nd month, 1753, at the place afsd; and departed this Life the 10th of 7th month, 1782. He removed to Bucks county, Pa., and married Christianna Brown. He was buried on the 11th of 7th mo., 1782.

XI. Azariah, born the 18th of the 9th month, 1754, at the place afsd; and departed this Life the 1st of 7th month, 1784. He was buried in the Hardwick yard in Warren county, N. J. He married Elizabeth ————. In 1785 his widow and children removed to Grayson (now Carroll) county, Va.

The names and birth-dates of all the children enumerated above and the death-dates of Eliezer and Azariah are taken from the fourth page of the Record of Births for the Hardwick and Mendham Monthly Meeting; the other data have been gathered from various sources.

Anne Lundy, jr., the sixth child, married with the approval of the Kingwood Monthly Meeting, Abraham Webster, possibly the son (born 12 of 9, 1743) of Joseph and Elizabeth Webster. Their first declaration of intentions to marry was made on 8 of 3, 1770. They had at least one child, Mary, who resided within the compass of the Hardwick M. M., and removed to Upper Canada some time previous to 1821; Mary had married a Mr. Tonkin as her second husband.

Ebenezer Lundy applied to the Kingwood Meeting on 6 of 9, 1768, for a certificate of removal to the Wrightstown Meeting in Bucks county, Pa. At a Monthly Meeting held at Falls, Bucks county, on 8 of 10, 1777, Ebenezer was reported for having been engaged in military service so far as to be employed in making implements of war such as tents and other military attire; and the minutes further show that on being treated with he was so far from seeing his error that he rather endeavored to justify his conduct, and that a testimony against him was accordingly produced, read, approved and signed.

Eliezer Lundy married Christianna Brown, daughter of Thomas Brown, with the approval of the Falls Meeting in Bucks county, Pa., on 18 day of 2 mo., 1778. Eliezer is designated on the minutes as a son of Richard and as a brother of Ebenezer. Eliezer died in 7th mo., 1782. There is no record of any children. On the 8 of 10, 1777, Eliezer was charged before the Falls Meeting with "being employed by his brother in making Tents, &c., for the army"; he was present and offered a paper of acknowledgment for his misconduct which was read and received. On 15 day of 5 mo., 1793, Christianna Lundy (perhaps Eliezer's widow) married George Merrick of the Borough of Bristol, Bucks county, Pa.

No further information concerning Anne, Ebenezer or Eliezer.

The children of Richard Lundy III. emigrated from Warren county, New Jersey, about the time of the Revolutionary War. So complete was the exodus that, so far as known, there is not a single person residing at the present time within the boundaries of the State of New Jersey that can trace his descent in either male or female line from Richard III. The dispersal was to regions far remote. Samuel and William, the eldest sons, settled in Canada, Samuel locating near Newmarket in Ontario, and William at Lundy's Lane, near Niagara Falls. Amos, Richard IV., John, Sarah, and Azariah's widow went south and planted a colony in Grayson and Carroll counties, Virginia.

FIRST BRANCH.

SAMUEL LUNDY AND SARAH WEBSTER.

OF NEW JERSEY; OF YORK CO., ONTARIO.

Richard Lundy II. in his will dated 21 of 2 mo., 1772, gives six pounds to his grandson Samuel Lundy, Junior.

The minutes of the Kingwood Monthly Meeting show that Samuel Lundy, Jr., and Sarah Webster declared their intentions of marriage on 8 of 3 mo., 1759. In the minutes of the same meeting, under date of 13 day 2 mo., 1794, it is stated that William Lundy and Samuel Lundy III. requested certificates of membership to the Exeter Meeting at Maiden Creek, Berks Co., Pa.; and it is also stated under date of 30 day 5 mo., in the same year, that Samuel Lundy II. requested a certificate of membership to the Exeter Meeting for himself and four minor children. The records of the Society of Friends at Millville, Pa., show that a certificate was presented to that Meeting on 10 day 7 mo., 1794, by Samuel Lundy from the records of the Kingwood Monthly Meeting held at Hardwick, Sussex Co., N. J., recommending the aforesaid Samuel Lundy with his four children, John, Ebenezer, Sarah, and Eleazer. The records of the Exeter Meeting make mention twice of a William Lundy; it is stated that William Lundy came in 1795 from Kingwood, Hunterdon Co., N. J.; and it is also stated, under date of 22 day 5 mo., 1798, that a report was received from the Muncy Preparative Meeting that William Lundy had accomplished his marriage with one not a member.

Turning again to the Kingwood minutes, we find that a Richard Lundy declared his intention of marriage on 8 day 11 mo., 1787; and that on 12 day 11 mo., 1795, Richard Lundy requested a certificate of membership for himself and family to the Exeter Meeting.

The statements above are gleaned from original sources and are indisputable as to the several particular facts; the statements concerning Samuel Lundy, here called "the second" and "junior," refer to the same individual. This Samuel Lundy settled in the township of Whitchurch, York Co., Ontario, and died in March, 1826. He had seven children; four of his sons settled near him in Canada; namely, Richard, William, John, and Eleazer; the three other children remained in the United States. After the death of Sarah, Samuel married Sarah, widow of James Willson and daughter of Peter Schmuck.

CHILDREN OF SAMUEL LUNDY AND SARAH WEBSTER.

- I. Richard, died May 27, 1816; married Mary Lowe.
- II. William, b. June 11, 1770; married Agnes Randall.
- III. Samuel II. (he of Muncy, Pa.); married in 1798 Sarah Lundy (she of Johnsonburg, N. J.), a daughter of Judge Samuel Lundy; see Group Seven.
- IV. John, mentioned in 1794 as a minor; married Elizabeth Toole prior to 7 mo., 1808.
- V. Ebenezer; said to have married and to have had children.
- VI. Sarah; said to have married a Mr. Walton; no further record.
- VII. Eleazer, born in 1785; died April 4, 1853; married in 1813 Euphemia Playter.

It is said that Ebenezer married and had at least one child, a daughter named Mary Ann, who married a Mr. Buckley; and it is also said that Mary Ann visited her kinsmen at Newmarket, Ontario, in 1853-54. No further information concerning Ebenezer.

The Canadian Post of Lindsay, Ontario, published the following obituary in its issue of February 14, 1896:

NIAGARA FALLS, February 9.

The Niagara district has lost one of its best known and highly respected citizens in the death of Mr. Lantry Shannon Lundy of Lundy's Lane, yesterday morning. He was the last surviving member of the family of Thomas Lundy, a son of William Lundy, the United Empire Loyalist, after whom the historic lane was named. The late Mr. Lundy was born and spent most of his life in the house in which he died and which was used as a hospital during the Battle of Lundy's Lane and as officers' quarters during 1814, his father's house having been burned by guerrillas in 1813. The original plot of the homestead was granted by King George III. January 6, 1796, thus having been in the unbroken possession of the family for more than a hundred years; and the clock whose ticking marked his birth marked also his release from the weary hours of his suffering during which he was sustained by an unwavering Christian faith. He was also of Revolutionary stock, his maternal grandfather having been Col. Shannon, a British officer, whose command was the last to surrender to American arms. He had entered upon his 77th year, having been born January, 1820. He had been a life-long Liberal, a justice of the peace for thirty-three years and had held many other public positions of trust. He was esteemed by all for his uprightness of character and kindness of heart; and revered by those admitted to his friendship and home-circle. He leaves a sorrowing widow and a large grown-up family by whom he was dearly loved and by whom his memory will be held as their best possession. The funeral will take place from his late residence on Wednesday afternoon, February 12, at 2 o'clock, interment taking place at Drummond Hill Cemetery.

BATTLE OF LUNDY'S LANE.

During the summer of 1814, the Americans formed a plan to capture and occupy the Niagara peninsula which includes the territory bounded by Lake Ontario, the Niagara River and the eastern end of Lake Erie. An army was assembled at Buffalo under Gen. Jacob Brown. On July 3, 1814, Brown suddenly invaded Canada and compelled the surrender of Fort Erie before Sir Phineas Riall, the British commander, could come to its relief. During the military operations which followed, three spirited battles were fought on the Canadian side of the Niagara River; namely, the battle of Chippewa, the battle of Lundy's Lane, and the siege of Fort Erie. Each of these battles was an American victory; but, curious to relate, the final outcome of the whole campaign was a complete failure for the Americans.

The British were entrenched along the Chippewa River; the Americans took a position behind Street's Creek; between which two streams there stretched a large open meadow. On July 5th, there was constant picket-firing and skirmishing between the armies thus facing each other; at four o'clock in the afternoon of that day, Riall marched out on the plain with his whole army drawn up in order of battle, attacking the brigade of volunteers, quickly put them to flight; but Winfield Scott brought his regulars into action and compelled the British to retire to their encampment. The loss on each side was about 300 men. This is known as the battle of Chippewa.

Riall retreated to Lake Ontario. Brown, anxious to lead his army along the lake shore and capture Toronto and Kingston, made his headquarters at Queenston and remained there three weeks waiting in vain for supplies and re-inforcements; then, disappointed, he fell back to the Chippewa River. Riall, who had been re-inforced by troops brought from Toronto by Gen. Drummond, again advanced southward toward the American position, concealing his movements very carefully. Brown began to fear that there might be some truth in the rumor that the British were preparing to invade New York State; and he therefore sent Scott with a strong force to reconnoiter and find out where the British army was.

This led to the famous battle which was fought in Canada near Niagara Falls on July 25, 1814, and which by mere accident has made the name of Lundy a familiar word in every English-speaking community throughout North America. Scott advanced northward along the Niagara River. Riall on the alert, quickly learned of Scott's advance and prepared to check it. He selected his position with great skill; he did not place himself directly in front of the Americans, but stationed his army a short distance to the west of the road, on elevated ground, whence he would be able to pour down a destructive fire into the ranks of the Americans if they should be rash enough to continue their forward movement along the main road. On this eminence, the key of the position, Riall planted a battery of nine cannon, drew up his army round about it, and waited. Scott realized the situation at once; it would be folly to advance along the main road; either he must return to camp, or he must drive the British from that hilltop. He tried to carry the hill by storm, but was repulsed with severe loss; this was about six o'clock in the afternoon. Major Jesup was sent to steal around to the rear of the British and he was so far successful as to capture some prisoners, including Riall himself. Brown arrived on the field with the main army just at dark; and a new plan was immediately arranged with the view to force the enemy to abandon his position.

Troops were selected for a storming column, and to them was assigned the duty of carrying the battery by a charge directly up the hill. An officer was wanted to head the line. The commander-in-chief summoned Major James Miller to his side and said, "Can you capture that battery?" Miller looked at the hill already sprinkled with the bodies of dead comrades and replied, "I'll try, sir." Falling in line, they dashed straight up the hill in the face of the battery and captured it and held it, displaying a courage and gallantry that has never been surpassed in the annals of American warfare.

The greater part of the American army was at once massed together on the hill. Three vigorous and determined attempts were made by the British to regain the battery, but without success; and finally about midnight they retired from the contest. The Americans remained on the battle field a very brief time, and then in the darkness they, too, withdrew, so exhausted with the struggle that they were unable to take with them the cannon which they had captured and retained at such a fearful cost. The British re-occupied the blood-drenched hill and took possession of their lost cannon, unmolested. Each side had lost about 850 men, an exceptionally heavy loss in proportion to the number of men engaged. The opposing commanders were taken to Buffalo, Brown having been severely wounded and Riall as a prisoner; Scott also was wounded nigh unto death. Technically the victory rested with the Americans, for at the close of the fight they were the masters of the field; but practically all the fruits of victory were secured by the British, for the resistance which they made was so courageous and so stubborn that the whole scheme of invasion had to be abandoned.

This sharp and bloody conflict is known in history as the battle of Lundy's Lane, for the land thereabout was owned by a Quaker farmer named William Lundy, and the lane which led to his dwelling house branched off at right angles from the main road and passed westward directly over the top of the hill on which the battle was fought.

The Americans retreated in great haste to Fort Erie, where they were soon hemmed in by the British. General Drummond planned a surprise; he led his army forward at midnight in three columns silently; but the Americans were under arms waiting for him. Assault after assault was made by the British soldiers with matchless courage and persistency, even gaining one of the bastions and holding it until daybreak. Although compelled at length to desist from the attack, they continued to press the siege with energy for several weeks until the Americans made a sudden sally out of the fort and destroyed their batteries. This sortie was the last battle of the campaign. The contending armies then separated; General Drummond relinquished his attempt to capture the place and led his troops back to Chippewa; the Americans abandoned the fort and returned to New York State. Thus ended the invasion of Canada.

REV. WILLIAM LUNDY OF VIRGINIA.

William Lundy was the son of Samuel P. Lundy and Sarah Davis, and a grandson of Richard Lundy IV. and Mary Stockton. He was born in 1823 near Fisher's Peak, Carroll county, Virginia; and it was amid the romantic scenery of that weird region that he received his first impressions of human life and what it means. He became a dextrous hunter and an expert shot with the rifle; in middle life he could shoot offhand and hit a squirrel's head in the top of a tall tree. Many a deer running at full speed has gone down at the crack of his gun; once in a deer chase in his early life, he was accidentally shot and dangerously wounded by one of his companions. Without the aid of schools he acquired a good rudimentary education and taught school for several years. In the olden times when reading, writing and cyphering were the only branches taught in the common schools, Mr. Lundy was one of the teachers that could cypher through the rule of three and extract the cube root, in Pike's old arithmetic. In 1841 he married Lucy Payne, who lived and cheered his life for the next forty-nine years.

William joined the Primitive Baptist Church at Crooked Creek on the 16th day of August, 1854, and on the next day was baptized in the clear and limpid waters of that wandering stream. He came up out of the water a preacher and preached his first sermon on the day of his baptism and was thenceforth to the day of his death an earnest, faithful and zealous preacher.

When Virginia in 1861 called for volunteers to repel the invasion of her territory by the Federal Government, Mr. Lundy volunteered and was made captain of Co. E in the 45th regiment of Virginia Infantry. Capt. Lundy participated in all the battles fought in western Virginia during the campaigns of 1861-62; and under many a shower of leaden fire proved himself to be a brave officer and gallant soldier. He was always kind and considerate toward his men and obedient to his superiors in office. He never disobeyed but one order, and that was an order from his colonel to burn some wheat and other grain. He positively refused to obey this order, saying that he would not burn grain when so many women and children were suffering for it. During the battle at Laurel Creek, West Virginia, Capt. Lundy stood where he was fully exposed to the enemy's fire; and his tall and commanding form made him a target for their bullets. When urged to get behind a tree, he said, "Every shot they fire at me will miss my men." It is needless to say that wherever Capt. Lundy led the way, his men would follow him.

Retiring from military service, he took up again more vigorously the sword of the spirit and preached the gospel to human creatures. As a parent, Mr. Lundy was all that a strong loving father could be; as a neighbor and friend, he was always ready with heart and hand to do his whole duty and more too. As a public speaker, his language was remarkably direct and vigorous; when his mind was made up on any subject, he was sure to blurt it out in language that never betrayed his meaning. In talking with young people Mr. Lundy used to say: "When you were children, you trampled on your parents' toes. Now you are grown, you trample on their hearts. Remember that you are heavy and the heart is a tender organ, and let your steps be light when you tread there."

He preached his first sermon at Crooked Creek Church in 1854; he preached his last sermon on the 7th day of January, 1900, at Piney Creek Church in Alleghany county, N. C., from the text: "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." Between the dates of these two sermons there rolls a period of more than forty-five years, during which he traveled and preached through seventeen States of the American Union. Indeed, his tours were so extensive that it would seem that there can be but few Primitive Baptists in the Southern States who have not heard him preach. In his long and extensive career as a minister of the gospel, he failed to fill only seven appointments, six of these failures occurred while he was prostrated with sickness, and one while he was ice-bound. He would ford rivers and streams to meet his appointments, although those who were acquainted with the fords would beg him not to undertake it.

He was ever an ardent and devoted student of the Scriptures: they were to him the very bread of life. He studied and interpreted Scripture by Scripture and never used commentaries, articles of faith or theological tenets as aids. He was Calvinistic in his views, although he knew nothing of the writings of John Calvin. When his mind was fixed, he preached his doctrines with great boldness and with much energy. His blows fell on sin and sinners with the force of a sledge hammer. When his mind was not clear, he would say: "I will leave that with the Almighty." His views were the honest productions of his earnest brain, heart and conscience, arrived at in the fear of God but in the fear of God alone.

He lived and died with an unsubdued aversion to ministers who preached for stated salaries. In his early career, he did not own a horse to ride to his appointments. He would labor hard in the fields day in and day out to make bread for the wife and children he loved, but when the day came for him to preach, he would get up early in the morning and often walk fifteen to twenty miles to reach his appointment. On these preaching tours, he has left his wife too sick to reach up and clasp his hand as he bade her goodbye, and his little children have often followed him past the door and begged papa to come back. But he said he felt the Master's hand upon him requiring him to preach and that he could leave his wife and children in the hands of an all-wise God to whom he prayed for their protection. He never allowed himself to become a charge on his church; he preached to thousands upon thousands, but he never took up a collection. With the labor of his own hands, he supported his family and himself; the voice that called him to preach never suggested pay.

He died away from home on one of his preaching tours. The friends who heard Brother Lundy's last sermon say that he stood up straighter in the pulpit that day than usual; that his voice seemed clearer than usual, and that he was blessed that day with superior gifts in the way of delivery. He was thrown from his buggy as he went away from the church and much hurt; he got into the buggy again and rode on to the house of a friend where he had started to go; and on arriving, he said: "Do not let my children know I am hurt; they could do me no good; and I do not think it will kill me." When he seemed to be getting better from his injuries, he was stricken with paralysis and soon died.

His mind seemed clear to the last. When the faithful band of church members and friends who gathered around were speaking in whispers lest they should disturb the dying man, he aroused up and said: "All come right up here and sing me one more song." Then in response to the inquiry "What shall we sing, Brother Lundy?" he said: "Just sing glory, glory, that will do." They sang a few appropriate stanzas, to which he seemed to listen with great delight. When the song was finished, he turned his head slightly upon his pillow and said: "Now I must cross that river," and soon sank into the dreamless sleep of the dead. His body was buried in the graveyard at Antioch, North Carolina; and notwithstanding the snows and storms of January, fully one thousand people gathered around the open grave to witness the last sad rite.

Thus in peace and confidence ended the life of a hardy mountaineer who had accepted for himself the gospel of Jesus of Nazareth and had preached it faithfully unto others, a typical instance of the power of the gospel story to touch and mould minds of strength and energy among the common people.

SIXTH BRANCH.

JOHN LUNDY I. AND REBECCA SILVERTHORN.

OF WARREN COUNTY, N. J. ; OF GRAYSON CO., VA.

John Lundy I. (of Richard III.) was born 19 of 9 mo., 1751, in Sussex (now Warren) county, N. J., and died on his homestead near Oldtown, Grayson county, Va., May 5, 1831, at the age of eighty-two. His will is dated April 30, 1831. Rebecca Silverthorn was born about 1753, and died December 24, 1839, at the age of eighty-two. The approximate date of the marriage of John and Rebecca, as given in the minutes of the Kingswood Monthly Meeting of the Society of Friends, is 11 of 12 mo., 1777. Several children were born to them in New Jersey; on the 10 of 2 mo., 1785, John requested from the Kingwood M. M. a certificate of membership addressed to the Deep River Monthly Meeting in North Carolina.

John settled in Grayson county, Virginia, and secured from the land-office at Richmond a treasury-warrant for one hundred acres of land. The warrant was No. 7,339, and was dated August 15, 1787. He selected his land at once and built a cabin, and began to clear away the timber so as to have fields for crops, but he did not have his land surveyed until July 6, 1798; and ten years more elapsed before he completed his title by obtaining the final legal document called a patent. The patent is dated 1808, and is signed by William H. Cabell, Governor of Virginia. John seemed to have taken his time to it; and it strikes us moderns as being an exceedingly leisurely way of acquiring title to real estate; but the original warrant fortified by actual possession was doubtless all that the law required, a survey not being necessary until neighbors began to crowd in around him, and a patent not being necessary until a transfer of title to other parties was thought of.

Fisher's Peak is a high knob on the Blue Ridge, part of it being in Virginia and part of it in North Carolina. A man named Fisher was the first to trim out a way across that part of the mountain range, and so the notch through which he made the path was named after him and called Fisher's Gap. This same man was one of the surveyors that laid out the State line; and while overheated he drank too much cold water from a spring which flows out of a rock near the top of the hill, and at this spring he died; and that is the reason why the summit goes by his name and is called Fisher's Peak.

Richard Lundy settled within two miles of Fisher's Peak; his farm is now owned by Barnett Paine.

Azariah also settled along the side of the Blue Ridge; his farm is now owned by Floyd Brannock. The old house went to ruin long, long ago, and its location is now indicated only by some old pieces of logs and some foundation stones. When Carroll county was organized and set off from Grayson, Azariah's place fell within the new county.

The road leading from Fisher's Gap to Oldtown divides and sends off a branch or spur which leads to the Little Old Iron Works. Here in the fork made by the main road and the spur John and Amos Lundy settled on adjoining farms. John built his cabin on a hill; this made it unhandy to get water, every drop of which had to be carried uphill from the spring, which was two hundred yards away. These old homesteads are two miles from the present post office of Meadow Creek, four miles from Oldtown, and six from Fisher's Gap. The land taken up by Amos is now owned by Greggs Kampton; but John's homestead is still in the Lundy name, being now occupied by his great-great-grandsons, Churchwell O. and Emmet W. Lundy.

The only means those pioneers had to carry things was on their backs or on horses; and it was the hardest kind of work to carry things even that way; for the roads were narrow, rough, and steep, going straight up one ridge, over the hill-top, and straight down the other side, keeping in quite straight lines, much more so than now, when many of the roads have been changed and graded around the hills. Some of the old trails may be seen even at this day, leading up over hills, which have not been cleared.

Some of the early settlers had a hard time to get started. With only a few fields cleared, when their crops failed or were destroyed, they would run short of things to eat. In these times of want, they would follow close after the cows as they roamed through the woods, and whatever the cows would eat, they would gather for pottage, seeking thus to make their little stock of provisions last longer and to add variety to their monotonous bill of fare.

Wolves were a great scourge. They would howl so nights that no one could sleep. Shooting at them as they skulked in the shadows did not stop their throats except for a little while; for they would soon start at it again. The best way to keep them quiet was to build a large bonfire of brush and logs in the yard or garden or field near the house. Wolves are cowards and love a thicket; and for this reason children when playing around the doorsteps were much safer when the house stood on high ground. The undergrowth was much thicker on the lowlands; and the wolves were much more likely to attack a person down there; for they could skulk through the dense brush and get close to him without exposing themselves to view, especially late or at night. And for this reason too, a wide space was kept cleared around the spring. The pigs and calves had to be put into strong pens every night. It was an incessant care to the settler to guard the two or three sheep which he had secured from a distance at much cost and trouble to have wool to spin. Wolves would prowl around and at nightfall would sometimes become so bold as to make in pack fierce attacks on the sheep pen. Of course, they could not break into the pen, but they would cause the sheep to injure themselves through fright; so that through fear of this result the farmer would be compelled to bring his sheep into the house during the night, putting them into a large box by the chimney corner. These ferocious "varmints" are now very scarce; but every three or four years a small pack passes through.

I have said that John Lundy perched his cabin high up on the hillside; all the other pioneers did the same. This looks somewhat foolish at this distance of time; but they were wise in their day and generation. Death lurked along the water-courses. The meadows were undrained and leaves and other litter clogged up the streams. Fever and ague has ever been the dread of those who clear away the forests and break up the virgin soil; and bitter experience everywhere taught the first settlers to look upon the damp air of the lowlands as a slow poison. Of course, they did not build their houses on the highest knobs which are mountainous and almost destitute of water, but on ridges of land somewhat elevated.

John and Rebecca Lundy had two sons and six daughters. Aaron, the older son, married and settled on a farm half-way between his father's and Oldtown; Amos, the younger son, married and finally obtained the homestead; Rachel, the youngest child, remained at home and took care of her father John in his old age. Rachel herself was blessed with a long life and a good memory, and she enjoyed telling the younger generation about her father and mother and the inconveniences and hardships which they had endured as early settlers. She is still remembered as walking around the dooryard with two canes; and when the little sons of her nephews and nieces came to help her by doing small jobs, such as chopping wood, pulling weeds, gathering berries and apples, and carrying water, she would sit down by them after their work was done and tell them stories about the by-gone days, and would further show her appreciation of their kindness by giving them for keepsakes various little articles that had once belonged to their great grand parents. And it is needless to say that these relics, the quaint cup and saucer, the fancy buckle, the spectacle case, the old-fashioned buttons, the razor hone, and such like things, are now prized even more highly as the years go by.

GROUP THREE.

THE DESCENDANTS OF

Joseph Lundy

OF WARREN COUNTY, NEW JERSEY.

BORN IN 1719; DIED IN 1759.

LINEAGE.

1. Sylvester Lundy, of Axminster, England.
2. Richard Lundy I. and Jane Lyon, of Bucks Co., Pa.
3. Richard Lundy II. and Elizabeth Large, of Warren Co., N. J.
4. Joseph Lundy and Susanna Hutton, of Warren Co., N. J.

The line then divides into three branches:

- I. Sarah Lundy and Joseph Carpenter.
- II. Enos Lundy, Sr., and Rachel Carpenter.
- III. Hannah Lundy and Samuel Shotwell.

Joseph Lundy, whose name stands at the beginning of this Group, was the son of Richard Lundy II. and Elizabeth Large. Joseph was born in Bucks county, Pa., 24 of 4 mo., 1719. The first occurrence of his name is found on the minutes of the Exeter Monthly Meeting at Maiden Creek in Berks county, Pa.; in which minutes it is stated that on 31 day of 1 mo., 1743, Joseph Lundy and Susanna Hutton were left at liberty to marry.

Joseph and his wife Susanna requested on 30 day 3 mo., 1745, from the Exeter Meeting a certificate of membership addressed to the Bethlehem (afterward Kingwood, now Quakertown) Monthly Meeting in Hunterdon county, N. J..

which certificate they presented at Bethlehem of the 8 day of 5 mo. following.

Joseph was a witness to the will of his brother Richard III. in 1756.

On the 14 day of 9 mo., 1758, a certain Joseph Lundy declared his intention to marry Sarah Willson of Hardwick township. In 1759, letters of administration were granted on the estate of a Joseph Lundy; see Liber IX., page 392, among Wills, at Trenton, N. J. Since no descriptive term such as senior or junior is applied to either of the two Josephs last mentioned, it seems natural to regard them as identical with Joseph the husband of Susanna Hutton.

It is not known how many children Joseph and Susanna had; definite information has been obtained in regard to only one of them, their son Enos. Tradition has handed down the name of a daughter Sarah; this Sarah may have been the Sarah Lundy who with Joseph Carpenter made their first declaration of intention of marriage, before the Kingwood Monthly Meeting on 8 day of 9 mo., 1768.

Among the witnesses to the marriage of Jesse Dennis and Ann Schooley on 18 of 10 mo., 1781, at Newton, N. J., were Nancy Lundy and Hannah Lundy; and among the witnesses to the marriage of George Lundy and Esther Willson at the Hardwick Meeting-house on 15 of 3 mo., 1780, was Catharine Lundy. The parentage and relationship of Nancy, Hannah, and Catharine have not been ascertained. There is no further record concerning Nancy and Catharine; Hannah in 1788 married Samuel Shotwell and settled in Sussex county, N. J. I venture to classify Nancy, Hannah and Catharine, provisionally, as the children of Joseph Lundy.

JOSEPH LUNDY AND SUSANNA HUTTON.

- I. William, of Newton township, Sussex county, N. J., assigned here inferentially; m. Mary Webster.
- II. Sarah, assigned here by tradition; m. Joseph Carpenter.

- IV. Hannah, assigned here doubtfully; m. Samuel Shotwell.

V. Nancy, possibly; no further record.

VI. Catherine, possibly; no further record.

William Lundy, on April 13, 1769, obtained from the civil government a license to marry Mary Webster; the bond given at that time by him in order to obtain the license is recorded at Trenton, N. J., in volume L, Licenses of Marriage, years 1764-1794. Asa Schooley was William's bondman; and all the persons are described as of Newton, Sussex county, N. J. No further record.

It may be of interest to insert here a copy of the marriage license anciently required by law in the province of New Jersey.

On January 5, 1768, Jacob's father, Richard Lundy II., being at that time in his seventy-sixth year, deeded to Jacob one of the homestead farms in Warren county; the consideration of this transfer of real estate is stated in the words of the deed itself to have been "the love and natural affection which he hath and beareth to his son Jacob Lundy."

At a council held at Perth Amboy, N. J., September 17, 1772, Jacob was nominated by Governor William Franklin to be made a justice of the peace for the County of Sussex; which was assented to by the Council. For three years, 1773-5, he was a member of the Board of Justices and Freeholders of Sussex county. In an old account book that belonged to the "Union Iron Works" in Hunterdon county, N. J., there is an entry under date of December 3, 1773, which reads "Bo't 2 fat cattle of Jacob Lunday of Sussex Co.," a transaction which illustrates the fact that one source of income to the farmers of northern New Jersey in colonial times was to raise and fatten horned cattle and then drive them to market.

Jacob died 17 day of 1 mo., 1800, at the age of seventy-nine; Mary Willson, his wife, died 29 of 12 mo., 1816, at the age of eighty-three; both were buried at Hardwick.

They settled on the great meadows in Warren county, N. J. They had ten children, all born "at Hardwick township, County of Sussex, and Province of New Jersey." Their family Bible is now in the possession of Mrs. Price Stickles, Johnsonburg, N. J.

TESTIMONIAL concerning Jacob Lundy, 1751-1806, an Elder in the Society of Friends.

The following testimonial is recorded in Friends' Miscellany, Vol. VI., 1835, pp. 141-3; for a copy of it, I am indebted to Ambrose M. Shotwell in his Annals of Our Colonial Ancestors.

"Jacob Lundy was descended of sober, honest, and respectable parents, Jacob and Mary Lundy, of the Society of Friends, members of Hardwick monthly meeting, New Jersey. He was a dutiful and affectionate son, and lived with his parents in much harmony, and in the decline of life, he was a comfort and staff for them to lean upon. May others be engaged to go and do likewise, that they may reap the reward of an approving conscience, which appeared to be his happy experience. Being for some time in poor health, he told his physician to speak his mind plainly, for he did not fear. After he was confined to his room, he remarked to those present, that he did not expect to go out until he was carried out. About two weeks before his decease, he desired to have his children sent for, his step-daughter being one of them, to whom he had extended a parental care, and to whom he expressed himself tenderly, saying, 'Dear child, I am glad to see you again'; and repeated it twice. He appeared to bear his bodily suffering, which was great, without a murmur,—was very patient and quiet, as though his day's work was done, except bearing the pain of the mortal body; yet sometimes, when in great distress through oppression, he would say, 'what can be done? I fear I am not patient enough.'

"He was favored throughout with his rational faculties without much change; and, near half an hour before he departed, he fell into a quiet sleep, and drew his breath shorter and shorter, until he expired without a sigh or groan, or the least motion, so calm and easy that death seemed disarmed of his terrors. At this solemn period, his aged mother, standing by, bore this testimony, 'Why should we wish his stay, seeing his way is made so easy?'

"He was an example of piety and virtue; and in early life, was called upon to fill very important stations in the Society. He was for many years clerk of the monthly meeting. In 1772, he was chosen to the station of an Elder; the duties of which he was careful to fulfill with dignity and uprightness, to the end of his days. In the year 1783 he was married to Sarah, the widow of William Hampton, of Rahway; she being a minister to whom he was a helpmate in her christian exercises; and and when she was concerned to travel on Truth's account, he endeavored to open the way for her to fulfill the work she believed herself called unto, by assisting her freely.

"Jacob Lundy also traveled in the service of Truth, on his own concern, to visit Friends in their meetings for discipline. In the second month of the year 1801, he was furnished with a minute of the unity of his friends, to attend a few meetings for discipline, in the remote parts of Pennsylvania.—Again, in 1805, the monthly meeting set him at liberty to attend Redstone Quarterly and the monthly meetings composing it, stating in his certificate, that he was 'an elder in good esteem.'

"He was very diligent in the attendance of all our religious meetings, those near home as well as monthly, Quarterly, and Yearly Meetings; encouraging his family also in this important duty. He was a careful neighbor, and careful over his own house to make them comfortable. He was of a tender spirit, so that, at times, when reading, or hearing others read the Bible, he has appeared to be affected, even to tears. He was ever ready to entertain strangers, particularly those who were traveling on Truth's account, who found him kind and hospitable, to the comforting, as well as refreshing of the weary, so that oft times, the visitors and the visited have had to rejoice together, feeding, as it were, at the banqueting table of heavenly love."

Several families of Indians dwelt in Hardwick township when the first white settlers came. They went away during the French and Indian war and sought more western homes along the waters of the Susquehanna river; but after peace was made, some of the native Indians returned to New Jersey every year on a short excursion to linger in their old haunts and revisit the graves of their forefathers; and incidentally to enjoy an outing and sell trinkets and willow-ware, to beg for old clothes and gather in small coin from visitors before whom they would exhibit their skill in the use of the bow and arrow. They generally encamped in the wood along the road between Hoey's and Buckley's. Elizabeth Lundy, born 1787, afterward Mrs. Abner Willson, used to relate concerning the Indians many incidents that occurred in her childhood days when she and other children visited the encampment.

ALFRED LEWIS DENNIS.

BORN IN 1817; DIED IN 1890.

Founder of the Dennis Library at Newton, N. J.

It is the chief glory of our country that it sets an open door before young men, bidding them enter if they be worthy; and the most fascinating pages of our country's history are those which record the struggles, the courage and the successes of young men with no resources but their own in reaching high positions among their fellows. This is illustrated in the career of Alfred Lewis Dennis. He was born at Newton, Sussex county, N. J., on 4th day of 4th month, 1817. He was the son of Ezekiel Dennis and Mary Baldwin, grandson of Jesse Dennis and Ann Schooley, and great grandson of Benjamin Schooley and Martha Lundy.

He received his early education in a small classical school established by the Rev. Clarkson N. Dunn, rector of Christ Church. At the age of thirteen he went to Newark, N. J., and found employment for a short time as a grocer's clerk. His worldly goods consisted of a small bundle of clothes and his mother's blessing. Mr. William Tuttle, who had a bookstore at the corner of Broad and Academy streets and was the proprietor of the Sentinel of Freedom, advertised for a boy to learn the bookbinding business; the same evening a lad of diminutive stature applied for the place. Mr. Tuttle looked at the lad and said, "I am afraid you are not big enough to handle the press-bar," referring to the iron-bar used in pressing the sheets for binding. The boy answered with words that at once won him a life-long friend, and which also were the true index of his character and the key to his future success: "I am large enough to try it!" He at once became an apprentice to the business, and also a member of Mr. Tuttle's household; for in those days the master-mechanics and employers of Newark boarded their apprentices in their own families, an old-fashioned but excellent custom.

Mr. Tuttle in the regular performance of his duty as a director in the Newark Banking and Insurance Company went to New York City every Thursday to effect the exchanges for the bank; and this Thursday trip took all day and sometimes a large part of the night if the slow ferry-boat were delayed by wind or fog or ice. This day of bank exchange became an important circumstance in the life of the young apprentice.

No sooner had Alfred been placed in the bindery, than he began "to show the stuff there was in him"; not merely by proving that he was large enough to handle the press-bar and to master other details of the trade, but by studying the nature of the business itself, especially as related to the materials used in it. In this way he studied the subject of binders' leathers, the process and cost of their manufacture, where they were chiefly made, and even the laws regulating their importation into this country.

After Mr. Dennis had been some months in the bindery, he asked Mr. Tuttle to be allowed to act as clerk in the bookstore at night. At once he began to display his characteristic trait of getting a thorough knowledge of the business. He soon knew the position on the shelves of all the books, and their cost and price, and the principles on which the bookselling business was conducted.

Not long after this night service was in successful operation, Mr. Dennis worked five days a week as an apprentice in the bindery, but served as clerk in the bookstore every Thursday while his employer went to New York for the bank. So skillfully did he conduct his sales and so well did he conciliate customers, that the sales of books on Thursday were perceptibly larger than those on other days. Of course, it was not long before he became the trusted clerk whose services were devoted entirely to the bookstore. All this while the young man was increasing his knowledge both of bookmaking and bookselling, and of the thoughts and contents of books. As the day of his majority was drawing nigh, the question of his own future was one that caused young Dennis no little anxiety. He had carefully studied bookselling as a business, and especially bookselling at the old store, corner of Broad and Academy.

Not long before he was twenty-one he astonished his employer by a proposition to buy out his business as a bookseller, with all the stock in hand. He admitted he had no capital, but was sure he soon would have some if he could have a chance. After careful consideration, Mr. Tuttle—a man noted for his caution—agreed to sell out his store to Mr. Dennis on terms satisfactory to both.

At once a great change was effected in the stock of books and in the business. The "dead-stock" of the upper shelves was sent to the auction rooms to be sold for what it would bring in cash. With great sagacity he also devised and introduced into his business a method at that time unknown in any salesroom of Newark—the taking orders for merchandise in his line and filling them by immediate purchase in New York. Several times a week he went to the city and each night he would be ready to furnish his customers with the merchandise ordered. Of course, he made quick sales, turned his capital often, and accumulated no dead stock. Careful of his credit and on the alert for custom, he soon greatly enlarged his business. Sometimes he seemed rash to his old employer, but he rarely failed to make his investments profitable. In due time he not only paid Mr. Tuttle for his books, but he had purchased the valuable property on which the store was located. This last purchase, however, was not made until after Mr. Tuttle's death.

Mention has been made of the fact that when in the bindery Mr. Dennis had carefully studied the history of binders' leathers. Confident that his venture would prove profitable, he quietly invested a few hundred dollars in sheepskins only partially finished in England. He had the process completed in Connecticut, and then among the first to whom he offered his leathers were the Harper Brothers, who finding his wares excellent and his prices reasonable, purchased largely. In a very short time he had disposed of his stock at a fair profit and had ordered a larger invoice from England. This was the beginning of a large and profitable business so shrewdly managed that it led the wealthy firm of Abram Bell & Co., of New York, in 1849, to offer him an interest in their business and to give him its principal control. This proved to be one of large profit.

Meanwhile Mr. Dennis continued the book business at Newark, having taken his brother, Martin R. Dennis, into partnership; in 1861, he disposed of his interest to his partner and retired from the firm.

Mr. Dennis proved so successful in the investment of his surplus capital that he had become an acknowledged authority in matters of finance, and about 1856 he was elected a director of the same bank of which Mr. Tuttle had been a director; he also became an influential director of the Howard Savings Institution of Newark, which stands among the best managed in this country.

Having married in Connecticut, he was led to examine the condition and probable outcome of the Naugatuck Railroad, and he finally purchased a large amount of stock and was elected its vice president. Not a little owing to his tact is due the fact that this road cleared off its entire bonded debt and regularly paid satisfactory dividends.

In 1861, Mr. John P. Jackson, the vice president of the New Jersey Railroad and Transportation Company, died, and Mr. Dennis was elected his successor; and in 1864, when Gen. John S. Darcy, the president of that railroad, died, Mr. Dennis was elected his successor—a position which he filled with great ability until the road was leased in 1872 to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

It almost bewilders one to think that the boy so slight of stature who in his poverty uttered those words of pluck, "I am large enough to try it," rose finally to occupy so many positions of great responsibility in the business world; the vice president of the Naugatuck Railroad, vice president of the United Railroads of New Jersey, the fiscal and executive agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad at New York, and president of the Jersey City Ferry Company. He was also an active director in the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, and in connection with such men as Jay Gould, John I. Blair, and Samuel Sloan, built the extension of that road from Binghamton to Buffalo. While this enumeration does not exhaust the list of his responsible trusts, it is sufficient to indicate the confidence placed in his sagacity and executive ability as a business man.

While Mr. Dennis had been investing his fortune so advantageously in these great corporations, he did not forget the city of his adoption, but freely invested in buildings in Newark and in other ways helped to enlarge the city.

Occasionally as a railroad executive he met with some very marked incidents. Such a one was his placing a palatial train from Jersey City to Washington at the service of the Grand Duke Alexis of Russia, then visiting this country. It was a graceful and complimentary act in honor of our distinguished guest. The Grand Duke recognized the act by a beautiful souvenir, and also an autograph letter, which he sent to Mr. Dennis.

When the Civil War broke out, threats were freely made that if the New Jersey Railroad took troops South, the torch would be applied to the bridges over the Hackensack and the Passaic. General Darcy, the president of the road, and Mr. Dennis, one of the directors, were one whole night looking after these bridges and directing the batteries whose guns were trained to guard every foot of the endangered structures. They were surrounded by a mob of desperate men bent on burning the bridges. General Darcy and Mr. Dennis, in the carriage of the general, were driving to the scene of danger when they were beset by the roughs who took the horse from the carriage. General Darcy was popular with the men, and finally induced them to hitch the horse to the wagon and allow them to drive on. It was a night of danger, but prudence, courage and the well-loaded cannon brought the matter to a safe conclusion; so that not a single train was detained.

In 1866 Mr. Dennis determined to aid in founding a public library in Newton, Sussex county, N. J., the place of his birth. Accordingly he pledged the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars on certain conditions. Private subscription were obtained sufficient to secure his gift.

On September 28, 1872, the building was dedicated, and addresses made by Col. Robert Hamilton, Judge Martin Ryer-son, and other distinguished gentlemen of Sussex county.

"It is with much pleasure," said Colonel Hamilton in delivering the address of welcome, "that I am allowed to officiate at the presentation of this beautiful building, with its ample dimensions and well-ordered apartments. For it we are indebted to a gentleman who is with us, who, though a native of our town, has gone abroad and prospered, and who in his success forgets not his native town and people. I feel assured that you will be glad with me to express to him our grateful acknowledgments for his generosity in the following resolution:

'Resolved, that we tender to Alfred L. Dennis, Esq., our most heartfelt thanks for his munificent endowment of twenty-five thousand dollars for the library enterprise in Newton, and that we present to him our best wishes for his continued welfare.'

The building is 45 feet front by 75 feet deep, three stories in height, with a basement, has a mansard roof and ornamental tower, and is constructed of pressed brick with blue limestone corners. The first story is occupied by business offices, the second story by the library and reading room; and the third story, extending over the whole area of the building, is used as a public lecture-room and known as Library Hall.

Mr. Dennis was an active patron of many worthy objects that came before him, and was a trustee, with William E. Dodge, S. B. Chittenden, William A. Booth, and others, of the Syrian Protestant College at Beyrout, Ottoman Empire.

The foregoing sketch of the life of Alfred Lewis Dennis is based on an article printed in Snell's History of Sussex and Warren counties, N. J.

He was installed as pastor of a congregation of that faith at Sing Sing, N. Y., and was there two years. Having joined the Protestant Episcopal Church, and having been ordained deacon at St. Paul's Church by Bishop Upfold on October 25, 1854, he served for a year as minister-in-charge of Briar Cliff Chapel, and as chaplain of Sing Sing prison. On October 28, 1855, he was ordained a priest by Bishop Alonzo Potter at All Saints', Philadelphia, and at once became rector of that Church. In 1857, he accepted the rectorship of Emanuel Church at Holmesburg, Pa., where he remained several years. During this period he traveled abroad and visited Europe, Egypt, Palestine and Syria. His next rectorship was that of Christ Church, Reading, Pa. In 1869 he was elected rector of the Church of the Holy Apostles, New York City, where he remained until 1875, when he resigned on account of failing health and was compelled to give up the active work of the ministry. Although endowed by nature with a strong physical constitution, he had impaired his health by overwork. After his resignation he never held a rectorship, although during a vacancy at St. Mark's and at St. Stephen's in the city of Philadelphia he was minister-in-charge of each of these important parishes for about a year.

Such is the brief record of his professional life, but it does not describe his work as an author. Many of the articles written by Dr. Lundy were printed in the magazines of the day; others were published in pamphlet form and attained a wide circulation owing to the circumstances under which they were issued. I will mention two of these: the one shows his position and sympathies on the questions of slavery and secession, those volcanoes once burning but now happily extinct; the other relates to the subject of forestry and was published in the interest of the Pennsylvania Forestry Association of which he was President.

The Rev. John Hopkins, Bishop of Vermont, wrote a pamphlet on the "Bible View of Slavery," maintaining that the relationship of master and slave was not a sin per se and condemning the ultra-abolitionism of the day; this he sent to some gentlemen in Philadelphia, and it was printed and distributed in the fall of 1863 by a political committee as a campaign document. An indignant protest was at once drawn up and signed by the clergy of Pennsylvania. Dr. Lundy not only signed the protest, but he did more; he wrote a reply, vigorous, masterly, and at times almost virulent, which was published under the title of a "Review of Bishop Hopkins' Bible View of Slavery, by a Presbyterian of the Church in Philadelphia." It proved to be a timely and effective article, even though it did fail to convince the good Bishop.

Dr. Lundy was one of the first persons in the United States to call attention to the science of forestry and to the importance of making forest culture and preservation a practical study here in America. He was one of the founders of the Pennsylvania Forestry Association. During the latter part of his life, he labored in season and out of season to arouse public interest on this subject; for his own views had been intensified by what he had seen in other countries once renowned for their fertility, but now sterilized by the destruction of their forests. In 1880, he printed for his friends "A Sketch of Adirondack Life"; and from this, some chapters under the title of "Forestry at Home and Abroad" were taken and published in the interest of the Pennsylvania Forestry Association.

Dr. Lundy was the author of an anonymous romance called "The Exiles of Laranai."

But Dr. Lundy was capable of planning and carrying out historical research of a comprehensive character; and I have now to speak of the two works on which he bestowed great care—literary undertakings at once broad in scope, important in theme and original in design.

At the beginning of his professional career he conceived the idea of writing a book of permanent value and selected a topic for investigation; and for twenty years thereafter he kept steadily at work collecting and arranging material, developing and elaborating his ideas, sometimes traveling abroad to secure the needed data, until finally he was able during the centennial year to present to the public a volume containing the result of his researches. This notable book bore the title "Monumental Christianity, or The Art and Symbolism of the Primitive Church as Witnesses and Teachers of the One Catholic Faith and Practice." It was a quarto volume of 453 pages, enriched with one hundred and ninety-six illustrations, about twenty of them being full-paged or two-paged; it was brought out in January, 1876, by James W. Bouton, New York City.

Portions of the preface to the book are autobiographical in character; so I have ventured to select from it some detached paragraphs.

"My first interest in archæology," says Dr. Lundy, "was awakened about thirty years ago while a student at Princeton by reading Stephen's two works on 'Central America' and 'Yucatan.' Some years afterwards when living in a retired country parsonage, the works of Layard on 'Nineveh and Babylon,' Belzoni's 'Egypt and Nubia,' and Wilkinson's 'Ancient Egyptians' were read with equal wonder and delight. It is now nearly twenty years ago that I asked myself the question as to what had been done in a like direction for Christianity and the Church. I found that nothing or next to nothing existed in the English language, although there were able works bearing upon the subject in Italian, French, German, and Latin. But they are more or less controversial. Hence my thought and endeavor have here taken the direction of an appeal to the earliest Christian monuments to ascertain, as far as possible, what evidence they contain as to the real and entire truth of primitive Christianity. But this made an inspection of the monuments necessary. Accordingly I went to Italy and sojourned at Rome as long as possible, where I spent my time chiefly in visiting such of the Catacombs as were accessible, copying inscriptions from the Lapidarian Gallery and elsewhere, inspecting numerous sarcophagi, examining the mosaics of the old Churches, and following as I could the results of Marchi's explorations as well as those of De Rossi. Here I learned that a stupendous monumental record of Christianity exists equal, if not superior, in richness to any in Egypt, Assyria, Babylonia, Mexico, or Central America, as to the religious manners and customs of their ancient inhabitants. I kept a full journal of all that I saw and learned which has well served me in this investigation. Naples, Pompeii and Poes-tum were next visited, where I found much monumental evidence of the vices and profligacy, culture and elegance, shame and glory of defunct Paganism. Thence I went to Egypt to see something of its ruins and monuments, and to procure some antique bronzes, scarabei, and other curiosities. Palestine and Syria came next in the journey; and Jerusalem, Damascus, Baalbec, Smyrna, and Constantinople furnished some hints and materials for the work.

"I am not conscious of any mistakes as to matters of fact, or of any perversions of them. Just as I have found things, so I have thought it good to write them down. Mistakes of judgment or mistakes of interpretation, there may be; but I have patiently tried to find the truth of all the symbols here represented, by consulting contemporary literature.

"In reproducing the original engravings of the monuments and some of the monuments themselves, I have preferred the photo-engraving process to the wood cut or the steel engraving to secure greater accuracy. The illustrations, therefore, are fac-similes, true and exact, rather than beautiful and captivating to the eye.

"The work has been to me a very pleasing occupation. If it should in the least degree aid any doubtful or skeptical mind in solving the mysteries and difficulties of religion, or if it should give to the Christian mind any confirmation of the faith, my labor has not been in vain."

Dr. Lundy's life naturally divides itself into three periods. The first was preparatory and includes his course at Princeton College and at the Theological Seminary. The second was the period of his active work in the ministry and covers twenty years, extending from 1855, when he became rector at All Saints', to 1875, when he resigned from the Church of the Holy Apostles. The third and closing period of his life was passed in retirement at Philadelphia, where for sixteen years he devoted himself with unwearied energy to the preparation of a historical work, the scope of which was larger than that of his Monumental Christianity. It was "A History of Worship from Primitive Times." This was a field in which his studies were far-reaching and in which he labored with a keen interest.

But he did not live to finish his undertaking.

He died on Sunday, December 11, 1892, in his seventieth year; his funeral service was held in St. Stephen's Church, Philadelphia, on Wednesday, December 14; and his remains were laid at rest in the churchyard of St. James' Church, Bristol, Pa.

Dr. Lundy's conversational powers were charming; his voice was well-trained and musical; and he had a bright, cheerful manner that made him a welcome guest. He was well read in the liturgies of every age, and his knowledge of theology was extensive; but his attainments were not confined to one domain. He was an antiquarian and an enthusiastic Egyptologist; scientific topics also attracted him and enriched his thought. He never let his love for history and science encroach on his pastoral or social duties; but when these were over, and his time for study and research had come, he treasured every moment and applied himself diligently to his investigations. He was genial, studious and devout. Those who knew him best loved him most and most thoroughly appreciated his manliness, his varied learning, his modest estimate of himself and his tireless industry.

At a meeting of the clergy of the diocese of Pennsylvania, held at St. Stephen's parish house, December 14, 1892, the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That inasmuch as it hath pleased God in His wise providence to take out of this world the soul of our dear brother John P. Lundy, D.D., we wish to place on record our affectionate memory of his godly life, of his great learning whereby he enriched the Church of God, of his high character wherein he was an example to the flock, and of his gentle spirit whereby he showed himself easy to be entreated and that the same spirit was in him which was also in Christ."

The Clerical Brotherhood of Philadelphia on December 19, 1892, unanimously adopted the following minute:

"The Clerical Brotherhood has heard with regret of the death of the Rev. John P. Lundy, D.D. Though only an occasional attendant upon our meetings, we have learned to esteem him highly. In the several parishes in this and other dioceses, of which he was a rector, he did faithful work for the Master. And when by reason of ill-health he was obliged to relinquish the active duties of the ministry, he devoted himself to a line of research in a field which has hitherto not received the attention it deserves. In his 'Monumental Christianity' he sets forth in a strong yet clear manner a noble defense of the Faith once for all delivered to the saints; and in a work to which so many of his latter years were devoted it will doubtless be found that he left behind him an equally strong testimony for the truth as it is in Jesus."

STONE DWELLING-HOUSE IN WARREN COUNTY, NEW JERSEY.

Built by Judge Samuel Lundy in 1780, and occupied by him until his death in 1801.

GROUP SEVEN.

THE DESCENDANTS OF

Samuel Lundy the First

OF WARREN COUNTY, NEW JERSEY.

BORN IN 1727; DIED IN 1801.

LINEAGE.

1. Sylvester Lundy, of Axminster, England.
2. Richard Lundy I. and Jane Lyon, of Bucks Co., Pa.
3. Richard Lundy II. and Elizabeth Large, of Warren Co., N. J.
4. Samuel Lundy I. and, first, Ann Schooley; and, second, Sarah Willets; of Warren Co., N. J.

The line then divides into eleven branches :

- I. Isaac Lundy and Ann Large.
- II. Daniel Lundy I. and Elizabeth Laing.
- III. George Lundy I. and Esther Willson.
- IV. Ann Lundy and John Patterson.
- V. Levi Lundy and Sarah Tomer.
- VI. Edith Lundy and Samuel Laing.
- VII. Samuel Lundy II. and Elizabeth Shotwell.
- VIII. Achsah Lundy and John Laing.
- IX. Jesse Lundy and, first, Phebe Bunn; and, second, Miriam Adams.
- X. Sarah Lundy and Samuel Lundy.
- XI. Amy Lundy and Joseph Adams.

Samuel Lundy I. whose name stands at the beginning of this Group was the youngest son of Richard Lundy II. and his wife Elizabeth Large. He was born in Bucks county, Pennsylvania, on 13 of 12 month, 1727, and lived there during the first ten years of his life; then he removed with his parents to Maiden Creek, Berks county, in the same province and lived there ten years. In 1747, Samuel came with his parents and settled permanently at the great meadows in Warren County, New Jersey. He departed this life the 14 day of 2 month, 1801, at the age of seventy-four, and was buried in Friends' yard at the Hardwick Meeting-house.

Samuel was married twice. His first wife was Ann Schooley, daughter of Samuel and Avis (Holloway) Schooley, granddaughter of Thomas and Sarah (Parker) Schooley, and great granddaughter of Robert Schooley. Ann was born 29 day of 6th month (August), 1728, and departed this life the 22nd day of the 3rd month, 1758, and was decently buried the 24th of the same in Friends' burying ground at Hardwick. Samuel and Ann made their first declaration of intention to marry before the Kingwood Monthly Meeting on 12 day, 7 mo., 1751, and were married on 8 day of 9 month following. They had three sons, Isaac, Daniel, and George. After the death of Ann, Samuel married on 20th day of 11th month, 1765; Sarah Willets, daughter of Joseph Willets. Sarah died 13 day of 2 month, 1824, and was buried at Hardwick. Samuel and Sarah made their first declaration of intention of marriage before the Kingwood Monthly Meeting on 10th day of 10th month, 1765, and were married on 20th day of 11th month following. They had three sons and five daughters, Ann, Levi, Edith, Samuel II., Achsah, Jesse, Sarah, and Amy.

Each of these eleven children grew to maturity, married and has descendants now living.

In 1765 there was a great scarcity of bread-stuff throughout the northern part of the province; and the people had eaten up all their seed grain so that they had none for future sowing and were in danger of starving, and were actually suffering from sickness caused by living too exclusively on a diet of meat. The legislature came to their relief and voted to loan money to the sufferers so that they could buy food and seed. Samuel Lundy I. was appointed a member of the committee to supervise the loaning of these provincial funds, a task requiring delicate tact and judgment.

Samuel was the sole executor of the Last Will and Testament of his father, Richard Lundy II., and by the terms thereof inherited all the real estate which his father then held (1772), a large farm having been deeded in 1768 to Jacob.

On September 20, 1759, the Board of Justices and Freeholders in and for the County of Sussex held a meeting at the house of the widow Wolverton in Newton township and elected Samuel Lundy to be County Collector, an office to which he was frequently re-elected, serving the County of Sussex in that capacity for thirteen years, 1759-64 and 1767-76. It will be observed that his services as treasurer of the county ceased in 1776; his retirement from the office became necessary because the financial strength of the community was soon to be devoted to warlike purposes, a policy contrary to the principles of the Society of Friends. He was a member of the Township Committee for two years, 1774 and 1775; and he represented Hardwick township on the Board of Justices and Freeholders for seven years, 1765-1772.

Samuel Lundy was appointed a Judge of the Pleas for Sussex county in 1772. Previous to the Revolutionary War, the legislative power of the province of New Jersey was vested in a Governor, a Council and an Assembly. I quote from the minutes of a Council held at Perth Amboy on Thursday the 17th of September, 1772, his Excellency, William Franklin, being at that time Governor of the province: "His Excellency was pleased to nominate Jacob Starn and Samuel Lundy to be Judges of the Pleas in the County of Sussex, and Jacob Lundy, Abia Brown, Robert Allison, Abraham Van Camp, and Richard Bowlby to be Justices of the Peace in said county; to which the Council assented." See New Jersey Archives, Vol. XVIII., page 294. For the purpose of ready identification among the several individuals in that community each bearing the name of Samuel Lundy, it is sometimes convenient to designate the Samuel Lundy whose name is at the head of this Group as Judge Samuel Lundy.

Judge Lundy built on his homestead a substantial stone dwelling-house, which is still used as a residence, a frame addition having since been built at the end; one of the stones in the chimney bears the inscription "Aug., 1780."

The marriage certificate of Samuel Lundy and his first wife, Ann Schooley, is entered on page 8 of the Record of Marriages for Hardwick Monthly Meeting.

By deed dated March 6, 1784, George Lundy, yeoman, of Hardwick, obtained seventy acres of land from Nathaniel Pierson and his wife Ann, the consideration therefor being one hundred and thirty pounds lawful money in hand paid, and said land lying in Hardwick and being butted by lands belonging to Samuel Lundy, Charles Cöxe and others.

By deed dated November 5, 1787, George Lundy obtained from James Kinsey of Burlington county, N. J., 130 acres of Proprietary Rights, land that had never been located. The consideration was £15 12s. This transaction is a good illustration of the method of securing real estate in colonial times. The instrument shows that John Hind had obtained on August 4, 1773, from the West Jersey Proprietors a land warrant for 40,000 acres of land unlocated; and that James Kinsey had purchased from Hind's estate a right to 200 acres of this land "to be laid forth and surveyed anywhere in the Western Division of New Jersey not before legally located." Kinsey now subdivides his warrant, retaining 70 and selling the remaining 130 acres. George Lundy, as soon as he received his deed for the 130 acres of Proprietary Right, selected that amount of land in Hardwick adjoining that which he already owned, called in an authorized surveyor to stake it and map it out for him, and completed his title by going to the land-office at Burlington and filing papers given to him by the surveyor.

On January 1, 1794, George Lundy, farmer, of Hardwick, obtained by deed from Thomas Lundy, mason, of the same place, in consideration of £55, thirty-eight and one-quarter acres of land, abutting land already owned by George Lundy.

Of Warren County, N. J.; of Warren County, Pa.

Esther Lundy (of George, Samuel, Richard II.) married, about 1812, William Gibbs, who died in April, 1847, at the age of 67 years, son of John and Nancy (Swayze) Gibbs. Five children: I. Edith Lundy, d. September 25, 1834, aged 21 years, 10 months, 7 days. II. Morris Sharp, d. August 17, 1838, aged 24 years, 2 months, 11 days. III. Cynthia, d. September 19, 1855, in 40th year of her age.. IV. William S. H., d. May 4, 1844, aged 26 years, 5 months, 12 days. V. George Lundy, b. about 1820; d. about 1871. Cynthia was the only one of these who married and left a family. After the death of Esther, William married Sarah Dixon, and about 1829 removed to Corydon, Warren county, Pa. He was a Justice of the Peace for many years. When William left New Jersey, his daughter Edith remained at her grandfather George Lundy's, where she died about five years afterward.

George Lundy Gibbs went to Ohio with his uncle Jonathan Lundy, studied medicine, and settled at New Albany, Indiana, where he practised his profession. He never married. During the war, he attended the families of soldiers without charge; he was very decided and outspoken in support of the Union, and a plot was made to assassinate him, but one of the conspirators cautioned him not to take his usual route, and so the attempt failed. He visited his kinsmen in New Jersey; and, alluding to his excellent health and splendid physique, he remarked that he considered himself good for a hundred years. But he died suddenly soon after his return to Indiana.

The following extract is from a letter headed "Corydon, Pa., November 6, 1831," and written by William Gibbs to Samuel Laing of Johnsonburg, N. J.:

"I live on the Alleghany river where the State of New York and of Pennsylvania crosses said river. I am getting on in years and cannot stand portage. My family is well. They started the 6 of July in the evening, and landed at Buffalo the 15th and at home the 16th. I wish there could be some way for me to get Edith here. I should have sent for her when I sent for the others, but I thought she had one year to stay with her grandmother. If you or any safe person should come near this place, I will pay the expense if you will bring her here. The best way to get here is to take the canal and come to Buffalo, thence to Portland, and by land 8 miles to Mayville, then by water to Jamestown, then by land 25 miles to this place. I live 4 or 5 miles from the Pounds, that is, Thomas, Daniel, and Jonathan."

The children of the earliest settlers were taught at private houses. A natural desire on the part of parents that their children should be able to read and write would lead to a conference among the neighbors; the services of some member of one of the families would be available, a grown up daughter perhaps or a maiden aunt; a vacant room would be secured convenient for the children, and a school opened. Little tots would gather there in fall and spring, but would give way in part during winter to learners of a larger size. A home-school of this kind could be readily shifted from one part of the neighborhood to another, according to the ever-varying circumstances of the different households. Sometimes abandoned dwellings or empty tenement-houses would be used temporarily for school purposes. When special buildings were put up, it was generally done by the united work of several of the leading families, the natural result of this being that those who built the school-house could control it, choosing between rival teachers or closing it up altogether.

This system, or rather lack of system, was perhaps the best possible for those days; but in the course of time reformers arose and agitated for better schools with this result that in January, 1838, the State legislature passed an act which authorized the formation of local boards to manage school affairs, and directed the appointment of examiners to license teachers, and empowered townships to raise school-money by taxation.

An old school-house which stood between Levi Lundy's and Jonathan Willson's appears to have been the first building in that neighborhood devoted exclusively to school purposes. Here taught John Armstrong (not of kin to Nathan Armstrong the pioneer) and Mr. Phipps, and also Daniel Vliet, who married Permelia Lundy. It was abandoned in 1838; and school was opened in the new building which had been erected at the upper corner of the road on the property of David Lundy.

David Lundy and Sally, his wife, by deed dated August 13, 1838, donated to the first trustees of the Union District of the townships of Hardwick and Independence a lot whereon to build a school-house "exclusively for the only proper use and purpose of schooling and educating children."

This was the Southtown school which for the next twenty years was the best school in that section of the country. The teachers were far above the average in ability and ambition, nearly every one of them having enjoyed unusual educational advantages; some were studying law, and others were preparing for the ministry. They were able to teach advanced subjects and were anxious to do it; and thus they attracted and retained in school a large class of young men and women. The drill in reading was especially thorough; English grammar including analysis and parsing received much attention and was studied by all the larger pupils. There were classes in rhetoric, physiology, chemistry, botany, and astronomy.

The names of these school-masters were Mr. Decatur, Albert Waterman, who was the son of a sea captain, and pleased the children by showing them shells and other curios from the Indian ocean, Mr. Burnham, Salmon Fay, who was slightly lame, but very much liked, Mr. Norris, Jonathan Cotton, who married a Warbasse, Samuel Stevenson, who had been educated at a Friends' High School in Pennsylvania, and who was modest and retiring and in every respect a first-class teacher, Elam M. Smith, who was a son of David Smith of Lafayette, N. J., and Jesse Berry of New York State, who was an excellent teacher, but who was fond of changing schools, and taught off and on between the going and coming of other teachers. Three Gaylord brothers also taught here; of these Wilberforce, who was somewhat of an orator, came first; he was followed by Jackson and then by Edson, a younger brother, who had the school in 1851-2. Then came Ira K. Willson and Elder J. S. Maxwell, the Christian minister. Decatur and the four who followed him, and also the Gaylord brothers, were from New England, from the same neighborhood in which Ethan Allen was born.

The text-books were Cobb's Speller, Daboll's Arithmetic, Kirkham's Grammar, Olney's Geography, the Juvenile Readers, the National Preceptor, Newman's Rhetoric, and Calvin Cutter's Physiology, Anatomy and Hygiene. The Philosophy, the Botany and the Geology were by Comstock; the text-book in astronomy was Burritt's Geography of the Heavens, the constellations being traced by the aid of an excellent star-atlas.

Books were bought by the trustees and loaned to the scholars free of charge, some of the patrons not being able to purchase books in the advanced subjects which their children were able and anxious to study. William W. Wilson was County Superintendent; and when he visited Southtown in the forenoon, there would be no school in the afternoon, for the teacher would go along with him to inspect other schools; and Jesse Berry used to tell with pride how the Superintendent turned to him once and said: "How I wish we had some of your scholars here to read for them."

Berry was a Whig; Moses Hazen, who lived near by was a Democrat; both were very well informed on the political issues of the day; and they would sit in the shade on the rocks near the school and argue by the hour. There was a debating society for men, which held regular meetings in the school-house at night; political questions were discussed freely, and sometimes the room would be filled to overflowing with people who had come some distance, either to take part or to listen.

It was Edson Gaylord who encouraged the pupils to make flower-gardens on the play-ground. All the narrow strips of soil along the ledges were carefully utilized. The teacher supervised operations so as to secure the proper general effect, and he helped shift the larger rocks so as to make the terraces more regular, while the children carried stones and built fences. It was a hard task and a long one, but they all worked with a will, morning, noon and night, and thought it was fun. The soil was marked out into beds and a definite portion was assigned to each pupil to plant and cultivate according to his pleasure. Seeds and bulbs and roots were brought from home, the selection of each having formed a topic of long and animated discussion.

While Edson Gaylord was teaching at Southtown, there was a total eclipse of the sun. He explained in detail to all the children the cause of the eclipse, using diagrams on the black-board to show the relative positions of the sun, moon and earth. He had the children come to school for several days a half hour earlier than usual so as to gain time; and then during the afternoon of the eclipse no lessons were heard, but all the pupils remained on the playground watching the eclipse through the smoked glasses which they had prepared and brought from home. Some of the children were afraid, and certainly it was a sight to inspire awe; for as the eclipse became total, the trees cast gloomy shadows, the stars came out, and the hens went to roost in the little barn near by.

The frequent repetition of the names Lundy and Willson in these memoranda adds point to the story told about the Scotch-Irishman who came there an entire stranger and, finding that no school was being taught at the time, applied for the use of the building, and then according to the custom of those days, started through the settlement to get the parents to put their names on his subscription list, pledging payment for so many days' attendance at school on the part of their children. He got subscribers fast enough, for children were numerous and very healthy; but he was surprised at the lack of variety in the family names, and so at the next house, when the father made his appearance, the Irishman said to him, "Sir, is your name Willson or Lundy? I never saw such a place. It is Lundy and Willson, and Willson and Lundy all the time. You are a very mixed multitude."

The Quaker Settlement was a station on the Underground Railroad. Slaves fleeing from bondage would pass through Philadelphia to Burlington, N. J.; and then traveling northward by way of Quakertown or Plainfield would reach the Quaker Settlement. Here they obtained rest and food, and were concealed in barns and cellars. Witnesses to these scenes are still living; they remember hearing voices of prayer from fugitives hidden in the cellar, and they remember seeing a black mother start like a wild bird as she sat behind the stove feeding her two children when she heard a horse and carriage driven up to the door.

These fugitives came in the night and went away in the night; one morning they would be there, and a morning or two after they would be gone; they were always carefully directed to the next station and sometimes taken a part of the way concealed in the bottom of a wagon. The next station in their long flight to Canada was among the families of some Friends who lived on the drowned lands in the valley of the Wallkill river, Sussex county, near the New York State line.

BENJAMIN LUNDY,

THE FOUNDER OF AMERICAN ABOLITIONISM.

A paper by William Clinton Armstrong, read October 21, 1897, before the Historical Club, Rutgers College, New Jersey.

MR. PRESIDENT, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN :

American history is wide in its range of topics and abundant in its material; yet amid this variety and richness, the student need not be confused if he keeps steadily in mind the two vital issues that unify our history: the formation and preservation of the Union, and the growth and abolition of Slavery. It is a safe rule to regard those events in our history as the most important which have exerted the most direct influence on the one or the other of these great issues.

The great movements of history, not its episodes, should be the central topics of study.

But historical movements as they sweep onward become complex and difficult to analyze, and hence it is the part of wisdom to study the beginnings of great movements. "Knowest thou not," asks the broad-browed Plato in his immortal Republic, "knowest thou not that the chiefest part of every work is its beginning?" True, and therefore it is eminently wise for the student of history to emphasize the beginnings and to investigate them thoroughly, going back often to the original motives and first actors in any great reform.

Bearing these admonitions in mind, I have chosen for the subject of my paper this evening, Benjamin Lundy, the Founder of American Abolitionism, a theme that relates directly to the slavery conflict and takes us back to the days when the advocates of human freedom were a feeble folk.

After the close of the Revolutionary war anti-slavery views were quite popular in this country, but activity along that line soon ceased. This early anti-slavery sentiment seems to have been a mere corollary to the discussion that had raged concerning the rights of man as set forth in the Declaration of Independence. It never called forth much self-sacrifice but it did lead to the extinction of slavery in the Northern States.

Slavery discussion previous to the War of 1812 was only the echo of a storm that had passed; slavery discussion after the War of 1812 was the muttering prelude of a coming cyclone.

No greater conflict has ever rocked this continent than that which grew out of the agitation commenced by Benjamin Lundy, the abolitionist.

“What whets the knife
For the Union’s life?
Hark to the answer:—Slavery.”

Two generations ago abolitionism was in its formative period. The pioneers of the movement were beginning their labors. They were establishing newspapers, inaugurating a system of public lectures and organizing their scattered followers into a compact body for the purpose of disseminating their doctrine more effectively by united efforts.

Then they were poor, despised, persecuted, because they dared to work for the overthrow of slavery; but they have proved themselves to be the noblest group of reformers in American history. By their toils and struggles, they laid anew the moral foundations of a continent; and among this band of heroes, Benjamin Lundy stands first in time, in entire consecration, in patient perseverance and in self-sacrifice.

Horace Greeley, a man well qualified to speak, says of Lundy: “He was the first of our countrymen who devoted his life and all his powers to the cause of the slaves. He gave to the cause of emancipation neither wealth, nor eloquence, nor lofty abilities; for he had them not; but his courage, perseverance and devotion were unsurpassed.”

Dr. Von Holst, of the University of Chicago, in his Constitutional History of the United States, speaks of Benjamin Lundy as the father of the abolitionists, mentions his wanderings and his sacrifices, and then adds: “The XIXth century can scarcely point to another instance in which the command of Christ to leave all things and follow Him has been so literally construed and followed.”

Benjamin Lundy, son of Joseph and Elizabeth (Shotwell) Lundy, was born 4th day of 1st Month, 1789, in Sussex county, N. I., and lived there for nineteen years. He started to school at the age of four and learned his letters; but his mother died and this loss took him out of school for two years. After his father's second marriage, Benjamin went to school for two years and learned to read and write; this was all the schooling he ever had except one quarter's attendance during the winter he was sixteen when he devoted himself to working the problems in the back part of the arithmetic. Thus his book-learning was very meager.

Benjamin was brought up in the religious faith of the Society of Friends and was trained to their plain way of living; and in this faith and way he lived and died.

He was frail of body. While yet a boy he tried to do a man's work on a farm, with this result,—that he became partially deaf and also impaired his health so seriously as to cause anxiety. Finally it was decided to try a complete change of environment; and so in his nineteenth year, he went to Ohio and stopped at Mt. Pleasant, a cluster of six log-cabins.

Benjamin's general health improved, but partial deafness continued to be throughout his life an embarrassing affliction to him as traveler and lecturer.

Having resolved to learn a trade, he went to Wheeling, ten miles away, now the metropolis of West Virginia, and entered into apprenticeship with a saddler. There he remained four years, receiving wages as a skilled workman during the last eighteen months.

Since Benjamin Lundy was the originator of the abolition movement in the United States, it becomes a matter of interest to note the origin of the idea in his own mind. As bearing on this phase of the subject, the beginning of the beginning, I will state the testimony of the Society of Friends concerning slavery; I will then describe slavery as Benjamin Lundy saw it during his youth in New Jersey and as he saw it during his apprenticeship in West Virginia.

The doctrine of the Society of Friends against human slavery was clear and strong; the Quakers have been the boldest and most aggressive advocates of personal freedom. No denomination of Christians has a nobler record in opposition to slavery than the Quakers. Such was the religious training received by Benjamin Lundy; and often during his youth, at meetings for worship, had he heard holy voices raised in solemn warnings against the sin of slave-holding.

There were only a few slaves on the Jersey frontier; the census taken in Lundy's native township shows that there was at that time only one negro slave to every fifty-two white inhabitants. The bondage was of a mild type; masters, slaves, bound boys and hired men all went to the same field and associated and worked together; it was only in messing and lodging that there was any distinction between the white laborer and the black. There was no profit in slave labor among the rock-ribbed hills of Jersey; it was, however, a domestic convenience to have a Dinah to cook and a Pompey to take care of the horses; but the possession of a family of blacks was coveted most as a mark of social standing; for in those days wherever you saw a slave, his master was sure to be a county judge, or a church elder, or a captain of militia.

Perhaps in no part of the United States had negro slavery assumed a milder form than among the mountains of northern New Jersey; and perhaps in no part of the United States did the system of African slavery exhibit its repulsive features in so open a form unrelieved by any redeeming trait, as it did at this very time at the city of Wheeling. Such a thing as the slave trade was unknown in northern New Jersey during the period of Benjamin's boyhood, but when he entered Wheeling he found the slave trade organized and carried on systematically. It was the traffic in human flesh on a commercial basis that confronted Benjamin.

Observe the position of Wheeling. It was on the Ohio river, the boundary line of the slave country, the line over which Benjamin oscillated every week. He worked at his trade in Virginia, a slaveholding state; but during First Days, he visited his friends and attended religious services across the river in Ohio, a free-soil state. The contrast between free labor and slave labor was kept continually before his mind.

Observe also, what is still more important, the position of Wheeling as related to the western and eastern group of slaveholding states. In the west, Kentucky and Missouri were being rapidly settled. Emigrants hungry for land were rushing there in crowds and there was a constant demand for slaves to operate the new plantations. In the east, Maryland and Virginia were the breeding-ground for this western market. Here the slaves were raised and sold to traders. These traders, when they had gathered a sufficient number of negroes, chained them together in long gangs to prevent escape into the free states here so near at hand, and marched them westward, heading for the Ohio river, where the slaves could be placed on boats and floated down to their destination. As these gangs started westward from the various parts of Maryland and Virginia, they naturally converged and struck the National Turnpike that had been built by Congress, and followed it to its western terminus,—Wheeling on the Ohio.

Thus it was that Benjamin Lundy frequently saw these coffles passing through the city. He saw no glimpses of happy plantation life, only the hard, stern realities of the slave trade. He heard no melodies from their lips, only the monotonous clicking of the chains as the long lines filed slowly by.

It seemed to him like an endless procession of woe, to see company after company of these wretched beings come down the road from the mountain gorge and pass through the streets on their way to the slave pens by the river to await transportation. The gloomy fate of those held in bondage touched the heart of Benjamin Lundy; and his whole being revolted against the iniquitous traffic in human flesh and against the legalized system of human slavery.

Benjamin left Wheeling in 1812 and returned to Mt. Pleasant, Ohio, where he secured employment at his trade. Here he had a friend, William Lewis, and William Lewis had a sister Esther, and Esther Lewis was a fine girl, in Benjamin's opinion a very fine girl. Two years passed and then Benjamin came east on a visit to his father who was now living in Burlington county, N. J. He stayed during the summer and fall and this long visit enables us to have a good view of the young saddler. He was slender, and slightly under middle size, with light complexion, blue eyes and wavy hair. He was cheerful, unassuming and studious. A younger sister remembered him as always having a book in his hand.

Returning to Mt. Pleasant he was married by Friends' ceremony, 2 mo. 13, 1815, to Esther, daughter of Henry and Susan Lewis. He bought a lot at St. Clairsville, Ohio, eleven miles west of Wheeling, built thereon a dwelling-house and a shop, and started in business for himself. Harness-making was a good trade in a community where every spring brought a swarm of new settlers and every settler cleared up a new farm. The demand for saddlery was brisk; so he enlarged his shop and secured two apprentice boys. He paid off his debts and found he was worth three thousand dollars. His sales still increasing he secured more apprentice boys and also employed some journeymen. A competence was within his grasp; a few years more and he would be beyond the reach of want.

We have seen how Benjamin Lundy had his mind and heart aroused against slavery; we will now trace the steps by which he became actively engaged in anti-slavery work.

Lundy's convictions were strong and deep; and his feelings of pity for the slave were so keen as to fill his soul with anguish; but so far as can be learned, no act of his life previous to the completion of his twenty-fifth year (1815) had ever been prompted or even influenced in the slightest degree by his views on the subject of slavery.

But this was to change quickly. He began housekeeping, as I have said, in the spring of 1815, at St. Clairsville. As soon as he was fairly settled in a home of his own, he invited some of his new neighbors to come to his house on the evening of a certain day. Five or six persons came at the appointed time. To them he unbosomed his feelings. Finding sympathetic hearers, he proposed a public meeting for further agitation. His plan was approved, a date fixed and the public invited. At this second meeting, which was also held at Lundy's house, an anti-slavery association was formed called the Union Humane Society. It grew rapidly and soon enrolled five hundred members. From this local success Lundy conceived the idea of organizing a number of such societies, and to this end he wrote an address to the philanthropists of the United States. He made five or six copies with his own hand and circulated them through the neighborhood. That autumn a yearly meeting of the Society of Friends was held at Mt. Pleasant. Lundy attended the meeting and distributed some more manuscript copies of his appeal.

Some of the Friends who thus received copies, on returning to their respective homes, organized similar associations and, in making a report thereof to Lundy urged him to print his appeal for general distribution. Lundy complied with their suggestion and published his "Address" on his birthday, January 4, 1816.

Horace Greeley in his American Conflict, speaks of this circular of Lundy's and says that it contained the germ of the whole anti-slavery movement.

Lundy begins his appeal with a skillful allusion to the triumphant suppression of the African slave trade, and then drives home the thought that the seeds of the evil system had already been planted in our soil, that these seeds were springing up and producing increase, and that the mere closing of our harbors to the importation of new slaves from Africa did not touch the root of the evil. He urges renewed effort and proposes the following lines of action:

1. That societies should be formed wherever a sufficient number of persons could be induced to join in them.
2. That a title should be adopted common to all the societies.
3. That they should all have a uniform constitution, "varying only on account of necessity arising from location."
4. That a correspondence should be kept up between the societies to promote their common purpose; and
5. That delegates should be chosen to meet in general convention for the transaction of any important business that might arise.

He closes his circular with these solemn words of consecration: "I have had this subject long in contemplation, and I have now taken it up, fully determined for one never to lay it down while I breathe or until the end shall be attained."

A local newspaper, The Philanthropist, had recently been established at Mt. Pleasant, and the proprietor, Charles Osborne, opened the columns of his paper for the discussion of slavery. Lundy saw here an opportunity to aid the anti-slavery cause. He selected articles wherever he could find them and had them published in the Philanthropist. As soon as he gained confidence in the tone of the paper, he began to canvass his neighborhood for subscribers. Whenever the editor opened Lundy's letters he found therein anti-slavery clippings and the names of some new subscribers and a few lines written by Lundy himself; all these were duly appreciated, for Lundy's comments began to appear among the editorial paragraphs.

It was not long before Lundy received an invitation to assist in editing the paper. He was surprised; and mistrusting his own ability, he hesitated. The invitation being repeated, he consented to try, and soon his articles appeared regularly on the editorial page. He still plied his saddler's tools and talked harness to his customers; but his mind was ten miles away in the office of the Philanthropist. He was next invited to become a partner in the printing business and to come to Mt. Pleasant and take charge of the office. He decided to accept the offer, and proceeded at once to close out the harness-business. He discharged his journeymen; and thinking that the best market would be on the western frontier, he took a load of finished articles to Missouri to sell and was gone six months. When he reached home, he took all the rest of his stock and put it in a boat and started down the Ohio river, his apprentice boys plying their trade in the boat while he steered.

In going up the Mississippi river against the current, the boys had to lay aside their aprons and pull at the oars. On reaching St. Louis he was unable to dispose of his merchandise, for a financial depression had swept over the country. Unwilling to sacrifice his property, he rented a couple of rooms, boarded himself and his boys and opened a harness store.

It was an unfortunate venture; business stagnation grew worse and worse. He stayed one year hoping in vain for better times and then sold out at a heavy loss. But it had been a year of excitement and intellectual activity for Lundy. Missouri was knocking at the door for admission to the Union; and the great fight was on as to whether she should come in free or slave. Lundy spent every spare moment he had in exposing the evils of slavery in numerous original articles which he contributed to the newspapers of Missouri and Illinois. Saddened by defeat, and after a year's absence Lundy started for home, 600 miles away, afoot in the winter time.

For a year and a half Lundy had directed all his business affairs with the idea of becoming the editor of the Philanthropist and of making it the medium of his attack on slavery; but during his absence the newspaper had changed hands, and now the door is closed against him and he cannot speak his views freely through its columns even as a correspondent.

Lundy rose to the occasion grandly.

He decided to establish a periodical of his own and to do it at once, and he did. He wrote a prospectus and had it printed and circulated it. He obtained six subscribers; and on the strength of this he prepared his material and in January, 1821, he issued No. 1 of Volume I. of The Genius of Universal Emancipation.

This is believed to have been the first newspaper in America, perhaps in the world, devoted exclusively or even mainly to abolitionism. It was a diminutive publication. It was $9\frac{1}{4}$ inches long and $5\frac{3}{4}$ inches wide, with two columns of printed matter on the page.

Lundy had moved his family from St. Clairsville to Mt. Pleasant, and here the first number of the Genius was printed for him at the office of the Philanthropist; but the next seven numbers were printed for him at Steubenville, a town twenty miles away. Every month Lundy walked to that village for his papers and carried them home on his back.

It was impossible for this condition of affairs to continue long. But the Genius of Universal Emancipation was to live. There came a change. Only eight numbers were published in Ohio; the next numbers were to be published in Tennessee.

An anti-slavery paper called the Emancipator had been established by Elihu Embree at Jonesborough in Eastern Tennessee. Embree died in a few months and his friends did not know how to dispose of the office and its equipments.

Hearing of Lundy's struggle to found an anti-slavery paper, they wrote to him inviting him to come and see the establishment with a view to purchase. Lundy went to Jonesborough, a journey of eight hundred miles, and examined the printer's outfit.

Here was an opportunity to secure for his young periodical a permanent home where under one roof he could write his editorials and do all his own work in composition and printing. He rented the establishment, brought his family to Jonesborough and dwelt there nearly three years.

Without ever having served an hour's apprenticeship, he took his place at the composing desk; heretofore he had been only editor and proprietor, now he becomes also typesetter and printer. Here thirty-five numbers of the Genius, 9 to 43, were published.

It was impossible to treat effectively of the evils of the slave system in the midst of which he was living without stirring up at times considerable bad blood. On one occasion two slaveholders endeavored to force him to retrace certain statements he had made in the Genius. They invited him into a private room and then set upon him with clubs. He suffered but he would not yield and was finally released by outsiders who heard the disturbance.

While in Tennessee he made one trip to Philadelphia, traveling in all nearly 1,200 miles on horseback in the winter time, to attend the American Convention for the Abolition of Slavery. His was the only anti-slavery paper in the United States; and during this visit to the East, he decided to remove his paper to some city on the Atlantic seaboard, hoping thereby to extend the sphere of its influence. On returning to Tennessee he made arrangements at once to transfer the Genius to the city of Baltimore.

Having disposed of his printing office in the summer of 1824, he bids farewell to his wife and children and starts afoot for Baltimore. But he does not take the direct route. He visits kinsmen in southwestern Virginia and in North Carolina.

This journey of Lundy's is memorable as witnessing the inauguration of a new form of anti-slavery work; I refer to the system of public lectures.

It was at the Deep River Meeting House in Guilford county, North Carolina, in the summer of 1824, that Benjamin Lundy gave the first public lecture ever delivered in America in favor of the abolition of slavery. The meeting house is near Westminster post office and about four miles north of Jamestown.

I quote from Lundy's reminiscences: "I shall never forget the incidents of that meeting. It was held by the side of a fine spring in a beautiful shady grove near the Friends' Meeting House at Deep Creek, after the meeting for worship had closed. The audience signified their approbation by appointing another meeting for me to be held in the meeting house on a subsequent day. The second meeting having been publicly advertised was attended by many persons besides members of the Society of Friends, and before its adjournment an anti-slavery or abolition society was organized."

Lundy was overjoyed at his success and devoted himself to his new work with enthusiasm, seeking every possible opportunity to obtain an audience.

Was there a house to be raised? Benjamin always felt moved to attend that gathering, and those who assembled always had an opportunity to hear his anti-slavery lecture.

Was there a muster of the local militia on training day? Benjamin was sure to appoint an abolition meeting for the same time and place; and in one instance it so happened that the captain of the militia company was elected president of the newly-formed abolition society, with a Quaker as secretary.

Among Lundy's converts on this journey was an intelligent and energetic young man by the name of William Swain, who conceived a strong friendship for Lundy, followed him to Baltimore and learned the printer's trade in Lundy's office, working for six months on the Genius.

It was characteristic of Lundy's mission that so many of his converts did not merely say, "Yea, Lord," but took up the work themselves and became active propagandists. Swain afterwards returned to North Carolina and settled at Greenboro, where he published a newspaper called The Patriot, in which he openly and boldly wrote against slavery.

Another of his converts was David Patterson, of Orange county, N. C., who owned eleven slaves and wished to emancipate them; but the law did not allow slaves to be set free unless they were removed at once from the state. Lundy promised to make arrangements for transporting the slaves to the island of Hayti.

He held about twenty meetings in North Carolina and succeeded in organizing a dozen abolition societies; then he turned northward through Virginia, holding meetings and establishing societies as he traveled until he reached the city of Baltimore.

And here it may be well to remark that the discourses delivered by Lundy on these occasions were ultra-orthodox in anti-slavery sentiment. He argued openly and boldly for the emancipation of every slave, founding his appeals on the principles of Christian humanity and of civil liberty as based on eternal justice.

During the next five years and a half Lundy delivered anti-slavery lectures before more than two hundred public meetings. To show the extent to which this lecture system was afterwards developed by the abolitionists, I may state that in 1836 the American Anti-Slavery Society maintained thirteen lecturing agents constantly in the field on salary.

On reaching Baltimore Lundy lost no time in getting to work. He had no office and a very slender purse. Moreover, his reception even by the professed friends of emancipation in the city was very cool and distant. Vague expressions of hope for his success were the only encouragement he received. Evidently the idea of having the mouthpiece of abolitionism located at their very doors did not arouse much enthusiasm.

Lundy secured employment by the day in a printing establishment as type-setter, but all his spare moments he devoted to his own editorial work, and when his manuscript was ready he took it to his employer and hired him to print the first Baltimore number of the Genius, paying him in his own coin.

This was Genius No. 44, dated October, 1824; and in it Lundy commenced a series of articles on emigration to Hayti, explaining its advantages and setting forth the terms offered by the Haytian government.

These were followed by another series of articles on the domestic slave-trade in which Lundy brought out with considerable detail the cruel features of the coast-wise trade in slaves. Baltimore was the headquarters for the purchase and collection of negroes and their shipment by boat to South Carolina and Georgia.

General LaFayette, while traveling through the United States, saw at Baltimore a copy of The Genius of Universal Emancipation and expressed a wish to see the editor. Lundy having been sent for, General LaFayette "encouraged him to go on and expressed his regret at finding so many slaves still in the country."

We have seen that he had been instrumental in sending to Hayti the slaves of David Patterson. In March, 1825, he opened at Baltimore a Haytian Office of Emigration, and was active in assisting negroes to go to Hayti; a work in which he was aided by Richard Allen, a negro Bishop of the Methodist Church. Among the shipments from Lundy's office was a colony of 88 slaves, valued at $30,000, who had been emancipated by their owner, David Minge, of Charles City, Va.

Increased support enabled Lundy in October, 1825, to change the Genius from a monthly to a weekly.

The relative advantages of Liberia and Hayti were being discussed in the public press and Lundy was anxious to ascertain by personal observation the condition of affairs in Hayti and also to make definite arrangements with parties living there as to the settlement of any negroes whom he might thereafter send. So he sailed for that island in the fall of 1825, and was gone five or six months.

The Philanthropic Society of Hayti offered favorable inducements and agreed to advance money for the cost of passage. But each negro was to repay the Society by working on a plantation for a certain length of time after his arrival; and after the expiration of this apprenticeship every negro man who had a family was to receive fifteen acres of land.

On the day before Lundy sailed for home, a vessel arrived which brought him the sad tidings of his wife's death, leaving two infants less than a week old.

"I returned," said Lundy, "to Baltimore with a heavy heart. On our arrival our vessel was ordered to perform quarantine, and the persons on board were forbidden to land until the next day."

"I persuaded the captain, however, to go on shore with me at night that I might see my little orphan children. We rowed a small boat several miles to the shore. I hastened to my dwelling, but found it deserted. All was lone and dreary within its walls. I roused some of my neighbors, but they could tell me nothing about my children.

"I returned with the captain before daylight to the vessel and the next day obtained legal permission to land. On further inquiry, I found that my little ones were scattered among my friends. I collected my children together, placed them with friends in whom I could confide and renewed my vow to devote my energies to the cause of the slave until the nation should be effectually roused in his behalf.

"I relinquished every prospect of the future enjoyment of an earthly home until that object should be accomplished."

Lundy resumed his work on the Genius, which was now a weekly. He published a second series of articles on Haytian emigration; and in a few weeks he sent to the island under his arrangement with the Philanthropic Society, a colony of emancipated slaves, 116 in number.

Those early abolitionists drew the moral line pretty straight when it came to questions of indirect complicity with the guilt of slave-holding. They refused to hire slaves from their masters; they refused to give out contracts to those who would employ slave-labor in their performance of said contracts; and some refused even to employ for wages those slaves who hired themselves from their masters for the purpose of accumulating a fund to buy their freedom.

They refused, moreover, to purchase any article that had been produced by slave-labor, endeavoring thus to discountenance the use of the fruit of the unrequited toil of the slave. Some of their conclusions were, perhaps, too finely drawn to be appreciated by the general public; one good purpose, however, was secured,—the abolitionist kept his own conscience pure and untouched by the hated sin; and it gave him, too, an additional method of manifesting his personal hostility to the national iniquity.

Lundy opened a free-produce store in Baltimore. There were at this time only two others in the United States; one at Philadelphia and one at Wilmington, Delaware. In these stores every article offered for sale must be entirely the product of free labor. The coffee, the spices, the tropical fruits, the rice, the sugar and molasses must all be undefiled by the touch of a slave. Cotton fabrics were the hardest to obtain; but at last a Rhode Island manufacturer agreed to supply such articles and held himself ready to prove that his raw material had been raised entirely by free labor.

There was in Baltimore a slave-trader by the name of Austin Woolfolk, notorious for the heartless brutality with which he carried on his wretched business. He sent a gang of twenty-nine slaves on a boat to Georgia. When at sea the slaves rose for their liberty, murdered the captain and mate, reached New York city and escaped,—all except one who was caught and hung. When led to the place of execution, the condemned negro, according to the custom of those days, was allowed to make some remarks expressing his penitence. Woolfolk, who was present, interrupted the unfortunate man with oaths and abusive language and would not desist until compelled to do so by the indignant spectators. An account of this disgusting spectacle was published in the New York Christian Inquirer; and reprinted by Lundy in the Genius.

Soon after this, Woolfolk met Lundy near the post-office in Baltimore, caught him by the throat, threw him upon the pavement, choked him until he was nearly unconscious, and then stamped on his head and face with the heel of his boot. Woolfolk was arrested and tried for assault and battery. The jury found Woolfolk guilty; and the judge, in whose discretion the penalty was, sentenced him to pay a fine of one dollar. The judge said from the bench that Lundy got nothing more than he deserved, and he took the copy of the Genius containing the objectionable article and sent it to the grand jury charging them to indict Lundy for libel, which they refused to do.

On May 1, 1828, Lundy started from Baltimore on a trip through the Middle and New England States. His object was to secure subscribers for the Genius and to arouse a more general interest in the cause of emancipation by a series of public lectures. The journey was performed almost entirely on foot, with the exception of a short sea-voyage. I will first indicate his line of travel and then describe some of the incidents of the tour.

He passed through Philadelphia, through Burlington and Rancocas, N. J.; Westchester and New Rochelle, N. Y.; Bridgeport, New Haven, Hartford, Brooklyn and Norwich, Conn.; Newport and Providence, R. I.; New Bedford and Nantucket, Mass., whence he sailed for Portland, Me. Turning southward he passed through Portsmouth, N. H., and Newburyport, Andover, Salem, and Lynn to Boston. He visited Charleston and Brighton. He passed westward through Worcester, Leicester, Springfield and Northampton in Mass. From Albany he crossed New York State by way of Lockport to Niagara Falls and returned through Utica to Albany and Poughkeepsie, and then south to Baltimore.

He reached home on October 25, having been absent six months lacking six days, and having held forty-three public meetings, generally in town halls, court houses, college buildings or churches.

At Philadelphia he found a Free Produce Store, but it had only a few customers; so he called a public meeting to encourage the use of free-labor products, the first meeting of this kind ever held in the United States.

I will quote a few passages from his journal.

“June 11. I had a good-sized meeting at Norwich, Conn., but it was only attended by men. The people here are all too politic and will do nothing for our cause.”

“June 16. Attended Friends' Yearly Meeting at Newport, R. I., and on the 20th held at that place my twelfth anti-slavery lecture. It was attended by few, and they were all men. Sec-tarianism nearly closed up my way here, I being but a moderate Quaker.”

“Aug. 1. I am making arrangements for a meeting in Boston, which are embarrassed by there being too many other meetings, as negroes are, everywhere and always, the last to be thought of or noticed.”

“Aug. 20. Saw this morning a cotton factory at New Rochelle, near which were fifteen or twenty boys from eight to fourteen years of age, all at play, hopping and jumping. They went to work at the ringing of the factory bell. This is the way the Yankees get rich:—no idlers out of the cradle.”

“Aug. 22. I walked from Leicester to Springfield, a distance of 45 miles, being the greatest walk I have accomplished in a single day.”

“On the 25th I arrived at Northampton, after 9 o'clock in the evening, and called at three taverns before I could get lodgings or polite treatment.”

“Sept. 6. At Albany I made some acquaintances. Philanthropists are the slowest creatures breathing. They think forty times before they act.”

I have reserved one incident of his visit to Boston on this trip to relate more at large. On reaching Boston Lundy had made diligent inquiry for abolitionists, desiring to fellowship with them and to plan with them for active work; but, strange as it may seem, he did not find a single abolitionist in the metropolis of New England. He had to begin his work single-handed and alone.

I cannot forego rementioning the fact that Lundy, whose footsteps we are now following as he blazes a path for freedom over the Puritan hills, was a native and a citizen of the Middle States.

He went to Boston as the setter forth of a new doctrine; and, like Paul at Athens, he began his disputation with devout persons. He invited the ministers of the various denominations to a conference in the parlor of his boarding-house. Eight appeared, and he gave them an informal talk. Some of the boarders being in the room were involuntary listeners. Among them was William Lloyd Garrison. Lundy was the editor of the Genius of Universal Emancipation, the first abolition journal in the world; Garrison was the editor of the National Philanthropist, the first total abstinence newspaper in the world.

It was not at all picturesque, this accidental meeting in a second-class boarding-house of Lundy and Garrison, the deaf Quaker and the near-sighted Baptist; but it had in it elements of a deeper and more permanent influence for the uplifting of mankind than many a historical scene that has been pencilled into fame by the skill of artists.

In Garrison's heart Lundy's words fell as seed in good soil. Toward the close of this private conference when the subject of emancipation was open for general discussion, Garrison came across the room and took part in the conversation, expressing openly his approbation of Lundy's doctrine. Garrison was aroused; and, as he pondered on the matter, there dawned on his mind the justice, greatness and holiness of this new reform.

Garrison was Lundy's convert.

He had at this first meeting cheered Lundy's heart by his words; he soon placed himself on record by contributing an article on the subject to one of the daily papers. Little need to speak of Garrison and his Liberator. The history of abolitionism shows us two firebrands; one was Garrison, the other was John Brown.

"In the course of a few days afterwards," says Lundy, "we had a public meeting, which was attended by most of the eight clergymen, together with a large audience. After I had finished my lecture several clergymen addressed the meeting. They concurred in my views, except one of them who said something a little like opposition. I forthwith challenged him to a public debate on the spot, which he declined."

Lundy hurried home by way of Niagara Falls to attend the meetings of the American Convention for the Abolition of Slavery. Its sessions covered a period of four days, November 3-6, 1828.

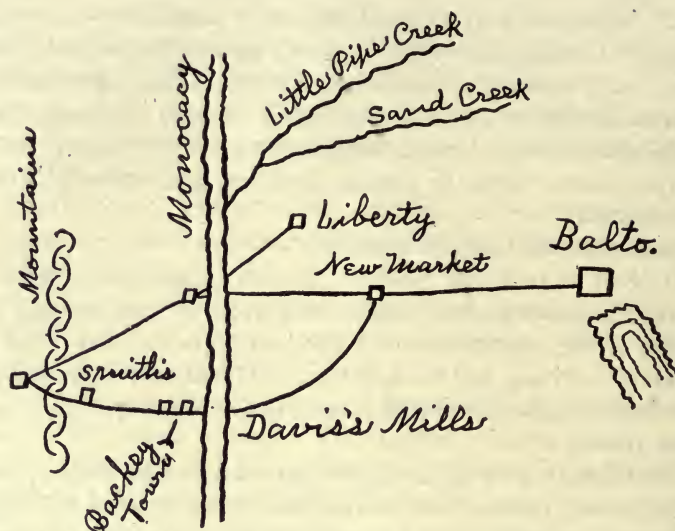

November 10, 1828. Lundy has been at home two weeks and two days.

November 11. He is off on his travels again, this time for Vermont, his second trip to New England. He starts early and afoot.

I have here the original memoranda of Benjamin Lundy's journey to Bennington, Vermont; it is in the rough, being written on coarse yellow paper; but about old documents there is always a certain flavor that I like.

It is evident that some person had sketched on this paper a map of the country west of Baltimore through which Lundy intended to pass, indicating the dwelling-houses, villages, streams and roads; and below the map this friend had given some directions.

Here you see the map itself and the directions written below it.

REGION WEST OF BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.

(Reproduced from Benjamin Lundy's memoranda of his journey to Bennington, Vt., November, 1828.)

"When you get to New Market, you had better enquire the shortest road to Smith's, & also if it is the same Smith you want to see. When you get to Backey town, enquire of Geo. Hoppelbock who keeps store there—the firm I believe is Hoppelbock & Cunningham—if you mention my name to them they will give you every assistance and direction in their power.

"On your way to Pipe Creek you will pass through Frederick to Liberty where you will call on Alex. Lindley and perhaps you had better have a meeting there. The Hains's at Pipe Creek will put you in a way to get to Gunpowder."

On the other side of the paper we find in Benjamin Lundy's handwriting the following memoranda of his journey from Baltimore, Maryland, to Bennington, Vermont, in November and December, 1828, for the purpose of seeing William Lloyd Garrison.

Lundy found Garrison at Bennington and invited him to come to Baltimore and join him in editing the Genius. But Garrison was at that time publishing a newspaper of his own and could not come; so that Lundy's trip was a fruitless one for the time being, so far as his main object was concerned.

In the spring of 1829 Lundy found it necessary to visit Hayti again. It was now over three years since he had been there and many changes had taken place on the island. He took with him a small colony of emancipated slaves and obtained for them, on easy terms for a period of nine years, leases of rich land already cleared. On his return he announced that he had completed arrangements whereby any negroes who might wish to get to Hayti could obtain leases of plantations with buildings on them for seven years, the first two years free of charge and the remaining five at a moderate rent.

In the Genius for September, 1829, Lundy announces that Garrison had come to Baltimore and was now his associate in the editorship. The paper assumed at once a strong political cast, opposing Jackson and favoring Clay; Lundy felt that way, but the expression of such views in the Genius was largely the work of Garrison. There was a falling away of subscribers; the reason for this was that the question of emancipation was beginning to get mixed up with sectarianism and politics. "We are resolved," wrote Lundy in the Genius, "to have nothing to do with sectarian or party disputation, in our public proceeding, unless the question of slavery should appear to be involved in it; yet we are grieved to see, in numerous instances, old and faithful labourers in that sacred cause, abandoning it, simply because others are actively engaged in promoting it, with whom they differ in some religious or political tenet."

"Now this is a deplorable state of things. It is like a civil war in a military camp, when a dangerous enemy is forcing the gates. It is like a family quarrel in which the inmates of a house are engaged, while it is burning over their heads."

A vessel owned by Mr. Todd, of Newburyport, Mass., came to Baltimore and took on a cargo of slaves to be sold in New Orleans. Garrison denounced this transaction, branded it as an act of domestic piracy, and declared that he would cover all the perpetrators with thick infamy. Garrison was arrested for libel, tried and convicted, fined fifty dollars and costs, and thrown in prison. Lundy, who had been absent on a lecture tour, returned to Baltimore and then hurried to New York City to obtain money to release Garrison; but on returning to Baltimore, Lundy himself as co-editor, was arrested and imprisoned for a few days.

The partnership between Lundy and Garrison was dissolved on March 5, 1830, having lasted just six months.

In resuming entire control of the paper, Lundy announced that the Genius "will hereafter treat exclusively upon the subject of emancipation."

Reformers have their dark hours; and Lundy's were very many and very dark. The income from subscriptions was so pitifully small that he was compelled to reduce the Genius to a monthly. Lundy himself was driven from Baltimore by the malignant spirit of tyranny. He removed the Genius to Washington, and made that city the nominal office of publication.

There was a greater necessity than ever for Lundy to travel and collect dues and secure new subscribers; so he would engage the services of some friend of the cause to manage the Genius during the time he expected to be absent. After his departure two or three numbers of the paper would appear and then the temporary editor would suspend publication for lack of funds. Learning of this, Lundy would himself prepare manuscript on the road, and have the next number printed at whatever town he happened to be. He never had any trouble to secure the use of a local printing press, it generally standing idle several days a week; as to type it was different, so he found it best to carry with him a quantity of his own.

There were two circumstances that threw additional difficulties in Lundy's way: the establishment of the Liberator in Massachusetts and Nat Turner's insurrection in Virginia.

Garrison started an abolition paper of his own at Boston of a very radical type, called the Liberator. Lundy welcomed the Liberator kindly; but nevertheless it was a financial rival.

On the first Sunday of August, 1831, an insurrection of slaves broke out in Southampton county, Virginia. Nat Turner, a negro preacher and slave, murdered his master, and then with fifty followers rushed on from plantation to plantation killing men, women and children, sixty-three victims in all; but they were soon overtaken and captured, and most of them put to death.

This outbreak was fatal to the abolition societies of the South; they collapsed like bubbles; and this in turn was a hard blow to the Genius, many of whose subscribers resided in that section.

I will read a note of comfort received by Lundy during this trying period from Whittier, the poet of abolitionism.

DEAR FRIEND:

By favor of our mutual friend, J. Well, I drop thee a line to let thee know I have not forgotten thee and that it was with no small degree of pleasure that I rec'd the last number of The Genius.

At this time when some of our early friends are turning aside after other objects, I rejoice to know that the "pioneer editor" of abolitionism is still resolved to keep his eye single to the great object—the emancipation of the slave. Our Yearly Meeting is just over—the subject of slavery had a weighty and deep consideration.

It was said to be like one of our Yearly Meetings when Jacob Lindley and Warner Mifflin were moved to speak out for the bondman. Farewell. May God bless and preserve thee.

Ever and truly thy friend,

JNO. G. WHITTIER.

January, 1832. Lundy is off on his travels again, this time to Canada. Now why to Canada?

The black population of Canada consisted of a few slaves imported directly from Africa; of some runaway slaves from the Southern States; and of many free negroes from the Northern States, who had left their homes through fear of being kidnapped and sold South, or who had fled panic-stricken at the enactment of laws requiring them to file freedom-papers, which they did not possess.

As early as 1803, Ohio had passed a law forbidding negroes to settle in the State unless they filed in a public office their certificate of freedom; this was known as the "black law." In 1828 this old law was dug up, and the attempt to enforce it caused a sudden exodus of several thousand negroes to Canada.

The negroes of Canada did not live scattered here and there all over the country; but they had gathered themselves into colonies. They would locate in a forest along some lonely wood-road and put up cabins and form a community by themselves. Some of these communities included five or six hundred individuals.

What was the condition of these settlements? and what advantages did Canada offer as an asylum for emancipated slaves? Lundy wished to base his opinion on facts gathered from personal observation; and so he made a journey through Canada in January, 1832. He visited the Wilberforce colony consisting of about thirty families on the Au-Sable river, twelve miles west of London; it was a new settlement and had been the rendezvous of 2,000 refugees who had soon passed on seeking homes in other parts. The permanent settlers were sober, industrious and thrifty, and maintained two churches and two schools.

He considered Canada an excellent place for the settlement of negroes who had lived north of the 34th parallel; but the soil and climate were not suited to the cultivation of cane, rice and cotton,—the great crops raised by negro labor.

One afternoon while he was traveling on foot through a thinly populated section of Canada, he came to a stream with a strong deep current, the footlog over which was partly dislodged. He walked part way across on the log and then stepped to the trunk of a fallen tree; but the tree turned and threw him into the water. He nearly perished; he climbed out and walked on, but soon sank down exhausted and became so cold that he had to crawl a long distance on his hands and knees through the snow to the next hut.

Almost all the anti-slavery men admitted sorrowfully that slavery was profitable to the master. Lundy held to the contrary; he believed that slavery was unprofitable, that it was a poor policy financially for a community. He believed that the planters of the South would clear more money every year if they would set their slaves free and hire them as free laborers. Talking with the planters, he asked them, How much net profit do you get off of a field-slave in a year? and they said, Each slave clears us about $100 a year. Lundy said, Emancipate them and you will clear more; and their reply was, You prove that and we will emancipate them.

Many said, also, that the negroes were incapable of existing as a law-abiding body of free laborers. This was asserted so emphatically and repeated so often that it became a great obstacle in the way of emancipation. Lundy believed that the one thing needful for the further advancement of the abolition cause was a demonstration to the world that the negro was capable of self-government and could prosper as a free laborer.

Remember that Lundy never dreamed of an emancipation backed by the sword; he was opposed to violence and war; his appeal was solely to the reason and the conscience. His hope was to win the masters themselves. Therefore he proposed to establish a colony of negroes beyond the borders of the United States, with the ultimate object of thus securing emancipation on the soil of all the slaves who remained at home in the United States. His was not a money-making scheme; his was an argument-making scheme. Lundy's idea was unique.

Colonies had been planted in Africa for the good of Africa; and colonies had been planted in other places for the purpose of getting all the free negroes out of the United States. Why not plant a colony for the purpose of universal emancipation?

Lundy was a man of action; he was not content to sit in the editorial chair and preach this idea to others; he began to carry the plan into effect himself; he would prove by experiment that the American negro could prosper as a free laborer.

Inspired by this noble and far-reaching hope, and knowing that the strength of slavery was in the cultivation of cotton, rice and sugar, Lundy made three journeys to Mexico, suffering great hardships and encountering many dangers in his efforts to obtain from the Mexican authorities permission to plant his colony in that semi-tropical land.

Texas was rapidly becoming the storm center of political passions; it was swarming with land speculators, and underneath all the turmoil was the burning slave question. One President of Mexico had issued a proclamation freeing all slaves at once, but that President was arrested and put to death; another President had modified the proclamation and restored slavery in Texas. Many of the new settlers in Texas had come from the United States and were rank slavery men at heart, especially Austin's colony. The aggressiveness of this faction boded ill for Mexico.

Going to New Orleans and thence ascending the Red River Lundy struck across the wilderness, afoot and alone, carrying a knapsack. After a journey of one hundred and sixty miles, he reached Nacogdoches on July 1, 1832. He immediately drew up a petition addressed to the proper state officers asking for a tract of land whereon he might plant a colony. He left this petition in the hands of true men to be forwarded to Monclova, the capital of the State of Coahuila. Leaving Nacogdoches on July 7, he descended the Red River; ascending the Mississippi, he returned to Philadelphia. Lundy remained at home about five months.

In April, 1833, he started on his second trip to Mexico; on May 5th he had reached Cincinnati. While floating down the Ohio and the Mississippi on a freight boat, he studied the Spanish language and argued with his fellow passengers concerning the rights of man. When the boat stopped at a wharf a few hours to take on freight, he enquired after prospective colonists; when the boat stopped at a town over night, he held a public meeting.

Having taken passage from New Orleans in the schooner Wild-Cat, he disembarked in Texas at the mouth of the Brazos River, traveled up that stream for several days, and then struck overland for Monclova on the Rio Grande three hundred miles to the westward.

"I prepared," says he, "to camp out by providing myself with a pocket pistol and ammunition. I set out before daylight. The grass was so dewy that I had occasion to stop three times before breakfast to pour the water from my shoes and wring out my stockings. When night came on I lay down in the grass by the roadside, my knapsack serving for a pillow and my small thin cloak for sheets and counterpane, while my hat, my staff and my pistol lay at arm's length from my person."

We see him at one time camping with a band of Indians; and at another wandering alone through an arid region and almost perishing for lack of water to drink. The cholera is raging; and some of the larger towns through which he passed had lost one-tenth of their inhabitants by the scourge. He himself is stricken down several times by symptoms of the dread disease. His money gives out and he is compelled to sell his watch and some of his clothing.

On entering a village he rents a room and supports himself by repairing shoes and harness, and by making suspenders and other articles from panther and deer skins. An entry in his journal says: "I have sold to-day a shot-bag and a pair of suspenders for $1 each. Thus I am quite in funds again."

Reaching Monclova, the capital of Coahuila, he calls on the Secretary of State and explains his plan. He draws up a petition, has it translated into Spanish, and visits the Governor. He is looked upon at first as a Texas schemer, one of Austin's roasters.

He is now confronted by a legal difficulty. The Mexican Congress had recently passed a law prohibiting persons from the United States from holding land in the Mexican Republic. One ray of hope appears; the news comes that one branch of the Mexican Congress had passed a bill to repeal that law of 1830. Lundy waits and becomes acquainted with some land speculators. They wish him to bear witness to their good standing morally, socially and financially. But Lundy was cautious. Then they endeavored to persuade him to employ them as agents in securing his grant of land. But Lundy did not fall into that scheme. Then they turned on him openly; they declared that he was not the person that he represented himself to be; that he was not the prominent anti-slavery editor but an out and out impostor. Slowly it dawned on Lundy's mind that land speculators, at least the Texan variety, were an interesting class of rascals.

He waited a month, and on December 8th official news is received that the Mexican Congress has repealed the law of 1830, the appeal to take effect six months hence. The Governor says he can not act now, not until the six months have expired. However, he pledges his word that Lundy shall have the first grant when the time limit is up. Lundy finds it necessary to return to the United States; and in order to make assurance doubly sure, he concludes an agreement with a friend of his to take out two grants of land for him; his friend being a British subject and hence not within the statute.

He started for home on January 23, 1834, and going to Matamoras took a boat for New Orleans. Several passengers died of cholera. The only ship they met flying the Stars and Stripes was one carrying a cargo of slaves.

On reaching Cincinnati the students of Lane Seminary, an institution at which the conflict between colonization and emancipation was especially bitter, arranged a meeting for him at which he explained the radical differences between his plan of negro settlement and the aims and operations of the Colonization Society.

He had been absent just one year on his trip to Mexico. The sole purpose of his flying visit home at this time was to secure funds to be used in obtaining his grant of land, but in this he was only partially successful.

At the end of three weeks, with scant and inadequate resources, he set out on his third and last trip to Mexico. The yellow fever was raging in the southwest but he never hesitated. He went up the Red River and then crossed Texas, traveling at first on foot but afterwards securing an Indian pony. On reaching Monclova he was informed that the State Legislature of Coahuila had passed a law against the citizens of the United States, estopping them from buying land within her boundaries, including her territory of Texas. This ended all hope of obtaining a grant in those places.

Lundy determined, therefore, to apply to the neighboring state of Tamaulipas. Having been assured by Colonel Almonte that land could be obtained without going to Victoria, the capital, he journeyed four hundred miles eastward to the seacoast and arrived at Matamoros penniless, where he rented a house, opened a saddler's shop and remained three months waiting in vain for the Governor of Tamaulipas to visit the city. Finding that he must go to the capital, he works every day and almost every night, borrows thirty-five dollars, mounts his pony and starts for Victoria, 250 miles to the southwest.

Here, after a number of vexatious delays, he obtained from the governor the long-sought-for grant of land. It was for 138,000 acres. He agreed to introduce 250 settlers and their families, but he could not select the land and have it surveyed until he brought some of his settlers; so he hurried home, traveling by boat and reaching Nashville on May 4, 1835, having been absent one year on this his third and last trip to Mexico.

He prepared handbills setting forth the advantages of Lundy's Grant in Tamaulipas, printed a private letter to his friends, and published in the Western Methodist an address on his Mexican Plan.

The first name entered on his list of colonists was that of R. P. Graham, of Nashville, a man possessing property worth ten thousand dollars. Andrew Donelson, a brother-in-law of President Jackson, died and left twenty-one slaves to be freed, but the court decided that the will could not be held valid as to the emancipation of slaves unless they were removed from the United States; so Lundy, at the request of the slaves and with the consent of Stokely Donelson, the executor, applied to the court to be allowed to take them to his colony. A southern philanthropist was preparing to liberate 100 slaves and a large number of these had expressed a wish to go with Lundy to Mexico. These serve to illustrate the character of the colonists.

Lundy issued a pamphlet of 16 pages, the title page reading as follows: "A circular addressed to Agriculturists, Manufacturers, Mechanics, &c., on the subject of Mexican Colonization, with a General Statement respecting Lundy's Grant in the State of Tamaulipas, accompanied by a Geographical Description, &c., of that interesting portion of the Mexican Republic."

He appointed Philadelphia as the place and February, 1836, as the time for the sailing of the first expedition.

But a crisis was rapidly approaching in Mexican affairs. Insurrection developed into revolution, and the government of Texas, founded on slavery and christened a republic, received a baptism of blood.

Amid the clash of arms, Lundy's expedition was postponed and finally entirely abandoned to the intense disappointment of its originator.

Lundy was now one of the best informed men in the country as to the true condition of affairs in Texas and Mexico. He furnished John Quincy Adams, both by letters and by personal interviews, with much valuable material used by Adams in his public debates in the House of Representatives.

He brought out in 1835 a pamphlet of 32 pages, entitled "The Origin and True Cause of the Texan Insurrection." In May, 1836, he printed another pamphlet of 56 pages, entitled "The War in Texas, a review of facts and circumstances showing that this contest is the Result of a long-premeditated crusade against the government set on foot by slaveholders, land-speculators, &c., with a view of reëstablishing, extending and perpetuating the system of slavery and the slave-trade in the Republic of Mexico. By a Citizen of the United States."

In this pamphlet is found that remarkable passage predicting the Southern Confederacy, and expressed by Lundy in these words: "Our countrymen, in fighting for the union of Texas with the United States, will be fighting for that which at no distant period will inevitably dissolve the Union. The slave states, having the eligible addition to their land of bondage, will ere long cut asunder the federal tie, and confederate a new and distinct slaveholding republic in opposition to the whole free republic of the north. Thus early will be fulfilled the prediction of the old politicians of Europe that our Union could not remain one century entire; and then also will the maxim be exemplified in our history that liberty and slavery can not long inhabit the same soil."

During the winter of 1835-6, Lundy contributed a series of articles on Texas and Mexico to the columns of the National Gazette of Philadelphia. On August 3, 1836, he commenced a new anti-slavery paper at Philadelphia; it was a weekly called the National Enquirer. He also published the Genius every month. He issued both papers as sole proprietor regularly until the third week in March, 1837, on which date he entered into an agreement with the Pennsylvania Anti-Slavery Society whereby the Society assumed the financial responsibility for the publication of the Enquirer, which was to become the official organ of the Society, Lundy retaining the editorship. This arrangement continued until March 9, 1838, just one year.

Then an entire change of programme was made. The Pennsylvania Anti-Slavery Society took the Enquirer, changed its name to the Pennsylvania Freeman, and secured the services of John Greenleaf Whittier as editor.

Thus relieved of editorial responsibility, Lundy planned to begin life anew; he would go west, buy a home and gather his children around him, equip an office and resume the publication of the Genius. Such were his plans, but he did not start west at once. He lingered, desiring to attend a series of abolition meetings which were to be held in Philadelphia the middle of May.

One of the difficulties encountered by the anti-slavery reformers was the impossibility of renting public halls in which to hold their meetings. To remedy this, the abolitionists of Pennsylvania had decided to buy a lot in Philadelphia and erect on it a building dedicated to Freedom and the Rights of Man. They raised $30,000; and their edifice, named Pennsylvania Hall, was opened for meetings on May 14, 1838. The Anti-Slavery Convention of American Women, an organization which Lundy had been very active in promoting, held there its annual meeting. Public meetings were held for three days.

This gathering of abolition agitators caused great excitement in the city. On the evening of the 17th, John Swift, the mayor of Philadelphia, went to the managers of the hall and requested them not to hold any evening session lest they should endanger the safety of the building. To this they agreed; and to him they surrendered the keys. The mayor made a speech to the mob which had gathered on the street in front of the hall, advising them to go home and go to bed as he intended to do.

But the mob remained and becoming bolder soon burst open the doors and set fire to the hall, the police making little, if any, resistance. When the firemen arrived the mob would not allow them to save the hall but compelled them by threats to confine their efforts to protecting the surrounding property.

In the anti-slavery office in this hall Lundy had collected all the property which he intended to take west with him, including most of his private journals and complete sets of the Genius.

Everything was burned.

The next morning Lundy wrote to a friend and announced his loss, closing his letter in these words: "My papers, books, clothes—everything of value (except my journal in Mexico, etc.) are all, all gone—a total sacrifice on the altar of Universal Emancipation. They have not yet got my conscience, they have not yet taken my heart, and until they rob me of these, they can not prevent me from pleading the cause of the suffering slave. I am not disheartened, though everything of earthly value (in the shape of property) is lost. We shall assuredly triumph yet."

These words vibrate with the unconquerable spirit of the man and of his cause. Gazing on the blackened and smoking walls of Pennsylvania Hall, impoverished, homeless, and with the wild jeering of the mob yet ringing in his ears, he breaks forth into an exclamation of victory,—“We shall assuredly triumph yet.”

The prophecy came true, the Cause did triumph; but for Benjamin himself the close of life was not far off.

As a reformer he was firm and uncompromising; he stood during his whole career as stiff as a steel-beam for the freedom of every human being everywhere. But at the same time he was conciliatory, and appealed calmly to reason; and the end he aimed at was an emancipation brought about without the use of fire and sword; his temper and methods were in the main acceptable to many southern people. It will always remain a matter of speculation whether or not slavery could have been abolished without civil war; but this much is certain,—it never could have been so done, except under the leadership of men gifted with Lundy's patience and common sense.

In September, 1838, Lundy went to Hennepin, Illinois, and tried to resume there the publication of the Genius; but he encountered much difficulty in securing type and paper. During the delay he was induced to locate at Lowell, a town site that had recently been laid out but which had not yet secured the convenience of a post office. There in the winter of 1838-9 he built a house and a printing office. In the spring he bought as a home for his unmarried children a small farm four miles away. At last Benjamin's life had fallen in pleasant places; he had his children around him; he had an office; and the Genius of Universal Emancipation began once more to go abroad.

In August he was taken with a slight fever which was then epidemic in that section. While working in his printing office on the afternoon of the 21st, he was seized with severe pains so that he could not go to his home but spent the night at the house of his friend William Seely. He grew worse and suffered much pain all the next day. At ten o'clock on the evening of August 22, 1839, the pain ceased and he became easy; it was the sign of approaching death, and one hour later he breathed his last.

Such was the life of Benjamin Lundy, the Founder of American Abolitionism.

Such were the toils and struggles of this tireless and effective worker in the cause of human freedom, a heroic spirit inspired to lead the way in changing the thoughts and feelings and morals of a mighty nation.

As God naturally wrought out his decree for the abolition of slavery in America, he called forth Lundy and Lincoln—the saddler to begin, and the rail-splitter to complete, that great and glorious work.

LETTERS AND OTHER WRITINGS

BY, TO, OR CONCERNING

BENJAMIN LUNDY.

While preparing my paper on Benjamin Lundy in 1897, I wrote to Susan M. Wierman, eldest daughter of Benjamin Lundy, soliciting the loan of copies of the Genius and of any original letters or other documents which she might have, in order that I might exhibit the same at the meeting of the Historical Club. She very kindly complied with my request, and in her letter said:

"Nearly all of father's papers were destroyed by fire in Pennsylvania Hall in 1838.

"Zebina Eastman, of Chicago, commenced to collect material for a book and we sent him all the material we had which was not much; but he died suddenly—before he had much done, I presume—and none of the material has been returned. Zebina was with father in Lowell at the time of his death, and had been with him for some weeks; was an ardent friend of his and of the Cause.

"I have not one whole number of the Genius, and the scraps I have contain little but what has been used; I furnished Professor Williams with all the material in my possession and he used it quite largely in his article. However, I send thee such letters and papers as I have; I hope they may prove of interest to the members of the historical society, and thee is free to make such use of them as may seem best. Should be pleased to hear of thy success, and would gladly do anything in my power to help."

One of the papers loaned to me for the occasion by her kindness I have already given word for word on pages 366-367, it being the itinerary of Lundy's journey from Baltimore to Bennington; I now present several others along with some excerpts gathered by me from various sources as severally indicated.

Letter written by David Lee Child and addressed to Benjamin Lundy, Moorestown, Burlington county, N. J.

Mr. Child graduated from Harvard in the class of 1817; he was a lawyer, and edited the Massachusetts Weekly Journal, published at Boston.

New York, Mch. 28, 1830.

DEAR FRIEND,—

Yours of the 17th Inst. was duly received. I am glad you have determined as you there state. I go to Boston and thence to my father's at West Boylestown, County of Worcester and State of Massachusetts where any communication will reach me. Let me know all you learn about the progress or retrogression of "the blackhearted ingrates." Is it not curious that even now, after dipping their felon hands up to the elbows in blood, they are not grateful to Santa Anna for not driving them out of Southern heathendom or into the Gulf of Mexico. God's will be done tho it is a sore trial to any observer to wait so long for their destruction. Accounts in the newspapers are so contradictory that I put no confidence in them. Whenever you get correct information, let me have the pleasure of it for I shall be in the country where I shall not be superabundantly supplied with news.

We left Joseph Carpenter and his family all well. That is one of the best men I ever saw.

He was pleased to be remembered by you. He is one of your old friends, and if you could be able to visit him, you would give and receive great pleasure. We have been fortunate to form the acquaintance and I hope acquire the friendship of two such persons as he and his sweet and blessed daughter Esther. They have the Turpie children to bring up. These children will be rendered, I hope, very important to the cause of truth. My wife desires remembrance to you.

Yr Sincere friend,

MR. BENJAMIN LUNDY.

Letter written by Benjamin Lundy and addressed to Lydia S. Wierman, care Joel Wierman, York Springs, Pennsylvania. Lydia, Benjamin's sister, had recently married; she conducted a Boarding-School for Girls at York Sulphur Springs in Adams county, one hundred miles west of Philadelphia.

Philad-a. 5th mo. 29, 1831.

DEAR SISTER,—

I expected to receive a letter from thee, before now. I will, however, excuse thee for thy neglect; for, judging from the past, I fear I shall often stand in need of similar favors.

Well, I have engaged our friend, Amos Gilbert, to assist in the editorial management of the Genius, while I perform my great tour; and he is now in Washington, and I am on my journey. But, as I shall take such a zig-zag, round-about course, I expect to be in Washington again before I get far away from home. I have it in prospect to visit some parts of the State of Delaware, New Jersey, and Maryland, immediately. After leaving Washington again, (probably in 4 or 5 months from this date) I shall shape my course pretty directly to your part of the country. I shall not go far away until I see what kind of a home my dear sister has. I have just been to see sister Phebe. She has a fine daughter, and has named it "Lydia S."

I am in hopes William has provided a snug home for his family. Father, mother, Deborah and Mary are now to the eastward. I have not seen any of the family, at home, since thee left them; but I expect to visit them in a week or two. Several of them attended the Y. Meeting, as I did also myself. I then saw thy letter to H. Townsend; (and when at brother Wm's, Phebe showed me the one thee sent her); from which I gather that thee did not fancy our slave system in the South! Thee told some pretty tough stories about us!

Well, dear sister, I do not know but that I will let Susan go and live with thee a few months, this summer and fall, if it will still be agreeable to both Joel and thyself. The woman that she first went to, has quit the business on account of ill-health; and she has since been a short time with another. But the latter demands terms that I am not disposed to comply with. Some inquiry has been made for a situation here; and she can be accommodated in the fall. I have talked with Sarah Marshall of Philadelphia; she will take Susan in the fall; and I think it would be a good place. Should no other opportunity offer, she may pay thee a visit, if thee can give her some employment. She must not (go where she may) contract habits of idleness. Please write me at Washington as soon as this comes to hand, and inform me whether thee is still willing to have her with thee a few months. If thy letter reaches Washington before my return, it will be opened by A. Gilbert and shewn to her. I am glad to learn that thee is pleased with thy new home and new connexion. And, my dear sister, I truly hope and trust that thee will long enjoy the happy satisfaction of a peaceful and plentiful home. If I am not exceedingly deceived, thee has a kind and worthy husband. I have esteemed him very highly ever since I became acquainted with him, but circumstances forbade my expressing the kindly feeling of my heart towards him. I knew however that he had good sense enough to approve, rather than condemn, my seeming taciturnity. The case is now altered,—and I tender him the assurance of a brother's kindest affection. And thee must impress it on his mind.

When I sat down I did not think of writing half so much; but as I forgot to stop sooner, thee must pardon my prolixity.

Sincerely, Dear Sister,

I am Thy Loving Brother,

B. LUNDY.

Resolutions adopted at a public meeting held in the City of Matamoras, Mexico, on the afternoon of April 2, 1835, during Benjamin Lundy's last visit to that city.

The preamble and the first two resolutions have not been preserved.

3. A colony of this character would demonstrate the value of free labor in the culture of sugar, cotton, etc., almost side by side with the planters of Louisiana and adjacent States. On this point mainly the advocate of slavery presumes to argue now; and the practical argument which may thus be adduced in favor of the abolition of slavery will, we are confident, be more effectual than any other in extinguishing the system of slavery upon pacific principles. It will remove the last plank from under the foot of him who entrenches himself on the quagmire of prejudice and despotism; and he must then sink amid the quicksand of human turpitude or immediately place himself on the solid ground of rational justice.

4. Resolved, That, altho' the Mexican people have but recently emerged from the gloom of a most oppressive despotism under which they had, for ages, struggled with ignorance and persecution; yet they have nobly thrown off the shackles of tyranny and degradation; they have embraced the true principles of genuine republicanism; they have made rapid advances in carrying these principles into effect, not merely in theory but also in practice;—and we have not the least doubt that this Republic is destined to rank high among the most free, enlightened, opulent and powerful nations of the earth.

5. Resolved, That, having taken up our abode in this part of North America under the fostering protection of the Mexican Republic, we speak from experience when we say that in our opinion it is the most suitable location in the world for such of our colored brethren in the United States of the North as may be (like we were) desirous to change the place of their residence for one where they may in fact, as well as in name, enjoy the blessings of freedom and the "equal rights of man." As the genial rays of the most brilliant heavenly luminaries are shed, alike, on men of all colors and conditions, so are the consistent provisions of Mexican legislation. Merit alone, not color, is a passport to distinction here. This may, therefore, be emphatically termed "the home of the free." It is, indeed, a home for the man of color. Here he may "repose under his own vine and under his own fig tree, where there are none to molest or make him afraid."

Some of us have resided in this country many years; and when we consider its contiguity to that of our brethren, and the consequent facility of migration, the amenity and salubrity of the climate, the fertility of the soil and its adaptation to every species of culture known upon the American Continent, its central location, convenience for manufactures and commerce, and proximity to the best markets in the world; the remarkable healthiness of this particular region even for northern constitutions, the total absence of prejudice among the natives on account of color and the perfect equality social and political which is extended by them to persons of all colors from all nations;—we say when all these things are taken into consideration we feel ourselves fully warranted in adopting the conclusion expressed in the first part of this resolution.

6. Resolved, That, notwithstanding we have abandoned the nation of our birth on account of the persecution and oppression to which ourselves and our brethren were then subjected,—still we take a deep and lively interest in the welfare and happiness of those we have left behind us.

7. Resolved, That we shall hail with pleasure the arrival of our colored friends in this country, whenever they may choose it as the place of their residence and will do everything consistent with our convenience to welcome and assist them in establishing themselves in business, and we do assure them, that in case they prove themselves to be moral, industrious and prudent and demean themselves well, they will not only receive the most hospitable treatment, unequivocal friendship and safe protection from the Mexican people and government, but that they will also be invested with all rights, privileges and immunities, social, political and religious, that are extended to the individuals of any nation or color; and further, that the door of improvement being here plainly open and every obstacle in the way of emulation and honest competition removed, they may by a proper exercise of their faculties, according to their various talents and capacities soon acquire wealth, respectability and honor, however humble may have been the stations they had previously occupied when prejudice reigned triumphant over them and tyranny had shrouded them in darkness and obscurity.

8. Resolved, That the Secretary be directed to furnish Mr. Lundy with a copy of the proceedings of this meeting to be used by him in whatever manner he may judge proper for the information of our friends and brethren relative to our feelings, views and sentiments as above expressed.

Signed by order of the meeting.

HENRY POWELL,
Chairman.

Attest: JEFF. HAMLIN, Secretary.

Extract from a letter written to Benjamin Lundy by some correspondent in Mexico.

. . . . But the pump for raising water is of the first and indispensable importance. Hubbard's is the one to be preferred. One large pump might water many small farms but probably the better way would be for each farmer to be independent of another with regard to his water and use a smaller and less expensive pump worked by a horse power which must be procured with the pump. Hubbard's second size will answer the purpose well. The largest size would be sufficient for a farm that would employ fifty hands. It would require an eight horse-power to carry it. The price of the largest size is 140$, that of the common size 40$, and the manual or smallest 25$. Gearing, pipes & machinery accompanying extra. The vessel owned by, or employed by the colony when not required in transportation should take mules from this port to Mobile or Pensacola and return with timber. In this way she would make money instead of sinking it; but great pains should be taken in procuring her captain and crew. They should understand their business well. The vessel must come provided with every thing for such a cargo, for nothing but the mules can be procured here. The hay, water, oats & corn for the mules, halters and chains for tying them, slings for keeping them up and the timber for their mangers must all come with the vessel.

Your idea of separating families, or rather of bringing at first only single men, I cannot approve. Married men are the most efficient at all times and will give greatest satisfaction to the government. Their morals are also more to be relied on.

I recommend that a vessel be bought of about 90 or a 100 tons with not over 7 or 8 feet draft for the use of the colonists.

There will be great economy in this as she can ply in the trade between this port and New Orleans & pay her own expenses besides transporting the colonists with all their agricultural implements.

Letter written by Col. I. N. Almonte, Mexican Minister to the United States, and addressed to Benjamin Lundy, Esqr., 94 North Fifth street, Philadelphia.

New York, Sept. the 24, 1835.

DEAR SIR,—

On my return from Canada, which was three days ago, I was agreeably surprised to find on my table your much esteemed letter of the 11th inst. I had the pleasure to converse with Mr. Child and I got some interesting information from him in regard to Texas. I shall see him again when he returns to town.

I can positively assure you that our gov't never will part with Texas; we know too well to appreciate good things, and not only that but the sale of Texas would produce a revolution in Mexico. I had advices from that city up to the 1st of Sept. inst., and by them I learn that everything goes on smoothly. The Congress has not yet declared whether it is to be constituent or convocant, and many assure me that the Const'n. will not be changed but amended only. We shall see by next Packet what has finally been done.

I am extremely obliged to you for the information you give me of Melish's map: would you be so good as to call on Messrs. Follin & Cuerta, No. 36 Walnut street, and let them know the price of the said map? They will in that case give you the money and you will still be kind enough to buy it and deposit it into Mr. Cuerta's hands. You can show this part of my letter to them and they will, I doubt not, serve me.

I shall not pass through that town until December and therefore I shall wait it to have the pleasure of seeing you. I live in Cortland street No. 40, near Broadway, and will be happy to see you there.

Yours truly,

I. N. ALMONTE.

Articles of agreement between Benjamin Lundy, of Washington, D. C., and Lyman A. Spalding, of Lockport, N. Y., dated January 28, 1836.

Articles of Agreement between Benjamin Lundy and Lyman A. Spalding.

(Done in duplicate.)

These articles of agreement made and executed on the twenty-eighth day of January in the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six between Benjamin Lundy of the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia, of the one part, and Lyman A. Spalding, of Lockport, in the State of New York, of the other part, Witness that whereas the said Benjamin hath entered into a treaty with the Governor of the free and sovereign State of Tamaulipas, Republic of Mexico, bearing date the tenth day of March in the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five, whereby a grant of lands in the said state was made to the said Benjamin under certain clauses and restrictions as by reference to said treaty (which was published at Philadelphia in the same year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five) will more fully appear, now for and in consideration of the premises, also of the said Lyman's having advanced to said Benjamin certain sums of money as set forth in two previous articles of agreement, bearing date respectively the twelfth day of first month (January) 1832, and the first day of eleventh month (November) 1832, also of one dollar to him now in hand paid the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, and also of other good and lawful considerations, the said Benjamin and Lyman have agreed and by these presents do agree to become and do become copartners, hereby covenanting and agreeing each to and with the other in manner and form following, that is to say—

1st.—The said Benjamin shall proceed to colonize the land granted to him by said treaty upon the terms and in the manner required thereby, so soon as in his judgment it shall be safe and expedient so to do, transacting the whole of the business of such colonization whether the same be with the authorities of the State of Tamaulipas or with any other person or persons, body or bodies politic whatever in his the said Benjamin's own name and in the manner which he shall think best.

2d.—The reasonable costs accrued and expenditures incurred by said Benjamin in colonizing the said land shall from time to time as may be deemed convenient, be fully and correctly stated and proper accounts thereof be submitted to said Lyman or his proper attorney; which said costs and expenditures shall be equally borne and defrayed by the parties hereto, provided nevertheless the said Benjamin shall besides paying his own moiety furnish as far as may be practicable the funds towards defraying the said Lyman's half until this shall have amounted to the sum of five hundred dollars (in which sum the said Benjamin is well and truly indebted to the said Lyman upon a bond bearing date the twelfth day of first month (January) one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two, alluded to in the former articles of agreement above referred to): and all payments so made by said Benjamin for said Lyman shall be duly credited upon said bond it being understood by both parties that in case of difficulties preventing the completion of the colony designed or in case said Lyman's moiety of the expenses as above paid by said Benjamin shall not amount to said sum of five hundred dollars, then the balance of said sum after deducting the amounts paid shall be considered a loan to said Benjamin to bear interest at the rate of seven dollars for every one hundred dollars per annum as mentioned in the agreements already referred to.

3d.—Immediately upon said Benjamin's receiving the deeds of said lands in fee simple or of any part thereof according to the provisions of the said treaty, they shall be equally divided according to quantity and quality between the said Benjamin and said Lyman or their respective heirs or assigns, to be held severally by them subject to the terms of the treaty and laws of the country, provided nevertheless the said Benjamin shall have the full and entire right and power (which is hereby fully granted and conceded by said Lyman) of granting and conveying to each of the colonists required by said treaty gratis and without charge such portions of land as may be necessary to induce them to become settlers or in general of using such other measures in the transfer of portions of said land to the colonists as will in his opinion best promote the interests of the parties hereto, he hereby binding himself to exert his best efforts in promoting the same.

4th.—Should it at any time hereafter (before the deeds be received as aforesaid and the division made) be the desire of the parties to farm or improve any portion of said land upon their individual accounts, the said Benjamin shall have the first choice of a tract (say a league or labor as he may select) and said Lyman shall have the second choice, which portions so selected shall be held by each party in fee simple, absolutely, separately and apart from the partnership hereby formed as to the residue of the Grant.

5th.—It is further mutually agreed that in case the parties hereto shall at any future time deem it expedient to purchase a tract of land in some suitable place in the vicinity of the land granted by the treaty and herein before alluded to for the purpose of establishing a commercial city, the said Lyman shall purchase the same for his own sole use and benefit, and the said Benjamin shall select or aid in selecting the site, prepare the plan, lay out said city, name it as he shall see fit, as also its avenues, streets, squares, &c., publish an accurate statement of its location with its commercial advantages, all at the cost of said Lyman. In compensation for these services the said Benjamin shall receive of and from the said Lyman a fee simple title to six lots in said city and one labor in its vicinity of the land thus purchased, he choosing the labor and one of the said six lots wherever he shall see fit, the other five remaining lots to be equitably selected according to the advantages of situation.

6th. The articles of agreement heretofore executed and now superseded by these presents are hereby declared of no further force and effect but null and void.

To the true performance and execution of all and singular the foregoing covenants and agreements, the said parties do respectively bind themselves, their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns by these presents.

In testimony whereof we have hereunto severally set our hands and affixed our seals on the day and year first above written.

Letter written by Lydia Maria Child, wife of David Lee Child, to Benjamin Lundy.

Circumstances had prevented Benjamin from starting to Mexico with his settlers during February, 1836, the favorable month; and therefore he had proposed that he and Mr. Child should proceed together to New Orleans, in disguise, and thence to Matamoras. Mrs. Child was the editor of the Anti-Slavery Standard.

New Rochelle, [N. Y.], March 14th, [1836].

ESTEEMED FRIEND,—

I received your letter yesterday. I was very much distressed for fear that Mr. Child would fall in with your proposed route; but he has pledged himself not to go without me, and now I feel easy concerning him.

But your danger will be a hundred fold greater than his. I do beseech you not to be so rash as to think of running this great risk, merely for the sake of gaining a few weeks' time. In the common course of nature it cannot be very long before the ice breaks up. This delay is over-ruled by Providence for some good; and being impatient under it will only be productive of mischief. I think we had better wait till we can all go together. Mr. Child has proposed to go by way of Jamaica; but this would increase expense, and be accompanied with uncertainty. What very important difference can a few weeks make?

I pray you do not go by way of N. Orleans. Having survived so many dangers, do not hazard all on one throw, just as the way seems open for the final accomplishment of your wishes.

Very Respectfully & sincerely your Friend,

L. MARIA CHILD.

P. S.—Joseph Carpenter & his family desire to be remembered.

(On the back of the foregoing letter the following passage is found.)

I have little to add to the enclosed letter; but I hope to get something more definite soon concerning the situation, views and purposes

Plenipe F— has recently arrived, and has promised us news. I fancy the late Charge is not disposed to be very communicative. Well, he has a right to be close, and as a general rule it is his duty.

It seems to me that the Texan traitors are now going down hill to destruction as fast as the greatest sinners need to, unless Andrew the first (and last I hope) picks a quarrel & sends the "6th Regiment," which is now on army observation, to whip the Mexicans into the Pacific Ocean.

It appears to me that Santa Anna is displaying consummate statesmanship. I see now why the Texans began to call him "the archfiend" about two months ago. The Mexican nation and government have been so long harassed, irritated, and insulted by these insolent slavite desperadoes that they will, I doubt not, make thorough work with them now. They must look unfavorably upon any new emigrants from the United States.

Letter written by David Lee Child to Benjamin Lundy.

The heading of the letter has been lost.

. The season when we wished to go has already passed and a few days or weeks cannot now be very important. I should suppose that very little can be done this year except in planting provisions, erecting dwellings and laying out lots so as to begin bétimes next January. I wish to be there and will go by the first opportunity altho' I regret that the best and healthiest months for arriving there have passed away. But temperance & regularity render almost any changes of climate safe. Let us know immediately whether you concur in our views. Arrived at our destination, our land selected, and the nature of the soil, climate, &c., tried, we shall be able to put forth a circular in the U. S. which will bring us settlers as fast as they can be accommodated.

A extract from The War in Texas, a pamphlet of fifty-six pages, written and published by Benjamin Lundy in 1836.

It is susceptible of the clearest demonstration that the immediate cause and the leading object of this contest originated in a settled design among the slaveholders of this country (with land-speculators and slave-traders) to wrest the large and valuable territory of Texas from the Mexican Republic in order to reëstablish the system of slavery; to open a vast and profitable slave-market therein; and ultimately, to annex it to the United States.

We can no longer disguise the fact that the advocates of Slavery are resolved at all hazards to obtain the territory in question, if possible, for the avowed purpose of adding five or six more slave-holding states to the Union!

It is now time for the people of the United States who are opposed to this horrible evil (an evil unparalleled in the present state of the world) to arouse from their lethargy and nip the monstrous attempt in the bud.

XI.

Resolution adopted by the Anti-Slavery Society of the State of Pennsylvania at its convention held at Harrisburg from January 31 to February 2, 1837:

WHEREAS, We recognize and appreciate the self-denying zeal and untiring efforts of Benjamin Lundy, by which he sustained The Genius of Universal Emancipation for eight years of general apathy on the subject of slavery, when no pecuniary embarrassment, no privations of society, no cold neglect or indifference to his warning voice could dissuade him from his fixed principles of duty, but finally the attention of many was roused by it throughout the land; therefore,

Resolved, That Benjamin Lundy receive the thanks of this Convention.

Letter written by Benjamin Lundy, and addressed to William C. Wierman, York Springs, Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, 4th mo. 6th, 1837.

MY DEAR CHILDREN,—

I have been very unwell much of the time since I saw you. My time has also been so incessantly occupied when I have been able to attend to business that it has been out of my power to pay much attention to matters of a private nature. This will account for my delaying so long to write to you. The time is near at hand when I suppose you will set out for the west. I have thought much upon the subject since my return home, and indulge the hope that everything may be arranged to your satisfaction.

Eliza seems at a loss to decide whether to go to the west, just now, or to wait until I can go also. As the State Society has now taken the National Enquirer on the condition that I shall still continue its editor, I do not expect that I can leave this part of the country before next Fall, or Spring. I have no expectation that my location here will be permanent. I wish to arrange matters so that I can spend the remainder of my life among my children, if possible; and it is altogether likely that I shall obtain a discharge from my present station after a while. The friends of our cause will not listen to anything of the kind at present; and, in fact, I believe, myself, that it would not be proper for me to seek repose, during the heat of the great moral warfare in which I have been so long engaged.

As for Charles, I am of the opinion that he had best accompany you, if it is your desire. You will probably need his assistance, both in performing the journey with your goods, &c., and in preparing your new habitation. Even if he should return again after a while, or choose to learn a trade, I have no doubt that it be the best for himself to go with you. In fact, I scarcely know what he could do here, to advantage. If you should not have full employment for him, he would find no difficulty in getting it among our friends in that part of the country. Should he incline to learn a trade, as aforesaid, he could get better terms in a new country than in the old settlements. I have got a pretty good situation for Eliza, but I have no idea that one could be had, about here, for Charles, unless he would serve an apprenticeship of five or six years.

I wish you to write me, soon after the reception of this, and let me know, candidly, your views upon this subject. Let me know, also, what Charles thinks of it himself. And further, I wish to understand the precise time of your intended departure, that I may, if possible, see you again before you set out.

I received a letter from sister Mary a short time since. She has not yet arrived in the city but we expect her to-morrow. I got Susan's letter, a few days ago. She sends her love to you all.

Soon after my return here I wrote to Brother William Lewis but have got no answer yet. Have you received anything from him lately?

We learn that our friends in New Jersey are generally in usual health. Isaac Lewis, Morgan Lewis' son, from Short Creek, Ohio, was here last week. He saw Father Lewis, Brother Samuel, Sister Ann Fullerton, and their folks a week or two before, who were all in common health.

Do not forget to write me immediately. That is the popular doctrine now. Give my love to Lydia, Joel, Charles, and all the children. You have so many there, it would occupy too much time and space to name them all here.

Your affectionate Father,

B. LUNDY.

Wm. C. Wierman,
Susan M. Wierman.

Letter written by Benjamin Lundy to William C. and Susan M. Wierman, Clear Creek, Putnam Co., Illinois.

It is dated August 21, 1839, the day he was stricken down with sickness; he died the next day.

Lowell, 8th mo. 21st, 1839.

DEAR WM & SUSAN,—

Esther has been taken down with the Ague fever, and there is no one here to pay her the proper attention. I am confined to my bed more than half the time.

I want Susan to take care of her, while her illness continues. When she gets able to work she may help Eliza, if she wants her. I will pay fully for her board, &c. &c. while she is unable to work. My journeyman is about leaving me, and I must shut up my office again.

I will see you all as soon as I am able to ride that distance.

Affectionately,

B. LUNDY.

P. S.—I do not think it would do to send Esther to Eliza, now.

Obituary notice of Esther (Lewis) Lundy, wife of Benjamin Lundy; written by her husband and published in The Genius on June 3, 1826:

The editor has never made it a practice to insert obituary notices in this work, but he trusts that his readers will hold him excused for occupying a small space in the present number, with the view of paying a tribute to the memory of his late bosom companion, whose untimely demise was noticed a few weeks since, during his absence. Though nothing can be said that will rescue from the power of the grave the friends that we love, after the relentless hand of death hath been laid upon them, still we may be permitted to breathe our last adieu, in obedience to the mandates of true and genuine affection.

Esther Lundy was born in the county of Chester, in the State of Pennsylvania, on the 26th day of the 3d month, 1793. She was the eldest daughter of Henry Lewis, who removed with his family to the State of Ohio, in the early settlement of that part of the country, where he still resides. She had a birth-right in the Society of Friends, which she retained until the day of her death. Since we formed our matrimonial connexion, it has frequently been my lot to be from home, for many months at a time. And in consequence of the peculiar duties of my calling, since I have been in a public line of business, I several times found it necessary to change my place of residence. All this must have occasioned some trials to my wife; and in addition thereto, she was for several years of the latter part of her life severely afflicted with a rheumatic complaint, that sometimes appeared to her with imminent danger. Yet amidst every difficulty, and under every afflictive dispensation, she evinced an unusual degree of fortitude, for one of her sex. Whenever it fell to my lot to be called from home, and whatever might be the state and condition of her health, she uniformly and cheerfully gave her consent thereto; observing that she could not find a freedom in urging anything as a hinderance to the success of my labours in the cause of philanthropy. It may truly be said that she was actuated by the spirit that directs the Christian in the path of duty; and that the irreparable loss of her numerous friends and relatives is her eternal gain. She has left five small children, in addition to her bereaved husband, to lament her untimely death. In ordinary cases the severance of near and dear connexions by the cold hand of death, is sufficient to out-weigh every consideration that excites the pang of sorrow and keen regret. Yet when this is attended with peculiarly distressing circumstances, the barbed arrow of grief is doubly pointed, and the mind must suffer all the poignancy of deep and heart-rending affliction. It happened at a time when every relative, except her little hapless children, was absent, that the messenger of death appeared with his awful summons. Yet she was surrounded with Christian neighbors, who spared no exertions to administer the balm of relief in the hour of distress. But alas! what could they do? It was the appointed time for her to receive the glorious reward of her many virtues. Her Saviour called—she passed the ordeal of dissolution with perfect calmness and serenity of mind—and her spirit reposes in the mansion of eternal happiness.

Editorial written by Benjamin Lundy and published in the Genius on September 6, 1828.

More than seven years have now elapsed since the first number of The Genius of Universal Emancipation was issued from the press, and sent abroad to take its luck in a fault-finding world and stand or fall by its own merits alone. No hireling prints were employed to trumpet a fame which it never deserved. No associations of wealthy and influential individuals were formed for the purpose of giving it a circulation or popularity which its own character could not sustain or extend. Its pecuniary prospects all grew out of barely six individual subscriptions; and its success, in every other respect, was left to grow out of its own little self, with this limited circulation. But this was not the only difficulty with which it was doomed to grapple. Many of the declared friends of emancipation, distrustful its slender hold upon the favour of the people, denounced the attempt as "wild and Quixotic." The "great mass" looked "askance" at a project so novel; while interested knaves poured forth their vollies of wrath and seasoned their execrations with threats by no means creditable to themselves or flattering to the editor.

Nothing but a firm conviction of the correctness of our views, the justice of our cause and the rectitude of our intentions, could have sustained us in our undertaking, during the earliest stages of this discouraging conflict.

But the fates have decreed that "perseverance in well-doing shall be rewarded." Our paper has worked its way through many opposing difficulties, and gradually extended and increased its patronage. And we now have the pleasure to say that it is supported by many of the most exemplary and influential men—both political and religious—in the United States. The immense pecuniary sacrifices, however, which have been necessarily made to sustain it thus far, have not been sufficiently repaired to give it that independent, firm, and dignified character which its advocates might wish.

The difficulties to be encountered in conducting a periodical like this are numerous and appalling. Each man who lends his support thinks that he thereby obtains an unqualified right to chalk out the course to be pursued by its conductor. And as opinions relative to this course are various and conflicting, we must reject all but our own, and adopted it as a rule of conduct.

Some of our subscribers who believe that the condition of the African race is materially involved in the ensuing Presidential election, urge us to devote a larger portion of our paper, at this eventful period, to that important subject,—others, again, when they discover the most distant allusion to a “purely political” question of this kind, very gravely order us to strike their names from our list, and assign for a reason that we have “abandoned our first principles and commenced the publication of a political paper.”

XVII.

Editorial written by Benjamin Lundy and published in the Genius of April 30, 1830, that being the first issue after the dissolution of the partnership with William Lloyd Garrison.

The Genius has been a weekly publication; it is now reduced to a monthly. The amiable writer alluded to was the poetess, Elizabeth Margaret Chandler, who was for several years assistant editor of the Genius.

THE EDITOR TO THE PUBLIC.

Again I find myself, alone, at the editorial desk; and again I resume a monthly correspondence with the readers of The Genius of Universal Emancipation. I yet hope to have the assistance of an amiable and talented writer whose services in the cause are invaluable, but the care and responsibility of the publication depend entirely upon myself.

Nine years have nearly elapsed since this work first made its appearance. During that period I have witnessed many vicissitudes in the affairs of life, have experienced something of the fickleness of fortune and a goodly share of what the world calls hardship and privation. From the commencement until very lately, however, it gradually increased in size, and it is believed in interest. The many difficulties that presented themselves have occasionally produced some irregularity in its publication; and this, together with the unpopularity of the subject upon which it treats, in a portion of the country, and the general apathy among those who are friendly to the undertaking, have prevented as extensive a circulation as had been anticipated. The strong desire that I have ever felt to contribute my mite towards the promotion of the good cause, has induced me not only to make great exertions to issue a weekly publication devoted to it but also to render what assistance I could in every other way. But I find that the people are not prepared to go with me quite so far. To speak in phrase a la militaire, I am too near the entrenchments of the enemy.—and, of course, like a prudent soldier, must retreat a little, until our troops can “screw up their courage” somewhat more. That they will ere long go farther I feel well assured; and I shall still “fight on,” and “keep the faith,” hoping and believing that a glorious victory will ultimately crown our efforts. That I shall yet have a severe struggle for a time, even with the monthly publication, is to be expected: and I submit it to the consideration of those who profess a willingness to aid in promoting the work of emancipation—those who approve the course I have pursued—whether it be reasonable or just, that I should be subjected to inconveniences and hardships almost intolerable when they are equally as much interested in the matter as I am myself, and have it in their power, by giving a little further assistance, to relieve me from a portion of the burden and enable me to labor much more efficiently for the attainment of our great and important object.

I do not wish to speak boastfully of what I have done, or essayed to do, in advocating the question of African Emancipation; and I do detest the idea of making a cringing appeal to the public for aid in my undertaking. I am willing to work; and can support myself and family by my own labor. But after a ten years' struggle to promote the cause to the best of my humble abilities, and in every possible manner, it may not be amiss to inform those who take an interest in this publication, that I have (within the period mentioned) sacrificed several thousand dollars of my own hard earnings, have travelled upwards of five thousand miles on foot, and more than twenty thousand in other ways; have visited nineteen of the states of this Union and held more than two hundred public meetings, with the view of making known our object, &c.;

and in addition to this, have performed two voyages to the West Indies, by which means the liberation of a considerable number of slaves has been effected, and I hope the way has been paved for the enlargement of many more.

What effect this work has had in turning the attention of the public to the subject of the abolition of slavery, it would not become me to say, though I have carefully noted everything relative thereto that came within the range of my observation.

Of this, others who have acquainted themselves with the matter must judge. But I am fully persuaded that something of the kind is greatly needed and may be instrumental in doing much good.

There is not another periodical work, published by a citizen of the United States, whose conductor dare treat upon the subject of slavery as its nature requires and its importance demands.

And viewing the matter in this light, I shall persevere in my efforts, as usual, while the means of doing it are afforded, or until more efficient advocates of the cause shall make themselves known. I shall now devote my undivided attention to this publication, and endeavor to make it as interesting as possible. I will neither be cajoled by the smiles nor awed by the frowns of any to a dereliction of principle or an abandonment of the cause. My humble exertions shall be directed to the one great end—my whole self shall be devoted to the holy work—my march shall be steadily onward; and neither sectarian pride, party zeal, nor even persecution itself, from the “powers that be,” or that may be, shall turn me to the right hand or to the left. If I obtain a reasonable patronage for the work, it shall go on, upon the principle that it has ever done when under my immediate direction, notwithstanding all the opposition that tyranny and malice can array against it.

Extract from a speech delivered by Wendell Phillips before the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society, in Boston, January 27, 1853, on “The Philosophy of the Abolition Movement.”

See Speeches, Lectures and Letters by Wendell Phillips, page 116, published by Lee and Shepherd, 1884.

"Any one who will examine John Quincy Adams's speech on Texas, in 1838, will see that he was only seconding the full and able exposure of the Texas plot, prepared by Benjamin Lundy, to one of whose pamphlets Dr. Channing in his 'Letter to Henry Clay' has confessed his obligation. Every one acquainted with those years will allow that the North owes its earliest knowledge and first awakening on that subject to Mr. Lundy who made long journeys and devoted years to the investigation. His (Lundy's) labors have this attestation that they quickened the zeal and strengthened the hands of such men as Adams and Channing. I have been told that Mr. Lundy prepared a brief for Mr. Adams and furnished him the materials for his 'Speech on Texas.'"

Eulogy on Benjamin Lundy, written by Thomas Earle and published as introductory paragraphs to "Earle's Life of Lundy."

"It has, perhaps, been too often the province of Biography to record the achievements of the heroes of the sword—of those whose principal distinction arose from the torrents of blood they had caused to flow, from the number of widows and orphans they had made, and from the extent of the countries which they had devastated or enslaved, with no better motive than that principle of self-aggrandizement which actuates the thief, the robber and the pirate.

"Our enterprise is of a different character. Its purpose is to record the deeds of a hero of the soul—of one who toiled incessantly, and patiently endured every privation in order that he might heal the wounds which tyranny had inflicted; that he might bind up the hearts which avarice had rent; that he might sanctify the rights of consanguinity; that he might secure to labour its just reward, to virtue its due protection, to the rights of man their full enjoyment, to human intellect its freedom of expansion, to life the shield of just laws; and that he might elevate his race to a more full conformity to that religion which teaches peace on earth and good will to men."

There was an article published in The Independent in 1868 on The Anti-Slavery Labors of Benjamin Lundy, which article consisted of two contributed letters, with some comments thereon by the editor of the paper. One of these letters was written by Mrs. Susan M. Wierman, and gave a short history of The Genius; I do not reprint Mrs. Wierman's letter for it contains no new facts. The other letter was written by Mr. Thomas H. Genin, an aged citizen of St. Clairsville, Ohio, who speaks from personal knowledge concerning the beginning of Benjamin Lundy's public career, concerning Lundy's success in organizing the Union Humane Society, and concerning the character of the work carried on by that association. I reprint Mr. Genin's letter in full.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., March 25, 1867.

To the Editor of THE INDEPENDENT:

In your notice of Leutze's intent to paint the emancipators (January 3, 1867), you say, "William Lloyd Garrison is the pioneer and founder of the grand moral movement which generated the public sentiment in obedience to which slavery in the United States was abolished." I would not detract from him, but would allow the just claims of others. Garrison could have been scarce eleven years old when Benjamin Lundy assembled by his importunity some persons who had virtue in abundance but rusty for want of use, at the tavern of William Sharpless, in St. Clairsville, Ohio,—among them Charles Hammond, subsequently of the Cincinnati Gazette—to form an abolition association under the name of "The Union Humane Society."

The record of their proceedings, in Lundy's handwriting, is before me. It is without date, but the 34th article of the constitution they adopted provides that "All persons who subscribe this constitution on or before the 20th day of April, 1816, shall meet at Mt. Pleasant on that day for the purpose of organizing the society."

Under this constitution, by Lundy's exertions, eight local associations were formed, which sent delegates semi-annually to Mt. Pleasant for several years, and the central society was represented by delegates to the Abolition Convention held in Philadelphia. I was a delegate in 1819.

The inhabitants of St. Clairsville, Ohio, indulged in some pleasantries at Lundy's efforts in 1818, '19 and '20, to sell his little house in that town for the purpose, as he said, of getting means to publish an abolition paper. In the latter part of 1820 he arranged to have such a paper printed at Mt. Pleasant, called The Genius of Universal Emancipation. The enclosed letter of Mrs. Susan M. Wierman, of Magnolia, Putnam county, Ill., eldest daughter of Mr. Lundy, gives its history.

Mr. Lundy sold his house in St. Clairsville, closed his saddlery shop, issued The Genius of Universal Emancipation, devoted himself soul, body, and business, to the cause of abolitionism from the year 1815 until his death in 1839. He published the first abolition paper, commencing January, 1821, and continued it with little interruption for nineteen years. He lectured and traveled much, and urged others to aid the cause. Not the least of his triumphs is his bringing Mr. Garrison into the field. This recruit has done him distinguished honor, though he did not appear in arms until Lundy had been thirteen years engaged—eight years as an editor and five as an efficient agitator in other respects. As a fruit of his agitation, I send for Mr. Tilton's inspection an oration of May 14, 1818, of which the "Union Humane Society" distributed a large edition. It aims to remove prejudices against negroes, and its arguments seem as much needed now as then.

Extract from the History of the United States, by Dr. H. von Holst; Vol. II., pages 81-82.

The immediate precursor and, in a certain sense, the father of the abolitionists was Benjamin Lundy a Quaker, born in New Jersey. In Wheeling, West Virginia, where he learned the saddler's trade, he had ample opportunity to become acquainted with the horrors of slavery as great cargoes of slaves on their way to the southern states frequently passed the place. Lundy had been endeavoring for some years to awaken an active interest among his neighbors in the hard lot of the slaves when the Missouri question brought him to the resolve to consecrate his whole life to their cause.

In 1821 he began to publish The Genius of Universal Emancipation, which is to be considered the first abolition organ. The XIXth century can scarcely point to another instance in which the commandment of Christ to leave all things and follow Him was so literally construed and followed.

Lundy gave up his flourishing business, took leave of his wife and of his two dearly beloved children and began a restless wandering life, to arouse consciences everywhere to a deeper understanding of the sin and crime of slavery.

A list of books and printed articles relating to Benjamin Lundy, the philanthropist.

The Life, Travels and Opinions of Benjamin Lundy, including his journeys to Texas and Mexico; with a sketch of contemporary events, and a notice of the Revolution in Hayti. Compiled under the direction and on behalf of his children. Philadelphia: Published by William D. Parish, 1847. [Compiled by Thomas Earle.]

Thomas Earle was a lawyer and an abolitionist, and in the presidential campaign of 1840 had been the candidate of the Liberty Party for Vice-President of the United States. He was a man of culture and at the time of his death was engaged in translating Sismondi's Italian Republics. He had known Lundy personally; and he undertook the task of compiling a biography at the request of Benjamin's half-sister, Lydia S. Wierman, who furnished him with all the available material.

An examination of Earle's Life of Lundy reveals the fact that the book consists of three parts; namely, (a) Lundy's personal narrative or autobiography, pages 13-31, 186-189, copied nearly in his own words from a series of letters written in Illinois by Lundy during the last year of his life and addressed to a young Quaker lady in Chester county, Pa., whom he had met in 1838 and to whom he became engaged to be married; (b) Lundy's travels, pages 31-186, in Texas and Mexico, based on a journal which Lundy kept from May 5, 1833, to July 3, 1835; (c) Lundy's opinions, pages 189-303, being a summary of the most important articles printed in The Genius of Universal Emancipation, drawn from the files of that periodical and arranged in chronological order.

SONNETS

WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON.

I.

TO BENJAMIN LUNDY

The early, steadfast, intrepid advocate of Emancipation.

Self-taught, unaided, poor, reviled, contemned,
Beset with enemies, by friends betrayed,
As madman and fanatic oft condemned,
Yet in thy noble cause still undismayed!
Leonidas thy courage could not boast;
Less numerous were his foes, his hand more strong;
Alone, unto a more than Persian host,
Thou hast undauntedly given battle long.
Nor shalt thou singly wage the unequal strife;
And to thy aid with spear and shield I rush,
And freely do I offer up my life
And bid my heart's blood find a wound to gush!
New volunteers are trooping to the field—
To die we are prepared, but not an inch to yield.

II.

TO THE MEMORY OF BENJAMIN LUNDY.

Thank God that, though thy body Death hath slain,
Thy quenchless spirit nothing could subdue;
That, though thou art removed from mortal view,
Thou livest evermore—and not in vain!
Our loss is but thine everlasting gain!
Of Freedom's friends, the truest of the true,
Wast thou, as all her deadly foes well knew!
For bravely her good cause thou didst maintain.
No threats could move, no perils could appal,
No bribes seduce thee, in thy high career:
O, many a fettered slave shall mourn thy fall,
And many a ransomed one let drop the tear;
A nation wakened by thy trumpet-call—
The world itself—thy memory shall revere!

JOHN ARMSTRONG,

Of Johnsonburg, Warren County, New Jersey.
Born in 1788; died in 1873.

Son of George Armstrong and Sarah Hunt;
Of Nathan Armstrong and Uphamy Wright.

ARMSTRONG FAMILY.

Nathan Armstrong, an early settler of Warren county, New Jersey, was born about 1717, near Londonderry in the province of Ulster, Ireland. He was a linen weaver by trade, a Scotch-Irishman by race, and a Protestant by religious faith.

He came to America about 1740 and made his way to the northwestern frontier of New Jersey, where he met and loved and married a Scotch-Irish maiden named Uphamy Wright. He bought a large tract of uncleared land, built a log-cabin thereon and became a farmer, and continued thereafter during a period of twenty-nine years to enjoy the blessings of health and home and the rewards of industry and thrift. He represented his township on the County Board of Freeholders, and was one of the original incorporators of Christ Church at Newton, being named as such in the charter granted to that church in 1774 by the provincial government. He died August 11, 1777.

Nathan's homestead, which is one mile northwest of Johnsonburg and fourteen miles from the Delaware Water Gap, was held in the Armstrong name for three generations (1748-1880), a period of 132 years.

Nathan and Uphamy (Wright) Armstrong had seven children; namely, Elizabeth, George and John, William, Mary, Hannah and Sarah. Each of these children grew to maturity, married and has descendants living at the present time.

Elizabeth Armstrong, the eldest child, born March 12, 1747, was the wife of Archibald Stinson, of Danville, N. J.

George and John Armstrong were twins; George married Sarah Hunt, and John married Sarah Stinson.

William Armstrong married in 1778 Elizabeth Swayze, dwelt at Johnsonburg, N. J., and left four daughters; namely, Lydia, the wife of Abraham Shafer, Jr.; Euphemia, the wife of John T. Bray; Mary, the wife of John Casper Roy; and Sarah, the wife of Ephraim Green, Jr.

Mary Armstrong was the wife of Capt. Robert Beavers, of Changewater, Warren county, N. J.

Hannah Armstrong was the wife of Alexander Linn, and when a widow removed in 1800 with her six children to Espyville, Crawford county, Pa.

Sarah Armstrong was the wife of Capt. Abraham Shafer, of Stillwater, Sussex county, N. J.

A Genealogical Record of the Descendants of Nathan Armstrong was compiled and published in 1895 by William Clinton Armstrong, the author of this Lundy genealogy.

The Last Will and Testament of Nathan Armstrong, the pioneer, is dated August 5, 1777, and is recorded among WILLS, Liber 20, pages 306-310, in the Office of the Secretary of State in the State House at Trenton, N. J. A copy of said will is presented herewith.

LEWIS FAMILY.

Henry Lewis removed from eastern Pennsylvania to Mt. Pleasant, Ohio, and there died a very old man. He had ten children: I. William, m. Lydia Stanton, a sister of Edmund M. Stanton's father; they had one daughter who is now Mary A. Burns, of Ottawa, Kansas; and this Mary has one daughter who is now Esther Lundy Marsh. William and Lydia are buried at Clear Creek, Ill. William's house was one of the stations on the underground railroad, and he took many a slave on the road to freedom. II. Lewis went to Illinois with his family about the beginning of the Civil War; his children are widely scattered. III. Mary died unmarried. IV. Esther married Benjamin Lundy, the philanthropist; see page 254. V. Catherine died in 1836, unmarried. VI. Samuel died at an advanced age; many of his grandchildren live at Chesterville, Morgan county, Ohio. VII. Ann m. William Fullerton, of Clear Creek, Ill. VIII. Susan m. Johnson Timberlake. IX. Henry died unmarried. X. Elisha married, but has drifted out of the knowledge of the other members of the family.

LUNDY FAMILY.

There are persons in the United States and Canada who bear the Lundy name but who are not descended from Richard Lundy the First. I shall mention a few emigrators who in recent years have come from various parts of Europe and have established in America small Lundy groups unrelated to us and apparently unrelated to each other; and then I shall enumerate several Lundy groups, older and more extensive, some of which may have descended from Richard Lundy the First, but which can not at this writing be located definitely on the Lundy tree.

Frederick Lundy, a lad of fourteen years, was brought to Long Island, N. Y., from Bremen Haven, Germany, in 1838, by the Nostrand family. Frederick had lost both his parents when a child and had been reared by his grandmother. In after years he wrote several times to Bremen Haven and made inquiry about his ancestry, but he was unable to gain any information. He married and left a family; among his children were John, Charles, Jerome, Frederick, Jr., and Walter. His sons under the firm name of Lundy Brothers now control the seafood market at Manhattan Beach, Long Island.

Tindall Lundy and his son James R. came to Canada in 1849 and settled at Niagara Falls, Ontario. Tindall was the son of Riley Lundy, of North Cove, Yorkshire, England.

Francis Henry Lundy, of New York City, came to America in 1855 from Stockport, Lancashire, England. His brother John Lundy came in 1872. They were the sons of William and Jane (Stean) Lundy.

John E. Lundy, a fruit-vender at Bath Beach, Long Island, is a native of Stockholm, Sweden, and came to America in 1876.

Several years ago a Mr. Lundy came from Dublin, Ireland, and settled in Newark, New Jersey, where three or four of his married sons now dwell.

Eli Lundy (parentage not ascertained) m. Phoebe McVeigh. They dwelt at first in Pennsylvania; then they lived for a time in Ohio, but finally removed to Peoria, Iowa. They had five children: I. Levi, who m. Mary Ann Golden and had William L., of Buckeye City, O., Cyrus, Cecelia, Emma, Joseph, John and Martha. II. John, who has a son Lafayette. III. Eli. IV. Elias, who has a son John W. at Harvey, Iowa. V. William L.

James Lundy (parentage not ascertained) was born in 1801 and died in 1833. He married Susan Easter, dwelt in Georgia, and had a son Matthew Washington Lundy, who m. Susan Head and had eight children: I. George Washington. II. Thomas W., who m. Euphemia Walker, lives at Perry, Florida, and has Argus Velmer, b. 1898, and Frederic Thomas, b. 1900. III. Annie Laura. IV. Lillie. V. Julia Frances. VI. Mary. VII. James. VIII. William.

Zachariah Lundy and John Lundy were brothers, and lived in the Edgefield District, South Carolina. Nothing is known concerning John. Zachariah Lundy m. a French lady and had four children: I. James, who is said to have removed to Augusta, Georgia, and thence to Galveston, Texas. He is said to have been a surveyor. II. John I., b. about 1811, was educated at Louisville, Ky., became a physician, and died in 1861; m. Katharine Durkee. III. Nancy. IV. Mary, name somewhat uncertain. One of these daughters married Mr. Frisby and settled at Lexington, Ky.; the other married Mr. Mackey and remained in South Carolina. John Lundy I. removed to the vicinity of Augusta, Ga., and thence in 1839 to Savannah, Ga., where he married Katharine Durkee, b. SCHOOLEY FAMILY.

John Schooley is the earliest name in the genealogy of this family. He lived and died in Handsworth Parish, County of York, England. His wife's name was Alice. Two of their children remained in England; four emigrated to America and settled in Burlington county, New Jersey. Children of John Schooley, the Englishman: I. —, a son, mentioned in tradition, name not ascertained, remained in England. II. Margaret, mentioned in tradition, m. a Mr. Barber and had a son Charles who removed to the City of Calcutta, India. III. Robert, mentioned in Smith's History of New Jersey; accompanied by his wife and children, he sailed from Hull on "The Shield," and reached Delaware Bay in 10th mo., O. S., 1678; the ship moored off Burlington for the night, the river froze, and the next morning the passengers went ashore on the ice. Robert is mentioned as a constable in 1682. Tradition says that Robert came from Workshop, in the county of Nottingham. No record of his descendants. IV. Thomas, mentioned in Smith's History of New Jersey, was a member of the Farnsworth Society of Friends in Yorkshire, England; sailed from Hull on the Flie-boat Martha of Bridlington, and reached New Jersey in August, 1677; married Sarah Parker and had seven children. From Thomas and Sarah have descended all the Schooleys that have intermarried with the Lundy lines. V. Mary, who in 1680 m. John Rogers; no further record. VI. John, Jr., whose will is recorded in the office of the Secretary of State at Trenton, N. J.; he m. (1) in 1696, Rebecca Bennett, and (2) in 1711, Frances Taylor. It is supposed that Mary and John, Jr., were brought to America by their older brother Thomas; tradition says that they came from Aughton in Yorkshire.

Friends' records in Burlington county, N. J., show that a Sarah Schooley married Caleb Wheatley on 5 of 9, 1696, and that a Mary Schooley married Joseph Wright in 1710; but the relationship of Sarah and Mary to the other Schooleys is not known.

I have before me an old manuscript wherein are given the traditions once current among the Schooleys of New Jersey concerning Margaret Schooley of England and her eldest brother.

Margaret's brother remained in England. He prospered and acquired great wealth; but he died leaving no issue, so that his property would fall to his three brothers who had emigrated to New Jersey. This is known as the Schooley estate.

Margaret Schooley married a man by the name of Barber and had only one child, a son named Charles. Charles Barber became a fur merchant, settled in the city of Calcutta, in India, and made a large fortune. He died without issue, but he left a will and gave the larger portion of his estate to his mother, the aforesaid Margaret Barber. The will of the said Charles Barber is recorded in the Surrogate's office in Calcutta; and also in England. Finally Margaret herself died intestate, and the legal title to the whole of her estate passed to her three brothers who had emigrated from England to New Jersey. This is known as the Barber estate.

These two estates—the Schooley and the Barber—taken together, amount to twenty-seven millions, the statement of the old manuscript on this point being very definite and satisfactory.

§ A. THOMAS SCHOOLEY, EMIGRATOR.

Thomas Schooley was a member of the Society of Friends in England and belonged to the Farnsfield Meeting in Yorkshire. He is said to have come from Aughton. His name is in the list of the masters of families who sailed from Hull on the Flie-Boat Martha the latter end of summer and arrived in West Jersey in the fall of 1677; see Smith's History of New Jersey, page 102. The Farnsfield Meeting granted him a certificate of removal to New Jersey, which was recorded in the Book of Records of the Society of Friends in Burlington county, N. J., on the 19th day of the 3d mo., 1684. Thomas married Sarah Parker, of Burlington county, N. J., in 1686. He died in or about the year 1724, say between the 6th of February, 1723, and the 13th day of June, 1724.

On April 12, 1680, Robert and Thomas Schooley, of Crewcorn on the Delaware River, signed a petition that no liquor be sold to the Indians.

Children of Thomas Schooley and his wife Sarah Parker: I. Thomas, Jr., b. 25th day of the 9th mo., 1688, m. Hannah Fowler on 5 of 3 mo., 1720. II. William, b. 12th day of the 6th mo., 1691, m. No further record of any of the children named above except William and Samuel.

William Schooley, son of Thomas the immigrant, m. Elizabeth —, and had ten children: I. Robert, b. 9th day of the 6th mo., 1718; was left at liberty by the Woodbridge M. M. on February 15 of 8, 1747, to marry Elizabeth Young; m. the second day thereafter and had three children: Mary, b. 7 of 10, 1754; Elizabeth, b. 25 of 4, 1756; Richard, b. 7 of 10, 1758. Robert and Elizabeth at the time of their marriage were described as of Morris county, N. J.; in 1758 arrangements were made by Woodbridge M. M. for building a Friends' Meeting House at Mendham, N. J., on land belonging to Robert Schooley. II. Sarah, b. 4th day of 10th mo., 1720, m. Michael Likens (or Luken) in 1743. III. Isaac, m. in 1763 contrary to the Friends' discipline and thereby lost his membership in the Mendham, N. J., Meeting. IX. Mary, m. Jacob Bonnel on 27 of 11, 1760; both of Mendham, N. J. X. Alice, m. on 27 of 6, 1754, James Brotherton, a brother of Henry, Jr., named above, and had ten children.

Richard Schooley, of Byran township, Sussex county, N. J., in his will probated in 1805 makes no mention of wife or children, but speaks of his uncle Robert Schooley, his cousin Richard Brotherton, and his cousin Elizabeth Dell.

Samuel Schooley, son of Thomas the immigrant, m. 6 of 3 mo., 1725, Avis Holloway, of town of Burlington, N. J., b. February 9, 1706, d. in 1785. The record of their marriage is found in the books of the Chesterfield M. M. Samuel received by indenture 350 acres of land belonging to the Stevenson tract on Schooley's Mountain, from Mr. De Cou on January 11, 1726, Samuel and his wife Avis being described as of Bethlehem, Hunterdon county, N. J.; Samuel continued to hold some of this land until April 22, 1745, on which date he sold the remainder to William Henn. Samuel also purchased a warrant for 136 acres of land, November, 1729, and sold the same to William Pew in March, 1733; said land being near the point where Morris, Hunterdon and Warren counties meet. He owned land also in Hunterdon county, near Quakertown, in 1743.

On 10 of 4 mo., 1729, Thomas Williams, Samuel Schooley and others made application to the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting of Burlington, N. J., for consent to meet together at one of their houses every First day of the week to worship God; which request was granted. On 11 of 4 mo., 1754, Josiah Dyer, Richard Lundy, Senior, and Samuel Schooley were appointed by the Kingwood Monthly Meeting to visit for spiritual care the families belonging to the Hardwick branch. Samuel and his wife Avis were among the first body of elders appointed for the monthly meeting in 1756. He died in 1761. In 1768, "at the request of Friends of Paulinskill," a meeting for worship was allowed to be held there once a month during the winter season at the house of Avis Schooley, who lived possibly near Stillwater. In 1775 the meeting was moved to the house of her son Benjamin Schooley.

A list of six of the children of Samuel and Avis is found in a manuscript arithmetic now in the possession of A. A. Vance, of Morristown, N. J. The years of birth of the first three are illegible but can be approximately conjectured.

Children of Samuel Schooley and Avis Holloway: I. Asenath, b. April 18 (1726?), m. in 1744, John Simcock, Junr.; resided at first in Pennsylvania, removed in 1746 to New Jersey, and had three children: Samuel, b. 16 of 2, 1745, m. in 1768; John, b. 5 of 10, 1747, at Greenwich, Sussex county; m. in 1773; Anne, b. in 1749-50, at Kingwood; named in the will of her grandmother, Avis Schooley. II. Ann, b. June 29 (1728?), m. in 1751, Judge Samuel Lundy, and left three sons, Isaac, Daniel and George; see page 269. III. Joseph, b. November 19 (1730?); supposed to have been the Joseph Schooley of Windsor, Middlesex county, N. J., who in his will, probated in 1761, left all his property to his wife. Tradition says that he left a son James who left a son Joseph (of Burlington county, N. J.) who had a son William R. Schooley. IV. Benjamin, b. April 24, 1733, d. in 1809; m. in 1755 Martha Lundy; see page 189. V. Samuel, Jr., m. Elizabeth Willson, daughter of Gabriel Willson; see page 329. VI. Rachel, m. 10 of 11, 1755, Josiah Dyer, Jr., and had a daughter Avis. VII. Jehoaden possibly belongs here; m. Ebenezer Willson; see page 116.

The will of Avis Schooley is on file at Burlington, N. J.; but there is a copy of it in the Sussex office at Newton. It is dated June 20, 1771, and was probated May 24, 1785. In it Avis mentions her sons Joseph, Benjamin, and Samuel, and her daughter-in-law Martha (Lundy) Schooley, and her granddaughters Ann Simcock and Avis Dyer.

Tradition states also that Silas Dell and Richard Brotherton are among the descendants of this Samuel and Avis Schooley, and that the said Silas and Richard are in the same degree of removal from Samuel as Joseph Schooley of Burlington is.

§ B. JOHN SCHOOLEY, JR., EMIGRATOR.

For nearly all the data given herewith concerning the family of John Schooley, Jr., I am indebted to a sketch written by Mr. Barclay White, of Mt. Holly, N. J., and printed in the proceedings of the N. J. Historical Society, Vol. 19, page 248.

"John Schooley, Jr.," says Mr. White, "was the son of John Schooley of Handsworth Parish, County of York, England. By location and purchase he became the owner of 615 acres of land in the township of Springfield, Burlington county, New Jersey. Upon the northerly portion of said plantation he built a dwelling-house having walls of adobes or sunburnt bricks, and resided there until his death, which occurred 10th mo. 17th, 1725." He married in 1697 Rebecca Bennett, daughter of William and Rebecca Bennett, of Bucks county, Pa., and sister of Elizabeth Bennett, who in 1684 had married Richard Lundy I. John and Rebecca had one child; after the death of Rebecca, John married on 25 of 2, 1711, Frances Taylor, widow of Joseph Nicholson and daughter of Samuel and Susannah Taylor, of Door, County of Derby, England. John had one child by his first wife and nine by his second. Children of John Schooley, Jr., immigrant: I. Ann, who in 1725 m. Thomas Scattergood, Jr. II. Susannah, b. 12 mo., 1711-12, d. before 1757; m. in 1730, Michael Newbold, and left children. III. John III., b. 11 mo. 22, 1714-15, of Hanover, Burlington county, N. J., m. in 1743 Rachel Wright and had one child, Frances, who m. John Leonard. Mr. Leonard joined the Loyalists during the Revolutionary War, and in consequence the lands which his wife Frances had inherited from her grandfather Schooley were confiscated and sold. IV. Thomas, b. 12 mo., 5, 1718-19, d. aged ten weeks. V. Mary, b. 12 mo. 21, 1720, m. 1st, in 1740, Jonathan Barton; 2d, in 1746, Thomas Black; and 3d, Samuel Wright. VI. Isabel, b. 2 mo. 28, 1721; m. in 1750 Jacob Ridgeway. VII. Samuel, b. 5 mo. 25, 1723, sold the land bequeathed to him by his father, removed to Schooley's Mountain, which was named after him, married and removed with all or a part of his family to Virginia, near Harper's Ferry, and finally settled in Ohio. To this account of Samuel given by Mr. White, I add the following details: Samuel Schooley married Mary Albertson of Warren county, N. J., daughter of Nicholas Albertson and his wife Anglechea Van De Water, and granddaughter of Cornelius Albertson, a merchant of Amsterdam, Holland. On 12 of 3 mo., 1761, Samuel requested for himself, his wife and his two daughters, Phebe Meyers and Ann, a certificate of membership from the Kingwood M. M., in Hunterdon county, N. J., addressed to the M. M. at Fairfax, Virginia. On 9 of 4 mo., 1761, Jonathan Meyers requested a similar certificate for himself and his wife (Phebe) and children. I find that a certificate for a Schooley was taken about 1803 from the Goose Creek M. M. in Virginia to the Westland M. M., Pa.; also that a family by the name of Schooley took a certificate of membership, before 1822, from Fairfax M. M. to Short Creek, Harrison county, Ohio. VIII. Rebecca, b. 8 mo. 3, 1725, m. in 1747 Joseph Wright. IX. Sarah, b. 6 mo. 6, 1727, m. in 1752 Joseph Horner. X. Jonathan, b. 8 mo. 3, 1729, m. in 1750 Mary Wright; left daughters only; on February 1, 1806, Jonathan Schooley and his wife Mary gave a deed for land in Hanover township, Morris county, N. J.

SHOTWELL FAMILY.

Abraham Shotwell, the founder of the Shotwell Family in America, was in Elizabethtown, N. J., as early as 1665. During the ten years of his residence there, he was a prominent defender of the cause of the settlers in opposition to Gov. Philip Carteret and the Lords Proprietors in the matter of oppressive quit-rent exactions, in consequence of which championship his real estate was confiscated and he was forced to retire to the neighboring colony of New York. He is believed to have died about the year 1680 on Staten Island. John Shotwell, the son of Abraham, recovered in 1683 his father's confiscated real estate in Union county, N. J. So far as known, John was the first of the name who united in membership with the Society of Friends, but he was earnest in promoting the views and work of that Christian denomination, and had meetings for worship appointed at his house on Staten Island before his final removal to New Jersey. He was a resident of Woodbridge, N. J., at the time of his death in 1718. He married Mary Burton of New York, in 1679, and had at least four children, who are mentioned in his will; namely, two sons, John (Jr.) and Abraham, and two daughters, Elizabeth, wife of John Laing of Piscataway, and Sarah, wife of Benjamin Smith of Woodbridge.

John Shotwell, Jr., born about 1686, died in 1762 at his homestead, Shotwell's Landing, on the left bank of the Rahway River, where he had located about the year 1710, having married in 1709 Mary Thorne, Jr. (1686-1763), daughter of Joseph and Mary (Bowne) Thorne, of Flushing, Long Island, and granddaughter of that distinguished champion of religious liberty, John Bowne, who suffered persecution under Governor Peter Stuyvesant, being sent a prisoner to Holland for persistently disregarding the Dutch Governor's placards forbidding the harboring of Quakers and attendance at their prohibited conventicles, but being finally set at liberty by the authorities of Amsterdam and permitted to return bringing their noteworthy rebuke to the colonial officials for such interference with the freedom of conscience of peaceable and otherwise lawabiding colonists who were not hostile to the government, nor in any proper sense disturbers of the public peace.

Mary (Thorne) Shotwell's maternal grandmother Hannah, wife of John Bowne, was daughter of Robert Feake, of Watertown, Conn., and his wife Elizabeth, nee Fones,—the latter a niece of Governor John Winthrop, of Boston.

Benjamin Shotwell, born 1726, youngest son of John, Jr., dwelt also at Shotwell's Landing, and died there in 1793. He married in 1746 his mother's cousin Ame, daughter of Richard and Amy (Bowne) Hallet, of Newtown, L. I., and granddaughter of the John Bowne mentioned above by his third wife Sarah Cock. Amy's paternal grandfather, William Hallett, was also son of a niece of Governor John Winthrop.

Benjamin Shotwell's large family, including the mother of his distinguished namesake Benjamin Lundy, were thus doubly descended both from John Bowne, the sturdy Long Island champion of religious liberty, and from Adam Winthrop, father of the Puritan Governor of Massachusetts.

Of the nine children of Benjamin and Mary (Thorne) Shotwell, I here mention four: I. Sarah, m. (1) William Hampton and had Benjamin, William and Amy, and (2) Jacob Lundy II.; see page 167. II. Richard, m. Mary Martin, and had ten children, among whom Isaac M. who m. Edna C. Pound and had Nathan, who m. Phebe B. Gardner and had five children, among whom Ambrose M. and Manly, of Concord, Mich. III. Benjamin, Jr., m. Bathsheba Pound and had among other children Elizabeth who m. Samuel Lundy, Jr. (page 314); Thomas, who m. (1) Tamer Lundy (page 183), and (2) Hannah Lundy (page 276); Zachariah, who m. (1) Elizabeth Lundy (page 302), and (2) Edna Lundy (page 276), and (3) Elizabeth H. Lundy (page 68); and Amy, who m. Asa Willson, son of Gabriel and Keziah. IV. Elizabeth, who m. Joseph Lundy and had one son, Benjamin Lundy the anti-slavery agitator; see page 253.

Ambrose M. Shotwell, of Concord, Mich., assisted by his brother Manly, has thoroughly investigated the genealogy of the Shotwell Family and has published his researches in a volume entitled, The Annals of Our Colonial Ancestors; or Our Quaker Forefathers and their Posterity.

STOCKTON FAMILY.

The Stocktons of New Jersey have been distinguished during many years for their ability and patriotism. The family is of English origin, and was founded by Richard Stockton, who with his wife Abigail came to America previous to the year 1657 and settled at Flushing, Long Island. He served as lieutenant in a company of cavalry, but afterwards joined the Society of Friends. About 1690 he removed to New Jersey and purchased a plantation of 2,000 acres in Burlington county, where he died in 1707.

Three Lundy men married Stocktons. In 1773 Richard Lundy IV., afterward of Virginia, m. Mary Stockton, daughter of Daniel (page 87); in 1779 Thomas Lundy II., afterward of North Carolina, m. Elizabeth Stockton, daughter of said Daniel (page 250); and in 1804 Amos Lundy of Hunterdon county, N. J., m. Abigail Stockton, daughter of John (page 271).

The lineage of Abigail and of Mary and Elizabeth will now be subjoined.

J., died in 1709, and left six children: Richard III., Samuel, Joseph, Robert, John (father of Hon. Richard Stockton who signed the Declaration of Independence), and Thomas.

The line now divides, following Richard III. and Joseph.

Third. Richard Stockton III., b. 1692-3, d. 1760, and his wife Esther Smith, who were the parents of John, and Ruth (Mrs. John Scott). Fourth. John Stockton, b. 25 of 3, 1732, d. 27 of 12, 1800, and his wife Amy King, who had four children that married; namely, Joseph, who m. Sarah Wolverton, Abigail, who m. Amos Lundy, Ruth, who m. Daniel Bray, of the lake country, in New York; John, who m. his brother Joseph's widow.

J., mentions his wife Elizabeth, his sons Daniel and John, and his daughters Amey Stockton, Sarah Stockton, Elizabeth Nicholson, and Mary Anderson. Fourth. The Daniel named in the will is the Daniel Stockton whose daughters Mary and Elizabeth married Richard and Thomas Lundy.

J., in February, 1688; see Smith's History of New Jersey, page 579.

ROBERT WILLSON AND HIS WIFE ANN HOAG.

II. Deborah, b. 21 of 9 mo., 1674, d. 6 mo., 1687, at age of thirteen years.

III. Rebecca, b. 14 of 2 mo., 1677, d. 1760, m. Samuel Large, settled in Hunterdon county, N. J., and had at least one son, Jacob, whose daughter Ann married Isaac Lundy; see page 270.

IV. Samuel I., b. 1 of 5 mo., 1681, was brought to America when he was one year old, married Hester Overton, and "departed this Life in America, West Jersey, Hunterdon county and Kingwood township, the 19 day of 12th mo., 1761, in the 81 year of his age and was decently interred in Friends Burying ground at Kingwood."

Samuel Willson I. in 1705 m. Hester Overton, b. 26 of 10 mo., 1682, daughter of Samuel and Hannah Overton. They settled in Chesterfield township, Burlington county, N. J., where a family of eight children were born to them; in 1730 they removed to Franklin township, Hunterdon county.

About a mile southwest of the village of Quakertown, Hunterdon county, N. J., stands an old mansion. It is built of stone and high up on its western gable appears the inscription "S H W 1735." The initials are those of Samuel and Hester (Overton) Willson who builded here a home that was destined to shelter many generations of their descendants.

The house gives evidence of having been well built ; the walls, laid up in clay, are firm and solid and will endure perhaps another century if no ruder hand than that of Time be laid upon them. The enormous chimneys contain almost stone enough to build a moderate-sized house. In the western gable near the date stone there is a small square loop-hole which one might suppose had been intended for use in defending the castle against the attacks of Indians were it not for the fact that the owners thereof were members of the peace-loving sect called Quakers. Running along the exterior walls on both sides is the water-table ; and an ancient pent-house protected one of the doors. The partitions of the interior are of wood and are panelled all the way up to the lofty ceiling. Originally the huge beams were exposed to view, the ceiling being a comparatively recent innovation. Two small windows set quite high in the thick walls admitted but scant light and the general appearance must have been somewhat gloomy.

The great fire-place with its stock-hole in the jamb speaks eloquently of the pleasures of the olden time, for here the young people of the family with their neighboring cousins and friends gathered around to enjoy social converse and innocent games.

Among the many relics still preserved in the Willson family is a large cupboard brought from England in 1682 by Robert Willson, the father of Samuel. Other mementos are the original deed for the six hundred acres of land dated 1730 and given by Jacob Doughty in consideration of three hundred pounds of lawful silver money of the King's Dominions in America, the marriage certificate of James and Martha (Laing) Willson bearing their autographs and those of many of their relatives and friends, inventories of estates, vendue lists, and many other old documents.

But the oldest and most interesting souvenir is a well worn Bible, the several portions of which were printed at different dates and afterward bound together ; the last part is dated 1618 and is "The Whole Booke of Psalmes collected into English Meeter by Thomas Sternhold, John Hopkins and others, with apt Notes to sing them withal." Robert Willson's autograph appears on one page, and those of Samuel and his sister Rebecca on another.
